Byron's very clever little comedy "The Old Story," which is so capitally acted as to become the talk of the town, will be repeated to-night with Miss Jennie Lee, John Howson, J. P. Burnett, Miss Fanny Young, Mrs. Julia Melville, and Miss Esther Williams in the principal parts. After his Professor O'Reardon will give his wonderful Tumbleronicon performance, the whole concluding with Offenbach's opera bouffe, "Choufleuri," charmingly acted by Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, John Howson and others. Those who have not heard Miss Galton since her re-appearance will be delighted with the purity and beauty of her voice; which has, in the interval recovered its full power. "The Old Story" will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

The Palace Ampithentre.

A very strong combination of equestrian and gymnastic artistes is exhibiting at this popular place of amusement, under the management of John Wilson. It comprises M'lle Millie Turnour, the aerial queen, Miss Helen Cook, premiere equestrienne, Miss Adelaide, wire walker, Fred O'Brien, the lion leaper, Wooda Cook, somersault, acrobatic and gymnastic performer, George Holland equestrian and gymnast, Leon and Laisalle, gymnasts, Eugene de Brisso, contortionist, Eugene Lee, French, comique, little Johnny Cook, bareback rider, the Duorow brothers, Frank Lee and James Lee. A capital orchestra under Professor Green furnishes pleasing music. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow. The programme is published on our first page.

Bella Union.

A new bill will be given at this house to-night Unsein and Fritz will appear in "Les Chaises, Moore and Bray in songs and dances. Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic songs, Ed Murray in his new "Budget of Fun;" Susie Robinson, Fanny Garretson, Fred Ritchie, Louise Somers and Maggie Kelly in specialties; and the acts of "The Dead Alive," the "Police Court," "Barney's Courtship," "Camille," "Gun and Trigger," concluding with the new piece of "Broker's Help," with Ed Murray, Alice Ross, Johnny Tuers, John Woodard, Kelly, Nickerson, Bree, Barton, Ritchie and others in the cast. Stage Manager Woodard will have his hands full to get through with that bill.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Lizzie Harmon, Ned Buckley, Frank Mortimore, Geo. Foster, Miss Katie Zoe and a great number of favorite artistes will appear this evening to an attractive programme concluding with "Woman's Trials, or Virtue Triumphant."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

CHANG AND ENG.

In a smoky, beery den,
Where the sawdust fancy meet,
Circus riders, iron men,
Acrobats with twinkling feet.

Sat a melancholy clown,
From his paper looked and said—
"Boys, half haul the buntin' down,
Chang and Eng, the Twins, is dead."

Up a burly showman rose,
Rose and said—"Our boys, perhaps,
Should procure some mournin' clothes,
There was money in them chaps."

II.

Seven doctors in a ring
Round a sumptuous table sat,
Conversation in full swing,
Wit and wisdom, wine and that.

Quoth a surgeon in a wig—
"Hang those crafty Siamese,
Thus to go and hop the twig
Ere their mystery we could seize."

And a dreary silence then
On the brooding seven fell—
Seven eager sawbone men,
Victims of a cruel sell.

III.

From a pulpit high a priest
Leaned, and with a wioning smile
Touched upon the Twins deceased
In a patronizing style:

"Chang and Eng their mortal coil
Have shuffled off, and venture I
To say that from their earthly toil
Released, they share yon 'equal sky.'

"With all the parted spirits who
For Heaven's blissful mint are coined,
Or white or black or red in hue,
Provided they our sect had joined."

Professional Jurymen.

The Cincinnatti Star gives an account of an indignation meeting held by the professional jurymen of Hamilton county, in the course of which the President made the following remarks: "Gentlemen—I have been practicing law as a juror in the various courts of this county, both State and National and city, for nigh onto twenty years, an' I don't say that take one year with another I havn't made a putty good thing on it. But, gentlemen, it haint every man you can make a good reliable juryman oughter. I'll take my own case. How many men in this community would permit themselves to be snubbed by Deputy Sheriffs, frowned on by Judges, and blackguarded by those confounded newspaper reporters. They calls us 'profesh.' Gentlemen, in the pursecution of my perfession I hev bin ejected from the precincts of many a court room, and now to think that after all the years I hev spent in acquiring the necessary legal knowledge to properly weigh a witness' testimony, a man what only sees a transaction must be paid as much as us what's got to tell whether he tells the truth or not. For, gentlemen, I can tell perzactly when a witness is talking right, and so can any other professional what knows his biz and has been seen. I am in favor of writing a letter to the Legis——"

What further proceedings would have been transacted by the meeting we are unable to state, as just as the eloquent gentleman had got to this point of his speech he and his followers were doused by a janitor of the court house, who was washing its rear windows and who turned the hose on them, at once dispersing the meeting and adding to their righteous indignation.

Too Much Gas.

On Dec. 24, at the Liverpool Amphitheatre, a great alarm was caused by the explosion of two bags of compressed gas used for the lime light during the first performance of the pantomime. Three men were blown some distance with great force, boards were knocked down from the flies upon the actors, the theatre was filled with clouds of white dust and smoke, and some scenic properties were set on fire. The dramatic company rushed in terror across the stage, and a panic seized the assemblage. Two hundred children, who were taking part in the performance, increased the confusion by their screams. Order, however, was at length restored, the fire was put out, and the play resumed under difficulties.

Celibacy and Wedlock.

If single life is bad then it stands to reason that double life is twice as bad.

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2c

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—On Monday evening, Miss Kate Denin took her benefit at the Metropolitan Theatre. The weather was miserable and consequently the house was poor. The beneficiary appeared as Zoe in "The Octoroon" and as Mary in "The Drunkard." John Wilson of the California Theatre, appeared on this occasion. On the following night, J. W. Coggswell took his benefit, but met with no more encouraging response than did Miss Denin. The weather was better, but the house was just as bad. The "French spy," and "Jack Sheppard" constituted the bill. On Wednesday evening in consequence of Mr. Boucicault's being left behind at Vallejo, and consequently failing to meet his engagement with Manager Piper, this bill had to be repeated. The Bee howls at Mr. Boucicault "unduly." If Mr. Boucicault had a proper appreciation of public feeling he would not have delayed his coming until the last moment, compelling the management to put a new piece upon the stage with a hasty rehearsal or none at all; and probably even during his short stay here he will learn that Sacramento is no provincial town, though it is located in the interior, but on the contrary that in theatrical matters he will find ere a people who, although not hypercritical, can detect the good from the bad and appreciate genuine acting and thorough stage appointments. On Thursday evening, the author-actor made his appearance before a large audience in "Kerry" and afterwards played Sir Charles Coldstream in "Used Up." The Union praises his acting in each of these characters very highly. Last night, "The Colleen Bawn" was played with Mr. Boucicault as Myles na Coppaleen. There will be a matinee to-day, and to-night Mr. Boucicault will make his last appearance. This performance will bring the season to a close, and Mr. Piper will take his company to Virginia City. Madame Anna Bishop is to give her final farewell concert on the 12th.

SAN JOSE.—On Thursday evening, the Templeton Troupe appeared at the Opera House for the benefit of manager DeLacy. The people of San Jose came forward nobly, and crowded the house. Another performance was given last night, and the season will close with the performance this evening. Manager DeLacy is doing well for the people of San Jose in the way of amusements, and we are glad to see that they appreciate his efforts.

WOODLAND.—The Fay Templeton Troupe performed here on Tuesday.

OROVILLE.—In consequence of the success of the entertainment given at Union Hall on the 29th, and 30th ult., by J. B. Badger, Miss Ella Badger, and the Oroville Amateur Club, another was given last night. It consisted of "The Rough Diamond" and songs and recitations. "The Pleasant Neighbors" will be performed to-night. There is quite a taste for dramatic entertainment in Oroville. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" is announced for production shortly.

VIRGINIA CITY.—Manager Piper, will open a season at his own Opera House on Monday, with Dion Boucicault, and the company from the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento. Miss Kate Denin and other stars will follow.

SALT LAKE.—On Monday, John McCullough entered upon the second week of his engagement at the theatre, and appeared as Spartacus in "The Gladiator." During the present week he has played in "The Marble Heart" and "Virginius." Last night he took a benefit which was attended by all the best people in Utah. Governor Wood and General Morrow, having personally interested themselves in making the testimonial worthy of the actor.

PORTLAND.—G. W. Jester, the ventriloquist late of the Vivian Concert Troupe, gave a matinee, and an evening performance at Oro Fino Theatre on the 31st ult.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corvilleo keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go,
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway [illegible] House on Market street
So elegantly fitted and new.
Here [illegible]en can talk their business
Over a heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—J. G. Russell, whose beautiful baritone voice is the admiration of all who hear it, had a capital benefit last night and presented an excellent programme. At the matinee to-day and again this evening after a good first part, Welch and Rice will appear in "A Practical Joke;" the wonderful Girards, whose engagement has nearly come to an end, in "Legmania, Billy Sweetnam and Con T. Murphy in the "Gripsack"; George S. Knight in his original Dutch comicalities; Billy Manning and Billy Sweetnam in "The Robbers of Poverty Flat;" and the Siegrists and their clever dogs in a very attractive entertainment.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—At the matinee to-day the performance will consist of the ever popular farce of "B B," and the very clever comedy of "The Old Story," which has proved such a success during the week. In the evening the entertainment will commence with this comedy and terminate with by far the best performance of "Choufleuri" ever given in this city. Miss Susan Galton and Alfred Kelleher sing delightfully, John Howson does some exquisitely funny acting as Mons. Choufleuri, and A. W. Bark as Peterman is particularly good. This excellent bill will be presented for the last time to-morrow evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE—An intelligent and fashionable audience assembled at this theatre last night, when Miss Katharine Rogers appeared as Leah in the drama of 'Leah, the Forsaken." Her performance of the character of the wronged and outraged Jewess was charmingly natural, and in the highest degree artistic, and in the course scene she evinced a power which those of the audience who had only seen her in "Mimi" did not credit her with possessing. She was called before the curtain at the close of every act, and loud and prolonged applause proved how thoroughly the audience appreciated her talent. E. J. Buckley as Adelbert, acted well and read the declamatory passages in the second act with much skill, Miss Ellie Wilton played the part of Anna naturally and sympathetically, Mr. C. R. Saunders did a good bit of old-woman acting as Martha, Henry Edwards was very successful as the apostate Nathan, W. Barry played the part of Peter with a good deal of dry humor, and the play was generally well acted. The performance concluded with the laughable farce of "Jones' Baby;" in which J. O. Williamson, W. A. Mestayer, E. J. Buckley, E. N. Thayer, Miss Nellie Cummins, Mrs. C. R. Saunders and others caused considerable fun. The same bill will be performed this evening. At the matinee to-day "Mimi" will be presented for the last time. "Love's Sacrifice" will be produced on Monday evening, and "The Hunchback" on Tuesday evening.

THE PALACE AMPHITHEATRE.—There was a good attendance at this popular place of amusement last night, and the performance gave general satisfaction. Among the features of the first part may be mentioned the performance of Leon and Laiscalle on the horizontal bars, and the wonderful leaping of Fred O'Brien. In the second part the dashing riding act of Miss Helen Cook, including leaps through twenty balloons, was much applauded, and the graceful and daring feats of Senorita Millie Tournour on the trapeze, who possesses a wonderful nerve, excited much wonder and admiration. The excellent programme which appears on our first page, will be presented at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The very attractive entertainment presented at this house last night drew a large audience. Ed. Murray's "Badget of Fun" was fully appreciated by all present; the local play of "The Police Court," in which Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers and others appeared, went off screamingly, Johnny Toers was great in the act of "Camille;" and Ed. Murray and Miss Alice Ross won much applause, by both their acting and their vocalism, in the sketch entitled "Barney's Courtship." The same bill will be performed to-night and to-morrow night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—The sensation drama of "Woman's Trials; or, Virtue Triumphant;" Miss Lizzie Harmon in comic songs, Miss Maggie Brewer in dances, Harry Devoy, Geo. Foster and others in acts, and a great number of other attractions will be presented at this house to-night and to-morrow night.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—A new season of Italian opera will be commenced at the California Theatre on Sunday next. Chas. Shutz, the business manager, who so successfully engineered the last season, informs us that he has obtained a larger subscription list for the coming season than was ever obtained in this city. Six operas will be performed, the theatre having been secured for six Sundays. The first opera will be "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Madame Inez Fabbri as Lucia, Pietro Bacosi as Edgar, Signor Orlandini as Henry Ashton, and a generally strong cast. After this, "La Fille du Regiment," "Il Trovatore," "Der Freischutz," "William Tell," and "La Dame Blanche" will be produced in succession. Professor Mulder-Fabbri will conduct the season.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenbera & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omniboses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—Mons. A. Tourneville, the founder of several Alcazar-theatres at Buenos Ayers, Montevideo and other cities in South America, announces that he will, on or about the 15th of March, open a similar establishment in this city in Pacific Hall. The hall is to be rearranged, with galleries divided into forty boxes, all fitted up in the most luxurious manner. The Alcazar will be opened by the French Lyrical Company now on their way from Lima, Peru. These artistes will appear in operettas, vaudevilles, dances, ballets and pantomimes, and on the conclusion of their long engagement other novelties will be introduced. Mons. Tourneville will spare no pains or expense in establishing in this city a place of entertainment of an entirely novel character, and will, by conducting it in first-class style, strive to merit the patronage of the best portion of the community. FIGARO will be the programme of this, as of all other first-class places of amusement. Cela va sans dire.

That worthy artiste, Madame Bianchi, is to be the recipient of a complimentary benefit on Friday evening next, when the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be presented, at Platt's Hall, with the beneficiary as Donna Elvira; Madame Fabbri as Donna Anna; Miss Anna Eiser as Zerlina; and Signor Bianchi as Don Giovanni. Signor Mulder-Fabbri will conduct the opera. We are sure that the public will rally on this occasion and crowd the house to overflowing.

John McCullough who will close his engagement in Salt Lake City to-night, will return at once to this city, and will make his reappearance at the California Theatre on the 16th. He will play a brief season, during which he will appear in "The Gladiator," "Richelieu," "King Lear," and we hope in "Hamlet" and "Othello."

Miss Neilson will follow John McCullough at the California Theatre, appearing in "Romeo and Juliet," "As You Like It," and in Halliday's adaptation of "Antony and Cleopatra."

The bill at the Opera House, next week, will consist of the operetta of "The Widow Bewitched" and Dion Boucicault's comedy of "Andy Blake."

The California Theatre Company will be worked pretty hard next week. The management announce "Pygmalion and Galatea," for Monday, and afterwards "Hunted Down," "Love's Sacrifice," "Woman's Heart" and "Nine Points of the Law." These plays will afford the public an opportunity of seeing Miss Katharine Rogers in her best roles, and each one of them should draw a large audience.

Mr. J. G. Russell was presented by his friends with a valuable gold watch and chain at his benefit last night. Mr. Con T. Murphy made a very pleasant presentation speech on the occasion.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, the latest dramatic event has been the production at the Fifth Avenue Theatre of Mr. Daly's new play of "Follies," which is an adaptation of "La Maison Neuve" of Victorien Sardou. The plot is as follows: Rene and Follisme Genevoix, young people, have been five years married, and, wearied with the transaction of humdrum duties, long for a louder style of living and the dissipations of fashionable society. They enter upon a gorgeous style of life, make a number of new friends, and by all the devices of fashion and folly, bring themselves to the verge of moral and financial ruin. The husband becomes involved with a danseuse, and the wife is on the point of eloping with a titled roue. From the shame, sin, and remorse of these dilemmas they are rescued by the ingenuity of some friends, the fidelity of their old uncle Genevoix, and the generosity of Gudin, one of the old clerks. Mr. Harkins played Rene, and Miss Ada Dyas, Folline. The play was a success....."Money," is up for a run at Wallack's.....At the Academy of Music English opera proved a success....."Led Astray" still runs at Union Square Theatre.....At the Grand Opera House, "Humpty Dumpty Abroad," is drawing good houses.....Yankee Locke, appeared at Wood's Museum on the 2nd, and the burlesque of "Puss in Boots" was presented at the matinee.....At Bryant's Opera House, "Cinderella" was still kept on the boards.....At Tony Pastor's, the latest additions to the company were the Waite Sisters.....At Booth's Theatre, a new play by Belot was announced to follow "La Femme de Feu".....At Niblo's, Mr. Fawcett Rowe's new play of "Hawkeye," was the attraction.....The Olympic Theatre was doing a good business with a very full variety company, comprising Delehanty and Hengler, Miss Jennie Arnot, and many others.....At the Metropolitan Theatre, the stars were Miss Leona Dare, E. D. Davies, Miss Edith Blanche, and others.....At the Bowery Theatre, "The Scout of the Sierra Nevada" was still running.....The Coliseum, with views of London and Paris, was drawing numbers of visitors.

J. H. Larkin and Miss Carrie Armstrong, are at the Theatre Comique, St. Louis.

The Worrell Sisters, Sophie and Irene, are at Deagle's Theatre, St. Louis.

Milton Nobles is supporting Miss Lucille Western, at the New Park Theatre, Brooklyn. He played Archibald Carlyle in "East Lynne" on the 27th ult.

Dion Piatt is writing a play for Clara Morris. He always was essentially "emotional."

A London actor is chronicled as having given a "marvellous personification of a tree."

We have seen many an actor give a "marvellous personification" of a stick, but this actor has branched out, it seems.

Mr. E. L. Davenport will shortly make a tour of the New England cities.

Miss Alice Harrison was billed to appear at Columbus, Ohio, on the 26th ult.

Miss Eliza Neilson will play in Rochester on Feb. 9th.

Miss Maggie Mitchell was in St. Louis, Feb. 2.

The New York Critic of the 21st ult. says: A first-class curiosity exhibition is about to leave this city for San Francisco. We shall publish the names next week.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, supported by Mr. J. C. Collum, commenced an engagement at Mrs. W. B. Conway's Brooklyn Theatre, on Monday, Feb. 2.

Mr. Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand played an engagement of one week in Washington, commencing on the 26th ult.

Mr. Soltern is to commence an engagement at the Boston Theatre on the 16th. He is at present at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

"Parricide" was presented to a Philadelphia audience, at Mrs. John Drew's Arch Street Theatre, on the 26th ult.

Boucicault is due at Washington, D. C., on March 1st.

"Infanticide" is the cheerful title of a new drama that has been written for Miss Blanche De Bar. We suppose a "real, live baby" will be used.

Miss Laura Alberta is engaged, and will shortly appear at the Old Bowery Theatre in a new play, entitled "Passion."

Some of the members of the Lyceum Company engaged by Mr. Mansell, in England, are suing the alleged managers of the theatre for salaries unpaid.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ware, Quilter and Goodrich and Miss Mollie Wilson opened at the Theatre Comique, Toledo, O., Jan. 19.

Kearny and Moran, Miss Rosa Lee, and Cogill and Cooper were the new faces at the Vandeville Theatre, Louisville, Ky., on Jan. 19.

Herman Unthar, a man born without arms, and playing the violin with his feet, was the attraction at Ladner's Military Hall, Philadelphia.

At the Adelphi, Chicago, Ill., the opening company is to be as follows: Charles and Carrie Austin, Alex. Davis, the Reynolds Brothers, Billy Rice, Charley Howard, Leopold and Geraldine, the Leon Brothers, Jennie Morgan, Frankie Christie, the Vernon Sisters.

The Arcadian says: Nilsson has crossed swords with a Chicago editor, and, like St. Paul in his battle with sin, has come off more than conqueror. What is principally delightful in the newspaper accounts of the misunderstanding is the explanation, which it is said, Madame Nilsson made with regard to Capoul. Certain critic did not like the "pant" of Capoul, just as certain critics here (notorious nobodies of course) object to Mr. Parkes' pants. Upon the matter being referred to Madame Nilsson, that estimable lady and inestimable artiste is reported to have said: "There is an impression that his pant is dramatic intensity. It is not, I assure you. It is nature, mere nature. He can not breathe any other way. Do not credit that to his art. He cannot help it. It is constitutional." This is very sad. But then the tender sentiments of friendship that are proverbial between professional singers render it impossible that these little glimpses at truth should disturb the heaven-like serenity of the Strakosch opera troupe.

A Philadelphia journal gives the following as an extract from a play recently brought out there:

"You are, you are, my long lost chi-ild."

"Oh! save my chi-ild."

"Ha! ha! get a cake for the baby; yes, a cake for the baby; ha! ha! a cake for the baby; ha! ha!

"Where is me chi-i-ild?"

"Give me back me chi-i-ild."

"Monster, you have sul-sin me che-u-i-ild," etc., etc.

Mr. Daly advertises that he has purchased the sole right of producing Alexandre Dumas' successful drama of "Monsieur Alphonse."

The managers of the Lyceum Theatre, New York, say that they are trying to arrange for a speedy opening, with a burlesque troupe.

It is said that Mrs. John Wood has given Mr. Byron a thousand pounds for a new piece.

The Vokes family are to have four thousand dollars a week, gold, in Philadelphia.

Mr. Edwin Adams is reported to be ill and unable to fill a Cincinnati engagement.

Joe Murphy will appear at Buffalo, 9th, Albany 16th; Cincinnati 23d.

Miss Lizzie Price sends the following letter to the Clipper:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan 23, 1874

Frank Queen.—Dear Sir.—Having instituted legal proceedings against the Sunday Morning Times of this city for publishing my name in connection with a scandalous report of some papers denouncing Mr. Feehter's impated flight, I deemed it degrading to enter into any public controversy with the libelers except in a court of justice, and therefore resolved to keep silent until the trial came on; but the tone of your paper is so manly, and the desire to see the evil charge contradicted so kingly expressed, that I found myself bound to consider the appeal, and hereby give the broadcasted fallest denial to the calumnious assertions. My relation to Mr. Feehter was and is of an absolutely professional character. I was one of the powerful company selected to support him at the opening of his new Lyceum Theatre, from which we were all—manager, artistes and employees—bodily and disgracefully ejected on the eve of our first production by that too common, but irresistible agent, Allegimphs. Mr. Daly, hearing of the situation, offered Mr. Feehter the immediate chance of keeping his faith with the public by producing the announced "Monte Cristo" at the Grand Opera House, where I was included in the cast. It being the end of the season, and having no other engagement, I came here to my mother's home, and since June last I have not been in or near New York. This, I presume, is a sufficient answer to the accusation of my elopement from that city, and the libelous assertions thereon. By publishing this note in the columns of your paper the desired contradiction will be given, and you will oblige

Yours respectfully,
LIZZIE PRICE.

Frank Kerns' benefit at the Theatre Comique on the afternoon of the 29th ult. was quite successful, the benefit netting over 600 dollars.

In an account of the recent marriage of Willie Edouin and Alice Atherton, of the Lydia Thompson Troupe, at St. Louis, the Globe of that city says: "The marriage ceremony was simply and beautifully said. There was a delightful absence of all formality. The happy couple stood with downcast eyes in front of the clergyman, Mr. Colville, Miss Lydia and the rest standing without regard to order behind them. The big diamonds of Miss Lydia shone in the light of a chandelier like the great carbuncle of Hawthorne's tale. She stood wrapt in thought, with one eye in the fire—metaphorically, of course—and the other regarding the clergyman and her wards, who were making this new experiment of life. There was a little break in the proceedings when the ceremony was about half completed. A hurried confab showed that a paper quite essential to the ceremony had not been signed and was not ready. While they delayed, the half made bride and groom sat solemnly down, and it was thought each wiped away a tear. When Mr. Edouin said, 'I take thee, Alice,' his voice was tremulous; and when Miss Atherton said 'I take thee, William,' her voice was inaudible. The ceremony was over at last, and was most effectually done. Mr. Coan shook hands with the bride and groom: then Mr. Colville kissed the bride, and Miss Lydia, with tears in her eyes that vied with her diamonds, flung both arms around the neck of her favorite comedian, and kissed him in an elderly-sisterly way calculated to excite envy in the breast of the solitary spectator. Then all the ladies kissed the young husband, and all the other gentlemen kissed the bride, and all the ladies kissed each other."

Deadheads in France.

The deadhead is evidently not extinct in France. An editor whom he had importuned for theatre tickets, recently, gave him the following letter to the business manager of one of the principal theatres: "My dear friend:—I send to you a lunatic who has tormented me two hours for tickets; but beware of him, for he is very dangerous. His family usually keep him in charge of a faithful attendant, but to-day he has managed to escape. I think he is armed. Yours, etc." The unsuspecting D. H. presented this note at the theatre, and was astonished to find the manager brandish a chair, order him off, and roar for the fireman to bring the hose and give him a ducking. The victim went down stairs four steps at a time, and has ever since been profoundly amazed at the reception he met with.

Acquiring Reputation.

Wilkes' Spirit of the Times says:

Mr. J. P. Burnett had won great praise for his excellent personification of Bob Ratdes, a retired prize-fighter, in the farce of "B. B." at the San Francisco Opera House. The News-Letter and FIGARO both say that in this role he had made a hit, and that he should forever eschew light comedy and devote himself to character bits. San Francisco has developed more good actors than almost any other city in the country, and from reports, Burnett, who was regarded with no especial favor in New York, bids fair to return with a reputation as a character actor of great merit.

San Francisco is your only school for actors.

Virginia City Barber.

According to the Chronicle, of Virginia City, they have a very considerate barber over there. That paper says: A thoughtful barber up town, who cuts his kindlings with his razors, puts a sheet of court plaster on one shoulder of his victims and a piece of soft paper for wiping his razor on the other. If he tears up a patch of hide in hauling the dull razor through a stiff, wiry beard, he has his court plaster ready to paste on.

Letting Him Down.

A spread-eagle orator of New York State wanted the wings of a bird to fly over every village and hamlet in the broad land; but he wilted when a naughty boy in the crowd sang out: "You'd be shot for a goose before you'd flew a mile."

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

That Unpleasant Woman.

That very unpleasant woman, Olive Harper, was in print in the Alta yesterday. The last time we referred to her correspondence we commented on the amiable disposition she exhibited in keeping lodgings which she did not want because she was determined that a gentleman and his daughters who did want them should not have them. In the letter in yesterday's Alta she exhibits the same lovely spirit. She tells how she kept a paper which an English tourist ("an English snob", of course, all the Englishmen Olive Harper meets are "snobs,") wished to read. She says: "I didn't care two straws for the Times, for I think it the stupidist paper under the sun; but I would have died the death of a bedbug before he should have taken that paper. I kept it up before my face till my supper came, then deliberately folded it up and sat down upon it, after bestowing one fleeting glance of angelic sweetness upon the youth. When I had finished supper, I took it and putting it into my pocket, left them still there. About an hour after another waiter came into my room and asked for the Times. "'A gentleman wanted it.'" I said: "'Tell the gentleman I am extremely sorry, but I have not finished reading it yet, and probably shall not before morning.'" Why some one does not kill that woman we cannot imagine. She is traveling all over Europe in the delightful spirit which is evinced by her letters. All the men she meets are 'snobs' or "blackguards," all the women are detestable, and she "the representative of the great American Eagle," as she calls herself, is superior to all the people in Europe. The woman is really a greater nuisance than Sergeant Bates, and the worst of it is she is coming back to California.

A Dull Theatre.

The New York Clipper says: Henry Ward Beecher made his appearance at their Academy of Music on the evening of Jan. 21, lecturing upon "The Wastes and Burdens of Life." A full house greeted the Brooklyn divine. Besides the seats in the auditorium being occupied, chairs were placed upon the stage for those who did not mind paying the price, and being made conspicuous at the same time. As Henry's eyes wandered over the house, and took in the "sea of faces," we wondered whether he considered the price the people had paid to hear him could be set down as one of the "wastes of life, and whether the carrying home of the proceeds would be enumerated as one of the "burdens." Henry's audience was not dressy—black store-clothes for the men, and dark material for the women. One of the solid men entered—on his dexter flu hung a damsel possessed of great beauty and a fortune in her own right. He calmly surveyed the house—he was disgusted. "Dark as a dungeon," said he; "not an opera cloak in the house." Then he and his bee-yutiful chee-ild flopped down into their seats, and were lost in the general gloom.

Frothingham on the Theatre.

The Rev. O. B. Frothingham in a discourse delivered at Lyric Hall, New York, on the 10th ult., said, speaking of amusement: The Opera is one source, but it is too subtle and penetrating for amusement. It is for people in whose hearts no sorrows press. The opera was first introduced on the occasion of a marriage. It is not for the people, but for the aristocratic. There are no elements of popularity in it. Even if the prices were greatly reduced few of the working class would go. The great place of public amusement is the theatre. There is no person so poor or so stupid that he cannot enjoy it. It can touch every spring, present all kinds of ideal worlds, and fashions a great many Edens. It is one of the amusements of which men never tire.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

An Unfortunate Experiment.

Young Archibald Singerly, of Germantown, has been unfortunate. He read in one of the papers that "when the boys of Virginia City wish to raise their kites they tie the string to a dog's tail and make the animal run." It occurred to young Mr. Singerly that as this proceeding was conducted upon a sound, rational basis, he would experiment in the same direction. The difficulty encountered by Mr. Singerly at the outset was that he had an extremely large kite and a mournfully small dog; and the conclusion of the undertaking therefore may be anticipated, especially when we intimate that the wind was high. The residents of the neighborhood were surprised to see a dog rushing backward down the street, with considerable velocity, clawing and scratching at the earth for a hold, and emitting ejaculatory howls, as if he cherished a secret preference for going in another direction. And they were even more amazed to perceive that he seemed to be anchored to something in the heavens. But there was not time for investigation. In a moment a cyclone or something of the kind struck the kite, and before Archibald Singerly could utter a scream, his dog had performed about one-third of the journey to the milky way. It is supposed that the bird's eye view enjoyed by that animal must have been magnificent, embracing as it did Mount Airy, Conshocken, Savannah, St. Petersburg and Pekin, with numerous smaller towns and villages. But the precise amount of felicity obtained by Singerly's dog while dangling amid the planetary system will perhaps never be ascertained, unless Singerly meets his victim in a better world; for, as the kite came sailing down, the string caught on a vane of a church steeple, became tangled, and held Singerly's dog in permanent suspense. They tried to blow him loose with a shot-gun, and they succeeded in producing a shower of sausage meat after each discharge, but when the dog had all been shot away, his tail remained pointing due north and refused to come down. Any one who has a good dog can hear of something to his advantage by applying at Singerly's. Old Mr. Singerly would prefer a bob-tailed dog.

Be Cheerful.

Emerson says: 'Do not hang a dismal picture on the wall, and do not deal with sables and gloom in your conversation.' Beecher follows with: 'Away with these fellows who go howling through life and all the while passing for birds of paradise. He that cannot laugh and be gay should look well to himself. He should fast and pray until his face breaks forth into light.' Talmage then takes up the strain: 'Some people have an idea that they comfort the afflicted when they groan over them. Don't drive a hearse through a man's soul. When you bind up a broken bone of the soul, and you want splints, do not make them of cast-iron.' After such counselings and admonitions, lay aside your long faces.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

A very attractive entertainment will be presented at this house to-night. It will commence with (by permision of the author) Dion Boucicault's charming two-act comedy of "Andy Blake," in which Miss Jennie Lee will appear in the title role, and J. P. Barnett will assume the character of General Daly. Professor O'Reardon will follow in his performance on the "Tumbleronicon" and after this, Virginia Gabriel's operetta entitled "Widows Bewitched" will be presented by Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, John Howson and Mrs. Julia Melville. In the course of the operetta Miss Susan Galton will introduce "The Skylark" by Sir Jules Benedict.

California Theatre.

To-night, Miss Katharine Rogers will appear as Margaret Elmore in Lovell's five-act play of "Love's Sacrifice." Henry Edwards will play Matthew Elmore, and John Wilson Paul Lafont, and Miss Ellie Wilton will appear in the character of Hermine. The full cast is published on our first page. Miss Rogers' engagement is for only six nights more; those who do not visit the California Theatre during this period, will miss the opportunity of seeing one of the finest actresses who ever trod the boards.

Alhambra Theatre.

The present week is the last of the engagement of the Siegrist Troupe, and their wonderful dogs. The wonderful Girards will appear nightly in "Legmania" accompanied by a double orchestra, Welch and Rice as "The Mulcahy Twins," Con T. Murphy and Billy Sweetnam as "Actor vs. Novice', Geo S. Knight in his amusing specialties, and the performance will conclude with Manning's specialty entitled "Open on Sunday."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The multitude of attractions at this sumptuously fitted-up hippodrome, have the effect of drawing crowds thither every night. Wooda Cook the somersault rider, Leon and Lascelle, "the flying men of the air," Fred O'Brien the wonderful leaper, and the beautiful and graceful Senorita Millie Tournour, are all great favorites with the public.

Bella Union.

Ed. Murray and Miss Alice Rose in "Barney's Courtship," Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers, and others in "The Police Court," Ed. Murray in his "Budget of Fun," Moore and Bray in song and dance, Cassim and Fritz in a great gymnastic act, and many other attractions will be presented at this house to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Pawnbroker in Trouble," "He Walks in His Sleep," Mortimore's sketches, "Handy Andy," "Woman's Trials; or, Virtue Triumphant" are among the features of the performance to be given at this house to-night.

Notes.

The new season of opera at the California Theatre opened brilliantly last night. "Lucia Di Lammermoor" was performed to a large and fashionable audience. Madame Inez Fabbri won much applause for her rendition of the title role, and was great in the mad scene, Signor Baccei as Arturo, and Signor Orlandini as Henry Ashton, performed their respective roles well, and altogether the performance was highly successful.

John McCullough will return to this city from Salt Lake on Wednesday, and will make his reappearance at the California Theatre on Monday next, as Spartacus in "The Gladiator."

Madame Anna Bishop will leave for Sydney, on the 28th inst.

The following telegram was received on Saturday afternoon. It speaks well for San Jose:

SAN JOSE Cal., February 7, 1874.

TO FIGARO: Templetons opened Thursday, to six hundred, second night nearly same, matinee to-day largest ever in the building. How are you San Jose. H. A. DELACY.

The Templeton Troupe are to perform three nights more, to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The glorious weather of yesterday brought out hundreds of teams on the Cliff House road. The attendants at the Cliff House and the Villa, had their hands full to accommodate their numerous visitors.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a rush of visitors at these beautiful gardens yesterday, to see the sea lions, the aquarium, and the many attractions there.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-t

G'EST, L'AMOUR.

I once adored an Emma Jones;
I once adored a Jessie;
I whispered once in lover's tones
Soft nothings to an Effie.

I worshiped once a Lucy Ann;
I worshiped once a Matti:
I also loved a girl called Fan,
And somebody called Hattie.

Lily and Julie, Poll and Kate
I fancy I have courted;
In short, I've been compelled by fate
To love a lot, assorted.

I found in this old desk a glove,
Affection's treasured relic;
The hand that wore it was a love—
A "six," and quite angelic.

A skeleton at once starts out
From memory's dim closet:
But till I'm troubled with a doubt—
Confound it all! who was it?

Wilkie Collins and Charles Dickens.

A New York letter writer says: Wilkie Collins, who stops at the Westminster Hotel when he is in New York—which is a good share of the time—occupies the suite of rooms set apart for Charles Dickens. They consist of a parlor, bed room and bath room on the second floor. The book case is filled with small hand volumes in paper covers. A silver dish of cold roast beef rests on the sideboard. "Mr. Collins is a queer sort of a man," said the gentlemanly proprietor of the Westminster. "He takes most of his meals in his room, but I have seen him in the public restaurant a few times. He always wishes the servant to leave a plate of roast beef, as you see there, so that he can take a lunch of it when he comes in from a walk." The desk Mr. Dickens used stands in front of the window. It is very plain, with drawers at one corner, and a light railing across the top at the rear. When Mr. Collins was told that Mr. Dickens wrote at it he seemed quite overcome with emotion. It is said that Mr. Dickens always kept a small hand glass on this desk, into which he looked every ten minutes when engaged in writing. It is supposed he was engaged in watching the color of his face and the swelling of the veins on his temples, that he might judge when he was working too much, and stop in time to prevent serious disturbances. There is little doubt but Mr. Dickens was conscious of the form of disease in which death would cut him off, and he made great efforts to avert the fatal stroke as long as possible.

Hard Sledding.

A good brother in a Baptist Church of Miami county, Indiana, while giving his experience, not long ago, said: 'Bretherin' I've been a tryin' this nigh onto forty years to serve the Lord and get rich both at once, and I tell yer it's mighty hard sleddin'.'

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line, Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1t

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2o

Pleasant.

An exchange thus amplifies the old copy book maxim "Virtue is its own reward."

Virtue has this happiness—that she can subsist on herself, and knows how to exist without admirers, partisans, and protectors; want of assistance and approbation does not only not affect her, but preserves, purifies, and renders her more perfect.

Virtue has a nice time of it sometimes subsisting on herself while people sneer at her as a fool. She flourishes in Congress, and grows fat in the Legislature at Sacramento. It is a pity that virtue does not enjoy more of the good things of life. We don't think it would hurt her much. Goodness is happiness, there is no doubt about that, but good people should be allowed a full share of all the good things of life. This at present is not the rule.

Amiability.

Some philosopher says: "After all, the truest beauty is not that which suddenly dazzles and fascinates, but that which steals upon us insensibly. Let us call up from memory the faces that have been the most pleasant to us—those that we have loved best to look upon, that now rise most vividly before us in solitude, and oftenest haunt our slumbers—and we usually find them not the most perfect in form, but the sweetest in expression."

A Pleasing Conundrum.

"Mary," said John Henry, as he reclined in the arms of his loving sweetheart, "can you tell me why my head at present is like what I was last night?" "No, my dear, why is it?" "Because," murmured John Henry, absently, "it is on a bust." The resemblance was not discernible the next moment.

Number One.

Said Lord John Russell to Hume at a social dinner, "What do you consider the object of legislation?" "The greatest good to the greatest number." "What do you consider the greatest number?" continued his lordship. "Number one, my lord," was the commoner's prompt reply.

Rather Weak.

A young man who had a light incipient moustache, one day, while fingering the few hairs, said to Harry: "Hadn't I better dye this moustache?" "Oh, no!" replied Harry, "let it alone, and it will die itself."

'Now, my little boys and girls,' said a teacher, 'I want you to be very still, so still that you can hear a pin drop.' In a moment all was silent, when a little boy shrieked out, 'Let her drop."

Passion makes the best observations and the most wretched conclusions. It is a telescope whose field is so much the brighter as it is narrower.—Richter.

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News of Saturday.]

There is no people to excel the American in standing around.

The seat of the Chief Justice has been long in filling, yet it was easy to Waite.

Among the conversions accomplished in the late Redding revival was that of a man who had been a coal dealer for fifteen years.

If there is anything pleasanter than to see a runaway horse go away from the driver, it is to see the driver go for him.

Nature provides no reserved seats for the rich and daintily reared. When there is ice on the pavement, they sit where they can.

A horse fell dead in Brookfield, Friday. He ought to have come to Danbury to do it. A horse might fall dead here forty times, and not hurt himself, the mud is so deep.

Any boy can learn to chew tobacco by being hopeful and persevering; but unless his hips are fully developed, he cannot wear pants without suspenders and have his shirt form jauntily out over the top.

After Agassiz had published the statement that fish food was peculiarly appropriate for brain workers, he was compelled to give up accepting invitations out to dine, as scarcely anything but fish was offered him.

A call to start a society for the study of science was responded to by five persons. The next morning sixty-seven persons were standing in front of the Wooster House wholly absorbed in watching two men set a hitching-post.

"If you are a temperance man, don't wan't you; if you are a 'temperate' man I'll give you work." This was the reply of one of our citizens the other day who knew the distinctions of words, to an applicant for work who called himself a "temperate" man.

A fond New York mother, growing sadly reflective, the other day, said to her little daughter whom she was fondling in her lap, "Who will take my little girl in their arms when mamma is gone?" "Why, policemen, mama," answered the precocious child.

The St. Albans (Vt.) Satirist gives the following invitation and pleasant promise: "Search this paper from beginning to end, you will find nothing profane or vulgar, nor nothing about politics, railroads, and religion. We defy any one to find fault with it; if they do, they will get h— in the next."

A Good Example.

There is a story of Judge Grier, which everybody delights in, how he set aside the unjust verdict of a jury against an unpopular man, with this remark. "Enter the verdict, Mr. Clerk. Enter, also, 'set aside by the court.' I want it to be understood that it takes thirteen men to steal a man's farm in this court."

A Hibernicism.

At a crowded lecture the other evening, a young lady standing at the door of the church, was addressed by an honest Hibernian, who was in attendance on the occasion: "Indade, Miss, I should be glad to give you a seat, but the empty ones are all full."

Here is the latest description of a kiss. 'Twas night. A couple stood in the pale, cold moonbeams Their lips touched, and there was a sound like a cow hauling her hoof out of the mud.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. R. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. s

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1s

Life of Edwin Forrest.

The life of this distinguished actor, with Reminiscences and Personal Recollections of him by James Rees (Colley Cibber), will be published next week. Perhaps no man in the country was as well fitted for this task as Mr. Rees. His acquaintance with Mr. Forrest dated from boyhood, and Mr. Rees had enjoyed for a period of nearly fifty years the closest intimacy and friendship with Mr. Forrest, which gave Mr. Rees advantages not possessed by any others, to write a truthful and correct history of the great actor, from the time of his birth until his death. On almost every occasion when Mr. Forrest was called upon for a sketch of his life to accompany any work, play, or book of the drama, he invariably referred to Mr. Rees, "as being," he said, "better acquainted with his early life, and remembering incidents about him much better than he did himself." In the latter part of Mr. Forrest's life, Mr. Rees was his constant companion, and no one, perhaps, had as many advantages to become acquainted with Mr. Forrest's professional career, or with the various phases of his character in private life, as Mr. Rees. The advantages were the result of the confidence Mr. Forrest placed in Mr. Rees. When Mr. Forrest was absent from the city, he intrusted his house, his library, his picture gallery, and all their valuable contents, to the charge of Mr. Rees, with money to defray all the current household and other necessary expenses. Mr. Rees had the sole use of Mr. Forrest's library during his absence, and the privilege of introducing his friends to view both it and the picture gallery. All can thus understand the personal relationship which existed between the subject of this work and its author, and also the motive he had in its composition—a tribute to the memory of one with whose name a nation is so familiar. Messrs. T. B. Peterson & Brothers, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, are the publishers of the work, and it is gotten up in very handsome style, in a volume of over five hundred pages, printed on the finest paper, and handsomely bound. Every copy contains a striking likeness of Mr. Forrest, engraved on steel, perfectly natural and life-like, as well as a fac-simile of his autograph, with his last Will in full, and the charter of the "Edwin Forrest Home," which he endowed. Price Two Dollars a copy. Copies of the work will be sent, at once, post-paid, to any one, to any place, on their remitting the price to the publishers. Agents and canvassers are wanted everywhere to engage in the sale of "Colley Cibber's Life of Edwin Forrest," who can make large wages at it. Address all orders and letters to the Publishers.

Soothing.

Mr. Charles Marble had the toothache, last week. A friend advised him to use creosote. He went to a drug store and bought some. He took a mouthful. His toothache stopped instantly. He is in doubt now whether it is more painful to have your mouth full of burn blisters or to have an old-fashioned toothache. There won't be any doubt on his friend's mind, the first time he meets him, as to how deftly he can hit from the shoulder.

Do not run in debt to the shoemaker. It is unpleasant to be unable to say your sole is your own.

A writer wishes to know why people always spell finis without an h.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that;
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The performance of Lovell's five-act play of "Love's Sacrifice" with Miss Katharine Rogers in the character of Margaret Elmore, drew a large and fashionable audience last night. Miss Rogers vividly portrayed the heroine's devotion to her father, love for her affianced, and hatred for the wretch who sought her hand as the price of her father's safety. Her acting in some portions of the play was characterized by a tragic intensity which perfectly startled the audience. Henry Edwards displayed considerable power in the character of Matthew Elmore, E. J. Buckley read and acted the part of Eugene De Lorme very well indeed, and John Wilson as the villainous Paul Lafont won for that character the detestation of all present. Miss Ellie Wilton played the role of Hermine with much spirit, and W. A. Mestayer gave an excellent impersonation of St. Lo. W. Barry did a capital bit of comedy acting as Jean Rose, and the love-making scene between him and Mrs. Saunders, who played Manon, was very amusing. To-night Miss Rogers will appear as Julia in "The Hunchback." The full cast appears on our first page. It is certainly a strong one and full justice will be done Sheridan Knowles' great work. To-morrow evening "Pygmalion and Galatea" will be played.

Alhambra Theatre.

The wonderful Girards, George S. Knight, Welch and Rice, Billy Sweetnam, Billy Manning, the Siegrists and their dogs, and the others who make up the great combination known as Maguire's California Minstrels, draw immense audiences. The programme for this evening, which appears on our first page, delighted all present last night.

Opera House.

A delightful entertainment was given at this house last night, and it was enjoyed by one of the largest audiences of the season. It commenced with Boucicault's charming comedy of "Andy Blake," in which Miss Jennie Lee as the hero was exceedingly clever, giving one of the best representations of the spirited young Irishman ever presented on the San Francisco stage. J. P. Burnett did some clever acting as General Daly, H. D. Thompson was very amusing as the Irish schoolmaster, and the piece was well played throughout. After this, Professor O'Reardon gave his ever-popular performance on the Tambleronicon, and then came for the first time Virginia Gabriel's operetta entitled "Widows Bewitched." This is one of the most charming operatic compositions ever presented on the stage. It is full of delicious music and the airs, duets and concerted pieces show off the vocal ability and beautiful voices of Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher and Miss Julia Melville to better advantage than anything in which they have appeared for some time past. The plot is simple enough, the Marquise de Montaubry (Miss Susan Galton), and the Countess De Berg (Mrs. Julia Melville), tired of the Court of Versailles, seek the retirement of the country. They are followed to their retreat by two gentlemen of the Court, De Fremont (Alfred Kelleher) disguised as Professor Parabole, and D'Albert (John Howson), disguised as the Abbe Dufort. The operetta opens with a very pretty duet by the ladies, after this John Howson sings recitative, Alfred Kelleher delighted the audience with a charming song "Love has Gone a Maying," and then he and Miss Susan Galton sang a beautiful ballad. Miss Galton next introduced "The Skylark," which drew immense applause, and an encore, in response to which she gave a charming ballad. All engaged in the representation of the operetta sang and acted splendidly, chorus entitled "The Merry go Around" was received with much favor. "Widows Bewitched" is a great success, and should crowd the Opera House with lovers of music every evening.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

This luxuriously fitted-up place of amusement is nightly crowded. The Ducrow Brothers, Fred O'Brien, Leon and Laiscelles, Miss Adelaide, Miss Helen Cook, Senorita Millie Turnour and many other stars of the arena appear in a brilliant programme. Master Johnny Cook, the boy rider, is a great favorite with all who witness his wonderful hurdle act.

Bella Union.

Cassim and Fritz in the gymnastic act entitled "Les Chaise," Ed. Murray in his "Budget of Fun," and with Miss Alice Ross in "Barney's Courtship," Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers and others in various specialties, will afford a rich entertainment to all who visit this house to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

Walter Parks, Hughey Morten, George Fester, Harry Bovoy, Frank Mortimore and others in acts. Miss Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, Miss Lizzie Harmon in comic songs, and a great many other artistes in favorite specialties, will appear at this house to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a rush of visitors at these beautiful gardens yesterday, to see the sea lions, the aquarium, and the many attractions there.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11r

H. Peyser, 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, to enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11r

PLEASING EVERYBODY.

A haggard, pale and wretched man
Once I met,
Which from that day to this I can
Ne'er forget;
Clothed in a garb of sundry dyes,
Out in every shape and size—
Low and plaintive were his cries—
Shunning everybody.

"Friend," said I, "pray tell to me
All thy woes!
Surely I would comfort thee
At life's close."
"Ah," said he, "the die is cast—
All my cheerful hopes are past;
Now I must give up at last
Pleasing everybody.

"When I first began my labors,"
Said the man,
"Than to try and please my neighbors
I began;
But I've led a sorry race—
Owning now no resting place,
Save the short six feet of space
Due to everybody.

"If you try to please mankind
As you go,
Plenty of labor you will find
Here below.
First a hit and then a miss,
Sometimes no and sometimes yes—
A little of that, a little of this,
Pleasing everybody.

"Should the world declare you wrong,
Never heed;
If your cause is true and strong,
Sow your seed.
On life's stage act well your part,
Serve your God with honest heart;
But give over, from the start,
Pleasing everybody."

Early Marriages.

Early marriages are not by any means invariably happy ones, though truth compels us to admit that we have known brilliant exceptions. "She stood beside the altar when she was but sixteen. She was in love; her destiny rested on a creature as delicate as herself. She looked lovely as she pronounced the vow. Think of a vow from auburn hair, eyes, and pouting lips, only sixteen years old! She stood by the washtub when her twenty-fifth birthday arrived. The hair, the eyes, the lips were not calculated to excite the heart. Five cross young ones were rolling on the floor, some crying, some breaking things, and one urging the necessity of an immediate supply of the lacteal secretion. She stopped in despair and sat down, and tears trickled down her once plump and ruddy cheek. Alas, Cora, early marriages are not just the rosy thing they look to be. Better enjoy youth at home, and hold lover at a proper distance until you have muscle, limb, and heart enough to face a frowning world and family. If your 'Clanny' really cares for you he can wait two or three years, make lots of presents, take you to concerts, and so on until the time comes. Early marriages and early cabbages are tender productions."

From one tooth to a full upper set, from $5 to $20. Filling reasonable. By Dr. Crowell, D. D. S., No. 30 Kearny street, near Market. 2-J

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. P. Bunker's 74 and 76 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2c

Unpleasant Prospect.

A patent medicine advertisement says: "this article will cure rheumatism of nineteen years standing." As far as it goes, this is perfectly satisfactory, but we want light upon another view of the matter. Suppose a man's rheumatism is only of three years standing, must he let it stand for sixteen years more before the medicine will cure it? Or if it has stood for twenty years is there no hope of a remedy? We want to know about this. It is going to be unpleasant for a man to endure rheumatism for seventeen or eighteen years before he can take a medicine for it.

Snubbed.

One of those irrepressible bores who profess to know every literary man in London, met a well-known writer for the press the other day and claimed acquaintanceship. "We supped together one night last Christmas," said he—"if you remember, there was a stuffed turkey." "I remember the turkey very well, but I cannot say that I remember you," was the cutting reply.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

IN HIS WONDERFUL TUMBLERONICAN PERFORMANCE.

But a faint conception can be had of the delicious music produced by his extraordinary manipulation of an ordinary set of drinking glasses, whereon he introduces as many octaves as most elaborate piano-fortes. Still more extraordinary, with one hand he will play an accompaniment on the piano, and again, he will execute one tune upon that instrument and another upon the tumblers, closing the performance with a yet third distinct whistling air.

The Blundering Bulletin.

The Bulletin is making a very clumsy fight against the Chronicle. In an article accusing the Chronicle of "menacing business" it says:

Now, with another case in point, we will nail the Chronicle's carbonous ears to the wall. In the Sunday edition of that sheet, in which the charge of menacing business was stoutly denied, and a batch of certificates published to back the denial—a poetical screed appears under the caption of "Oleomargarine." This doggerel was probably written in the Chronicle office; at any rate it appears as original. Every one of its twelve stanzas contains a libel and a malicious falsehood designed to injure the business of a company who have invested a large capital and are giving employment to a large number of men.

The amusing doggerel in question, was written by "Su Donim" for the Golden Era, about three months ago, was republished in FIGARO, went East, and was clipped from some Eastern paper by the Chronicle people. As the Oleomargarine company is dissolved, and dead, we dont see where the "malicious" falsehood comes in. This is a very weak style of warfare.

More Advice For Mr. Burnett.

The New York Dispatch says: A San Francisco paper advises Mr. J. P. Burnett to eschew light comedy, and apply himself to character acting. We sincerely trust Mr. Burnett will not adopt the advice, as we have too few good light comedians on the American stage to spare even one of them. No better specimen of good light comedy acting has been seen on the New York stage than Mr. Burnett's Frank Goldsworth in "Kind to a Fault," at Union Square Theatre two seasons ago, and his Viscount Lynton in "Atherly Court," at the same theatre, could not be surpassed. Mr. Burnett enjoyed an excellent reputation in this city as a finished light comedian, and has few if any superiors in that line.

Comforting Reflection.

A country editor says: "It is pleasant to contemplate upon the fact, as we sit shivering by our empty stove, that many of our delinquent subscribers are enjoying the delights of home comforts and good hot fires. It is still more pleasant to feel that they will enjoy even hotter fires hereafter."

New Music.

Sherman & Hyde have published the "Oh, Nicodemus Schottische," by H. M. Bosworth. Charles S. Eaton has published "O Love of Mine," words by Thomas Newcomb, music by Carmini Morley. We wonder what Mine Thomas is so sweet on?

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

A Coming Dramatic Sensation.

The New York Spirit of the Times says: There is in the United States a benevolent organization known as the Actors' Order of Friendship. It originated many years ago in Philadelphia, when those in the profession who are now its "bright particular stars" were comparatively unknown and struggling with the dubious prospects of the stock actor. Sothern was a mere boy, Jefferson was scarcely known, and Charlotte Cushman was playing for $18 a week. Barney Williams had not begun his public career, and many others now famous in stage annals had not yet reached the dignity of a "line in the bills." Nearly all the prominent American actors of the day are members, and its benefices reach far and wide. By force of circumstances merely, Philadelphia is still its central point. Under the auspices of this society it is proposed to present one of the best of the old English comedies with the most distinguished artists now in America in the cast. An independent committee shall be selected to cast the piece, doing that work impartially and without the least favoritism. There shall be a pledge that no professional jealousy shall be allowed to influence any lady or gentleman in the cast, but that all shall strive either for the humblest part in the play. That, however, must be left entirely to the judgment of the committee. We are not just now able to give a list of all who will appear on that occasion, but it will include E. A. Sothern, Charlotte Cushman, Edwin Booth, E. L. Davenport, Janauschek, Lawrence Barrett, Joseph Jefferson, Barney Williams, Miss Neilson and Lester Wallack. Neither the time nor the place has been definitely determined, but it will occur between the 7th and 15th of March, either in New York or Philadelphia.

An Important Discovery.

Bailey, of the Danbury News, has made an important discovery which he gives to the world in the following paragraph: The wind is governed by atmospheric changes and coal-ashes. We don't know, positively, which has the greater influence, but we are inclined to stake our all on coal-ashes. We do not believe that all the atmosphere about us can control the wind to the degree that one hod of coal-ashes can when passing through a sieve in the hands of a man who has got his best suit of clothes on. We remember an occasion, when the wind was blowing direct from the west, and had been blowing from that direction all day, and bid fair to blow straight from that direction as long as there was any direction left, that a man (whose name we need not mention), dressed in his best suit of clothes, and with pomade on his hair, stood on the west side of a sieve of coal-ashes, and undertook to screen them. We remember, too, and we remember it with a vividness that is quite remarkable—that when he had gyrated that sieve about three times, that western gale veered around to the east with such appalling promptness, that before he could make the slightest move to save himself, he had disappeared—Sunday clothes, pomade, and all—in a blinding cloud of ashes, out of which immediately emerged the most extraordinary wheezing, sneezing, and coughing ever heard in that neighborhood. One sieve full of coal-ashes, with the operator dressed for church, has been known to change the wind to thirty-two points of the compass.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Taming a Shrew.

We can't all be masters, or all masters followed. Hezekiah Perkins had married Melissa Smith, and they had gone to housekeeping only a few days ago.

He went to the theatre and saw "Taming the Shrew." He was infatuated; he said to himself:

"By the great Christopher, if she gets at all unruly, I'll fix her; I'll be so ugly she'll cave very soon."

So he went home with Katharine in his mind; for he knew Melissa was very boisterous sometimes, and given to tantrums if she did not have her own way.

The next evening the fond pair had a spat over his being late, she complaining the supper was spoiled.

What did he do but go to the window and heave it all out, at the same time displaying a state of frenzy that was surprising.

She was not Katherine, it was evident, and she hurried to her mother and told her the whole story.

Mothers-in-law are dangerous persons to trifle with. The old lady, who is prepared to fight it out at all times, was riled. She and Melissa went right back, and when they reached the house Melissa wilted, but the mother did not—she is not a wilter. She addressed Hezekiah with a pathos that was thrilling and effective:

"You rascal, you think you can insult my daughter, and make a slave of her; she's too good for you, you brute. You didn't take her to misuse, disgrace and starve her, and come home and abuse her, you good-for-nothing hound, you."

Hardly had the old woman got warmed up when the father and two big brothers came in, the latter prepared to settle it by the manly art of self-defense.

Hezekiah saw his error, and made up by promising to behave like a man in future.

He thinks taming a modern shrew a complete failure.

Collamore's Mistake.

We have already mentioned that old Mr. Collamore, who goes to our church, is very deaf. Last Sunday, in the midst of the service, Mr. Hoff, who sits immediately behind Mr. Collamore, saw a spider walking up the latter's bald head. His first impulse was to nudge him and tell him about it; but he remembered that Collamore was deaf; so he lifted up his hand and brushed the spider off. Hoff didn't aim quite high enough, and consequently, in his nervousness, he hit Collamore quite a severe blow: the old man turned around in a rage to see who had dared take such a liberty with him, and Hoff began to explain with gestures the cause of the occurrence. But Collamore, in a loud voice, demanded what he meant. It was very painful for Hoff. The eyes of the whole congregation were upon him, and he grew red in the face, and in desperation exclaimed:

"There was a spider on your head."

"A white place on my head, hey? S'pose there is, what's that to you," said Collamore. "You'll know what it is to be baldheaded yourself, some day."

"It was a spider," shrieked Hoff, while the congregation smiled and the perspiration began to roll off his face.

"Certainly it's wider," said Collamore, "and it's got more in it than yours. But you let it alone—do you mind? You let my head alone in church."

"Mr. Collamore," shrieked Hoff, "there was a bug on your head, and I brushed it off—this way."

And Hoff made another gesture at Collamore's head.

The old man thought he was going to fight him then and there, and hurling his hymn-book at Hoff, he seized the kneeling-stool on the floor of the pew, and was about to harg Mr. Hoff, when the sexton interfered. An explanation was written on a fly leaf of the hymn-book, whereupon Mr. Collamore apologized in a boisterous voice, and resumed his seat. Then the services proceeded. They think of asking Mr. Collamore to worship elsewhere.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen:
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The Girards in their great act, Welsh and Rice as the "Mulcahy Twins," George S. Knight in his original songs and sayings, the great Siegrist troupe, Con T. Murphy and Billy Sweatnam in "Actor vs. Novice;" and Billy Manning and others in the screaming farce of "Open on Sunday" make a bill hard to beat.

Opera House.

The entertainment presented at this house is drawing audiences composed our of best citizens. The operetta of "Widows Bewitched" is pronounced by all who have heard it one of the most charming things of the kind ever produced here. Miss Jennie Lee has made a great success in the character of "Andy Blake" in Boucicault's play of that name, and is ably supported by J. P. Burnett, H. D. Thompson and others. Miss Susan Galton's execution of "The Skylark", in the course of the operetta of "Widows Bewitched," is of itself worth the price of admission to the Opera House.

California Theatre.

"The Hunchback" was performed before a large audience last night. Miss Katharine Rogers presented one of the best renditions of the character of Julia ever witnessed on the California stage, Henry Edwards was of course excellent as Master Walter, Lewis Morrison was a very good Sir Thomas Clifford, Miss Ellie Wilton as Lucy Lobing Helen, W. A. Mestayer a pleasing Master Modus, and W. Barry an excellent Father. To night, Gilbert's delightful mythological comedy of "Pygmalion and Galatea" will be presented, with Miss Katharine Rogers as Galatea. The beauty of Miss Rogers' poses, in "Leah," and in "Julia," proved to all who witnessed them, her adaptability for the role of the statue bride. Miss Ellie Wilton will appear in her original role of Cynisca, Lewis Morrison as Pygmalion, and J. C. Williamson as Chryses. The full cast appears on our first page. To-morrow night, in consequence of its great success, "Leah, the Forsaken" will be played once more.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

A very attractive programme will be presented at the matinee to-day and again this evening. Senorita Tourneur, Miss Helen Cook, Fred O'Brien, Master Johnny Cook and all the stars will appear on each of these occasions. The Palace Amphitheatre is one of the most comfortable places of amusement in this city, and is constructed so as to be thoroughly weather-proof. Even the roof is built of tongued and grooved lumber and afterwards shingled over. There need be no apprehension that the winds or rain will ever affect its visitors any more than if they were within the walls of the California Theatre.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cassim and Fritz in gymnastic acts, Moore and Hoey in song and dance, Ed Murray in his "Budget of Fun," Miss Alice Rose in serio-comic songs, and with Mr. Murray in "Barney's Courtship," Miss Jennie Johnson and J. W. Summers in the "Police Court," and a great variety of attractions will be offered this evening.

Buckley's Varieties.

Mortimore in sket Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, Miss Maggie Brower in dances, and many others present popular specialties, besides the acts of "He Walks in His Sleep," "Handy Andy," and the pantomime of "The Dumb Girl of Genoa," which winds up the performances.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a rush of visitors at these beautiful gardens yesterday, to see the sea lions, the aquarium, and the many attractions there.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

LONGING.

BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

Of all the myriad moods of mind
That through the soul come thronging,
Which one we'd ever so dear, so kind,
So beautiful, as longing?
The thing we long for, that we are
For one transcendent moment,
Before the present poor and bare
Can make its sneering comment.

Still, through our paltry stir and strife,
Glows down the wished ideal,
And longing molds in clay what life
Carves on the marble Real;
To let the new life in we know
Desire must ope the portal;
Perhaps the longing to be so
Helps make the soul immortal.

Longing is God's fresh heavenward will
With our poor earthward striving;
We quench it that we may be still
Content with merely living;
But would we learn that heart's full scope
Which we are hourly wronging,
Our lives must climb from hope to hope,
And realize our longing.

Ah! let us hope that to our praise
Good God not only reckons
The moments when we tread His ways,
But when the spirit beckons,
That some slight good is also wrought
Beyond self-satisfaction,
When we are simply good in thought,
Howe'er we fail in action.

Musical Plagiarism.

Oscar Mayo, has a good article in the Tripod, published at Evansville, Ill., from which we take the following: Americans are the most musical people on the globe! In support of this proposition I need only mention the general prevalence of the pursuit of music in some form by thousands here to a dozen elsewhere, even in Germany. It must be stated, however, that the standard of excellence there, is a higher one; scores of musical guns of immense callibre, carrying heavy shot, there,—millions of little pop guns, carrying paper pellets, (but whose aggregate in one sense outweighs the other,) here. An intense activity, there being money in it, during the last twenty years has made wonderful strides, and there is no telling where it will land in the next decade. To the masses everything is new and they are easily pleased. There is Smith who made money by writing the song "Kittie Clyde," Brown can do that too, so he wrote "Kittie Clyde's Sister," then comes Jones with an "Answer to Kittie Clyde," and some one else fetches up the rear with a mother or two. Plagiarism is the order of the day.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. P. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2o

Human Hair.

French Manners.

A recent writer on French manners observes: It is one of the highest merits of the system that it tacitly lays down the principle that all persons meeting in the same house know each other without the formality of an introduction. Any man may ask a girl to dance, or may speak to anybody at a private party. Another merit of French manners is the general absence of mauraise honte. If a boy drops his book at church he picks it up without blushing. A French woman takes off her bonnet and arranges her hair before the glass in a railway waiting-room, without a thought of the presence of bystanders. In her eyes all such things are so natural, so much a matter of course, that it never occurs to her to make any fuss about them.

Natural History.

The New York World, in its summary of market quotations, says "hogs were slow, and sheep were dull, with a downward look." These facts in natural history cannot be too often nor too strongly impressed on the plastic youthful mind.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

The Natural Sequence.

After a man or woman has become notorious, the next step is to turn the notoriety to profitable account. Mrs. Laura D. Fair attempted this, but failed. She found notoriety and popularity were not synonymous terms. Benjamin Napthaly has become notorious, and he too, we hear, intends to make money out of his notoriety by delivering a lecture at Pacific Hall next week on "The Sensational Press." Some people may go to hear him. They will be the same sort of people who would go to hear a convict lecture on prisons. Of course Napthaly knows all about the "Sensational Press," but the subject is not a pleasant one. However, if he chooses to turn State's evidence the public may be the gainers.

Wants to Discount It.

Gen. A. M. Winn, the editor of the Senate and Shop, of this city, has petitioned the Legislature to reimburse him some eighteen thousand dollars, expended in caring for the sick and needy, in the years 1848-9, while filling the office of Mayor of Sacramento.

Of course, when General Winn laid out that money in comforting his sick and afflicted fellow-creatures, he intended to wait for his reward in Heaven. If he chooses to discount his heavenly reward, and the Legislature are soft enough to give him eighteen thousand dollars to waste on the Senate and Shop, we have nothing to say against it.

A Profitable Business.

Claude DeHaven, who informs the world that he is amusement editor of the New York Critic, and sends his likeness to all subscribers, in his notice of the Coliseum, says:

Seated in the "Whispering Alcove" was an aged man, with a white beard, rotating a paper wheel with a short string, giving a diversified appearance to its revolutions, and selling them for a dollar apiece.

We don't believe the panic has hurt New York much, when a man can get his living by turning a wheel and selling its revolutions at a dollar apiece.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemany treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine." Geo. Collin, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to beat the silver raffle every Saturday evening. 12bh

Asa L Waugaman's New Saloon,

Corner of Halleck and Leidesdorff streets. Large and commodious saloon centrally located, with ante-rooms, supplied with the best brands of Liquors and Cigars; bountiful hot lunch—his great specialty—served from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., and a cold lunch afterwards. Drop in and "be satisfied." 12bh

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Advertising.

How our great-great-great-great grandfathers and grandmothers got along without newspapers, is a mystery to us. Now-a-days, a man to "succeed" in life must obtain notoriety through the public prints. Even the women and children are advertised. When a school examination takes place in San Francisco, the composition of Nettie Smith or Billy Higgins, is reproduced in the Alta, Call or Bulletin, and the personal appearance of the author is described. Little Miss Comstock gives a juvenile party, and the names of the children are published to the world with reportorial comments on their dress and features. Miss Grundy, of the Graphic, in her Washington correspondence has the following somewhat gushing reference to one of the new faces seen in the social circles of the gay Capitol: "One of the debutantes this winter is the daughter of Senator and Mrs. Roscoe Conkling, a girl whose quaintly pretty face has so much shy sweetness and maidenly purity and modesty expressed in it that you look at her in wonder, involuntarily thinking she must have just stepped out of an old-fashioned portrait frame. It is just the face you see in old picture galleries. She is always by her mother's side, and so much does the younger resemble the elder that they irresistibly remind one of a rose and a rose-bud on a single stem." What is this but advertising? No one seems to shun notoriety now-a-days; the rule is to court it. The only popularity the Chronicle enjoys it, gained by giving flattering notices of ladies who appeared at balls and parties. Miss Sarimegeour, having been called a "lovely blonde" in that paper, has never ceased to consider the Chronicle a "very nice newspaper." The ambition of the age appears to be to get into print. It is easily gratified now-a-days, one need not go on the stage, write a book, get elected to the Legislature, or accomplish any great and noble deed. It is only necessary to scrape the acquaintance of a newspaper reporter, which is not difficult to do. The thing is so common now-a-days, that there are really some sensible people who prefer not seeing their names in print. They, however, are the exception to the rule. The man who wishes to achieve "success" in the modern acceptation of the word, first seeks notoriety in the public prints. He is "advertised" just as patent stove polish or Holloway's ointment is advertised. The public become familiar with his name, and think that there must be something in a man who is "well-known." As to a man in business, one who sells things to the public, imagining that he can get along without advertising, the idea is absurd. He can establish a business reputation in three years by the help of the newspapers (notably of FIGARO) that it would take him twenty years to gain without their help.

Oysters.

(In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A Cheerful Lottery.

The various Life Insurance Companies having agents in this city, are publishing a list of names of persons who won big prizes in 1873. They had to die to do it. However, life insurance is a good thing. It is very pleasant when you lie a-dying to reflect that you leave behind you sufficient to provide for your wife and to give your children a start in life. Those who wish to provide for themselves when they are old, and don't care about leaving money to others, can secure the payment of an annuity by investing some of their whisky money with some reputable company. Many more people would invest in life and annuity policies, if the companies advertised the benefits they offer in an attractive style, instead of publishing a mass of figures. The advertisement which they are now publishing is the right sort of thing. It makes people think about the matter.

A Smart Man.

There is a most ingenious marshal in Flushing, L. I., a gentleman who is remarkable for the success of his little games on people. Just before New Year's, a little girl gave him two dollars to get her a pair of gloves in New York, for a present. The Flushing marshal got the gloves for a dollar and a quarter, told the little girl they cost one dollar and three-quarters, gave her a quarter change, put the half-dollar in his pocket, and nearly chuckled himself into a case of genuine apoplexy over the success of his operation. New Year morning his wife presented him with a pair of gloves, and explained how she had secretly arranged for their purchase with a little girl. The Flushing marshal put the gloves in his pocket, smiled lightly, and narrowly escaped fainting dead away. We purposely avoided bringing out this hero until after President Grant had secured his Chief Justice.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The acting of Miss Jennie Lee in the character of Andy Blake in the play o' that name, is generally admired. Her make-up for the part is excellent, and she has a delicious brogue. Professor O'Reardon's Tumbleronicon is as popular as ever, and the operetta of "Widows Bewitched" is a charming composition, in which Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, Mrs. Julia Melville and John Howson all appear to excellent advantage.

California Theatre.

A large audience enjoyed the performance of "Pygmalion and Galatea" given at this theatre last night with Miss Katharine Rogers as Galatea, Lewis Morrison as Pygmalion, Miss Ellie Wilton as Cynisca, J. C. Williamson as Chrysos, Mrs Judah as Daphne, W. A. Mestayer as Lucippe, Miss Nellie Cummins as Myrine, E. N. Thayer as Agesimos, and Henry Coad as Mimos. Miss Rogers in the character of Galatea, did not present the idea of the vivified statue, ignorant of the world and its ways, so thoroughly as did Miss Carlotta LeClercq; her conception of the part was a different one, and was most skillfully carried out. Her Galatea was a live woman, the idea of innocence was not so strongly insisted on as in the impersonation of the same character by Carlotta LeClercq. The performance was thoroughly artistic, but the lights and shades were not so delicately drawn as by the first-named actress. Miss Ellie Wilton repeated her triumph as Cynisca, and with Miss Katharine Rogers and Lewis Morrison appeared before the curtain at the end of the second act, to receive the congratulations of the audience. The play was excellently well performed throughout. J. C. Williamson as Chrysos, and Mrs. Judah as Daphne were good as ever, and W. A. Mestayer as the manly Lucippe, and Miss Nellie Cummins as the loving Myrine, filled their respective parts effectively. The illusion of the dissolving statue has never been so well presented on the California stage as it was last night, the figure melting away in a strong light instead of fading away into darkness. To-night, Miss Katharine Rogers will repeat her great success of Leah in "Leah, the Forsaken," and to-morrow night will take her benefit, when she will appear as Mary Leigh in Boucicault's excellent drama entitled "Hunted Down."

Alhambra Theatre.

After Sunday night's performance, this popular theatre will be closed for some weeks in order to make great improvements in the auditorium and stage. The former will be remodeled on the plan of the late Academy of Music, and the latter will be lowered ten feet or more and its dimensions will be increased. The last nights of the California Minstrels, the Girards, George S. Knight and the great Siegrist troupe, should draw a succession of crowded houses. The excellent programme to be performed to-night appears on our first page.

Opera.

The opera on Sunday at the California Theatre, will be the "Daughter of the Regiment," with the following cast of principal characters: Baccel as Tonio, Orlandini as Sulpizio, Mrs. Evans as the Countess, and Bondovieri as Ortensio.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The Eastern riders, acrobats, gymnasts, leapers, tumblers and specialty artists sogag'd by Manager Wilson for this place of amusement having all become acclimated, are now in splendid working order and give a performance of great variety and excellence. All visiting the Amphitheatre are most favorably impressed with the comfort and convenience of the building, and the merits of the performances. Matinee on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock.

Platt's Hall.

A wrestling match for the championship of the Union, will come off here on Saturday evening between the California champion, Michael Whelan, formerly of the Police department of this city, and Col. James H. McLaughlin the renowned wrestler from Detroit. Both men have been in training for this contest for many weeks, and the match, which is for $4,000 and the championship, is attracting much public attention. Poole will be sold at the Lick house to-night, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Bella Union Theatre.

Ed. Murray and Miss Alice Ross are great favorites at this house, the local play of "The Police Court" is very popular, and the programme is a most attractive one in every way. New features will be introduced to-morrow night.

Buckley's Varieties.

At this place of amusement for the million a very attractive programme is presented. Frank Mortimore, Ned Buckley, Walter Parks, Miss Lizzie Harmon and a host of others appear nightly.

Notes.

John McCullough returned to this city from Salt Lake last night. He is in the best of health and spirits, and is looking forward with pleasure to Monday night, when he will once more tread the boards of his own theatre, and meet face to face the public who so thoroughly appreciate him as actor, manager and gentleman.

The California minstrels, the Girards, and Geo. S. Knight, who have been giving such a brilliant season of performances at the Alhambra Theatre for some time past, will open at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, under the management of Thomas Maguire, on Monday next.

The matinee performance at the California Theatre on Saturday, will consist of "Hunted Down," with Miss Katharine Rogers as Mary Leigh, and the comedy of "Robert Macaire."

Tickets for the grand carnival ball, to take place at Platt's Hall on Monday evening, are selling rapidly. The list of names published in another column will satisfy all that it will be a great success.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday, first appearance of the Flying Boy in his thrilling feat, 'Double Salto Mortal Aerien," the pantomime of "Gig-Gig," instrumental concert etc., together with the fifteen sea lions and other attractions.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

THE NEW FLOORING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new order and fine fruit can do so (at the Matinee Fruit Store) without ordangering their corns. 1x

FAITES LE JEU.

Cheer up, my dear fellow; you're looking too blue;
Mutabilis semper our old classics say:
"Devoted and loving she seemed for a week,
Yet colder than Diana you found her to-day."

Is that then, so strange? You have pleased her a week;
You didn't expect she would fond of you be
Eight days, I suppose?—In society's game
The ladies are players, the foot-ball are we.

As in our tough struggles of school-days long past,
The hardest of kicking wins greatest renown;
The heartiest cheering the maiden rewards
Before whose skilled bowling the ring-pin goes down.

"A mixture of metaphors?" Granted, my boy;
The point of them both is, however, the same:
If you set yourself up for a pin or a ball,
You cannot imagine that you'll win the game.

You've had enough sherry; behave like a man;
Don't mope o'er your sorrow or drown it with wine;
If another Adonis your Venus has found,
Silenus can't tempt her to bide 'neath the vine.

An Editor.

We have seen many definitions of many names, words and phrases, but the following of an editor, given by Josh Billings, is about the best we ever yet encountered: An editor iz a male being whose biziness iz to navigate a nuze paper. He writes editorials, grinds out poetry, inserts deaths and weddings, sorts out manuskripts, keeps a waste basket, blows up the "devil," steals matter, fites other people's battles, sells his paper for a dollar and 50 cents a year, takes white beans and apple sass for pay when he kan git it, raises a large family, works 19 hours out of 24, knows no Sunday, gits damned bi everybody, and once in a while whipt bi sumbody, lives poor, dies middle-aged and often broken-hearted, leaves no money, iz rewarded for a life ov toil with a short but free obituary puff in the nuzepapers. The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork shop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 76 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

A "True Reform Measure."

The Sacramento correspondent of the Call says:

A true reform measure is urged in the bill to-day introduced by Senator O'Connor. Under the present law, it is made unlawful for persons to employ women under seventeen years of age in dance houses or cellars. O'Connor's bill increases the restrictive scope of the law so that it will apply to all women of whatever age. If passed, it may serve to restrain much of the wickedness which emanates from those foul dens which infest our city. The bill should and will pass; but it is not from lack of laws that we suffer; it is rather that the good laws are made a dead letter because of the failure on the part of the executive departments to enforce them.

It is amazing the interest the Legislature takes in protecting the morals of the people of San Francisco. We have a sufficiently good opinion of women to believe that they do not take to low and degrading pursuits from choice, but are driven to them by necessity. These women are degraded by men. Wouldn't it be as well to pass a "true reform measure" abolishing by law all discrimination against women, opening all avenues of industry to her, and providing that when she does "man's work" she shall be paid man's wages?

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. Iv

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

FRIDAY.....FEBRUARY 13, 1874

A Good Point.

The London Globe makes a neat point in its criticism of the completion of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" by the spirit of Charles Dickens, the work of an American medium. It says: The reviewer is chiefly struck by the contrast between the power of the corporeal Dickens and the incapacity of the spiritual Dickens, and thinks it clear that men's minds are by no means improved by being freed from the body, and that thus the bad spelling and general ignorance of the citizens of spirit land are fully accounted for. In one of the extracts quoted from the volume mention is made of a tradesman who used to open his "store," in Chancery lane at five o'clock in the morning, so we must conclude that departed Englishmen use the American language, and that the man who of all others knew London best has carried with him a very confused recollection of its ways and hours.

Foreigners in Congress.

A Washington correspondent speaking of the foreigners in Congress, mentions that out of fifteen only two are in the Senate. One of these is Carl Schurz. The other foreigner in the Senate is Jones, a Welshman by birth, and as he is worth $7,000,000, he very appropriately hails from Gold Hill, Nevada.

An Example to be Followed.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The Washington papers are warmly commending Senator Sprague's habit of betting half a million dollars on each of his children at its birth. So do we. The custom is a beautiful one, and no family should be without it."

An Omission.

We have seen many obituary notices of the Siamese Twins, and none of the writers have quoted "They were beautiful in their lives and in death they were not divided." It seems strange that this hackneyed quotation was not raked up for this occasion.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemany treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine." Geo. Collins, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to bet at the silver raffle every Saturday evening. 12bh

Asa L Waugaman's New Saloon,

Corner of Hallock and Leidesdorff streets. Large and commodious saloon, centrally located, with ante-rooms, supplied with the best brands of Liquors and Cigars; bountiful hot lunch—his great specialty—served from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., and a cold lunch afterwards. Drop in and "be satisfied." 12bh

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Sam Moore,

Formerly of Russ House Carriages, can be found in front of Coleman Bros. clothing establishment, southwest corner Bush and Montgomery sts., or Dexter Stables. Carriage orders left at either place promptly attended to day or night, at reduced rates. FO

Boston "Delicacy."

The Boston Courier, one of the best weekly papers published in the United States, has been in the habit of alluding to a sometimes namby-pamby contemporary as "The Saturday Evening Chemisette." It complains that it has been taken to task for this by some of the prurient prudes of Boston, and declares its right to talk of chemisettes, or shirt bosoms, or feminine tuckers, without being accused of indelicacy. Apropos of this it says: We might take advantage of this occasion to dilate at some length upon the tendency of a large portion of the American people to persist in looking upon a good many things which are perfectly proper as decidedly improper, but we will content ourselves with a single observation. A gentleman not long ago informed us that he had taken a notice of a birth to a prominent daily newspaper in this city, and that it was refused publication on the ground that many readers would be offended at its appearance. Wherefore? we should like to inquire. Is it any more "improper" to be born than to die? Is there anything indecent in a marriage notice? Death is a cause of mourning, but birth is an occasion for rejoicing. Is it any worse to laugh than to cry? In England, even the anticipation of an heir to a member of the royal family is announced from one end of the kingdom to the other, and nearly all English newspapers, including the Court journals, publish births as regularly as they do deaths or marriages; and none of our cousins are, or pretend to be, shocked at their appearance in the public prints.

Woman Suffrage.

The Christian Union feels about like this on the suffrage question: "For our own part we make no doubt that female suffrage, the logical and inevitable result of the republican idea, will be conceded the moment the women make an organized demand for it. And we doubt whether the ballot ought to belong to indifference. Certainly that experience has worked ill enough in the hands of men." The question seems to be simply this. Have men any right to refuse suffrage to those women who want it? Many slaves were perfectly satisfied to remain in slavery, but the people of the United States decided that they must be free whether they wanted to be so or not.

Religious Quackery.

An Irish duck has laid a miraculous egg, upon which, as plain as print, is this inscription: "And as ye go, preach the kingdom of Heaven is at hand." A number of intelligent and respectable gentlemen have attested to the genuineness of the egg and the inscription, and, it may be added, the character of the duck is unimpeachable.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Darwinism in Boulder.

The Boulder (Col.) News has this: "Boulder has a philosophical minister, who understands logic and things, and who either knows what he doesn't know, or doesn't know what he does know. But, at any rate, he believes in Darwinism. Whether he believes in it to relieve the Almighty of the responsibility of creating anything as bad as men, we do not know; but he believes there is little difference between reason and instinct, and that little only in degree. We understand George Tourtellot's jackass, Coffey's mule, and Arnett's cow have held a discussion over the minister's views, and are much gratified with the efforts to prove that there is a good prospect for them, with all the men and hogs, and other animals, sharing immortality together. We hope this doctrine is true, and want to enjoy the beatific vision of the minister entering the gates of pearl arm-in-arm with Balaam's ass and Jonah's whale. We shall be happy to follow with the gorilla."

Discouraged.

Poor fellow! We mean that man in Burlington, Iowa, who "swore off" not long since, and deposited his drink-money in a black-bottle, which he kept, as he thought, secreted. He had been running this bank about three months, when his wife traded off the bottle with others for tinware. Then the man lifted his eyes to heaven and wept, and said over a little formula that he had learned by heart for use in just such trying moments, and went out and got the drunkest he had been for ages. Of course he was happier after he had done that!

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Miss Katharine Rogers' admirable acting in the role of "Leah, the Forsaken," was heartily enjoyed last night. The evening's entertainment concluded with "The Rough Diamond," in which Miss Maggie Moore as Margery, and J. C. Williamson as Cousin Joe, kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter. To-night Miss Katharine Rogers will take her benefit, and we hope that rain or shine, the house will be crowded. She will on this occasion appear in one of her strongest impersonations—that of Mary Leigh, in Boucicault's drama entitled "Hunted Down." The performance will conclude with the farce of "The Rough Diamond." At the matinee to-morrow "Hunted Down" will be performed. To-night is the last but one of Miss Rogers' brief engagement, as the popular manager of the theatre will make his appearance on Monday as Spartacus in "The Gladiator."

Alhambra Theatre.

The public should make the most of the short time remaining, during which the can enjoy the brilliant entertainment presented at this popular theatre. After Sunday night, the minstrels will take their flight to Sacramento, and the Alhambra will be closed. To-night, and at the matinee to-morrow, Billy Sweetnam, Billy Manning Con. T. Murphy, W. F. Baker, J. G. Russell, B. Montague, and others will appear in the first part, and Welsh and ... ice, the wonderful Girards, George S. Knight, and the Sieg... ...'s, and their dogs in an interlude. The entertainment will conclude with Manning's screaming farce of "Open on Sunday."

Opera House.

The entertainment given at this house cannot fail to please all who can appreciate excellent acting and delightful music. In the comedy of "Andy Blake" with which the performance commences, Miss Jennie Lee gives an impersonation of a bold Irish boy that would delight the heart of Dion Boucicault, and in the operetta of "Widows Bewitched" Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, Mrs. Julia Melville and John Howson, act and sing charmingly. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

Opera.

The opera on Sunday at the California Theatre will be the "Daughter of the Regiment," with the following cast of principal characters: Anna Eliser as Mari, Baccei as Tonio, Orlandini as Sulpizio, Mrs. Evans as the Countess, and Bonoovieri as Ortensio.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The rain did not deter a large crowd of people from visiting the warm and comfortable Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street last night. Among the new features introduced in the programme was a wonderful double somersault over ten horses, and a pyramid of men, performed by Fred O'Brien, the champion vaulter. This feat will be repeated to-night. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow On Monday, the wonderful Siegrist family and their troupe of trained dogs, will be added to the attractions.

Bella Union Theatre.

A new bill of a very attractive character will be presented at this popular variety theatre this evening. It comprises the comic local drama of "The Streets of San Francisco," in which Ed Murray will appear as Dennis Magine, J. W. Summers as George Allen, Miss Jennie Johnson as Mary Allen, Charley Nickerson as Rose, and others in the characters to which their names are attached in the cast given on our first page. Miss Alice Ross will appear in scrio-comic songs, Cassim and Fritz in "Spider and Fool," Moore and Bray in song and dance, and Johnny Tuers, Miss Fanny Garretson, Miss Susie Robinson and others in various specialties.

Buckley's Varieties.

To-night in addition to a brilliant programme in which Ned Buckley, Miss Ida May, Frank Mortimore, Miss Lizzie Harmon, George Foster, and many other favorites will appear, the amusing extravaganza entitled "Dinklespiel's Travels" will be produced.

Platt's Hall.

A wrestling match for the championship of the Union, will come off here on Saturday evening between the California champion, Michael Whelan, formerly of the Police department of this city, and Col. James H. McLaughlin the renowned wrestler from Detroit. Both men have been in training for this contest for many weeks, and the match, which is for $4,000 and the championship, is attracting much public attention. Pools will be sold at the Lick house to-night, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday, first appearance of the Flying Boy in his thrilling feat, 'Double Salto Mortal Aerien," the pantomime of "Gig-Gig," instrumental concert etc., together with the fifteen ... tions and other attractions.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin, or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Drs. Smith and Trufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

THE NEW FLAGGING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider and fine fruits can do so (at the Matinee Fruit Store) without endangering their corns. 1-x

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed by a new process.

WHAT THE WIND-ELVES HEARD AND SAW.

BY IDEN E. RELFORD.

The West Wind:
The saddest sound that I ever heard
Was the wailing of a mother-bird
For the one wee nest ling that cheered her nest,
Dead, with a thorn in its pretty breast.

The South Wind:
I have known a sight that was sadder still;
There's a grave up yonder upon the hill,
And a mother weeps at her poor boy's name,
For his ruined soul, and his guilt and shame.

The West Wind:
The sweetest sight that I ever knew
Was the kiss of two lovers whose love was true,
As they pledged themselves come weal or woe,
One pair in life they would henceforth know.

The South Wind:
Once, when a weary old man died,
I saw Heaven's gates swing open wide,
And his wife, who an angel long had been,
Stretched welcoming hands, and cried "Dear come in,"
And the look on her face—I was dumb with awe—
A sight that was grander I never saw.

The West Wind:
Last night, when the stars were out in the blue,
Like a dead white lily kissed by dew
I saw a baby of two short years
Wet with its mourning mother's tears.

The South Wind:
I saw a mother go in one day
Through the gates of Heaven, and heard her say—
"Is my babe here?" and they put in her arms
A wee child, sweet with a baby's charms;
And she cried, as she kissed it, her face aglow,
"I have found my babe! This is Heaven, I know!"

Not Remarkable.

A Massachusetts farmer says: "My cattle will follow me until I leave the lot, and on the way to the barn yard in the evening stop and call for a lock of hay."

Smithson says there is nothing at all remarkable in that. He went into a barn yard in the country one day last week, where he had not the acquaintance with the cattle, and the old bull not only followed him until he left the lot, but took the gate off the hinges and raced with him to the house in the most familiar manner possible. Smithson says he has doubt that the old fellow would have called for something if he had waited a little while, but he didn't want to keep the folks waiting dinner, so he hung one tail of his coat and a piece of his pants on the bull's horns and went into the house.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Gladsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2c

Mark Twain Abroad.

One has to go away from home to learn of the personal appearance of his fellow citizens. An illustration of this fact is found in the following description of a well-known American humorist which appeared in the London Court Journal: Mark Twain is a remarkably handsome man, standing over six feet four, with fine red whiskers and hair to match, and is said to excel in feats of strength, and especially in dancing the sword dance. He can put up the hatchet with any man, and his serenade on the bagpipe is said to have the effect of Saint Vitus on all true Scotchmen.

Cleared Her Character.

A precipitate Massachusetts man having charged his wife with bigamy in marrying another gentleman for whose society she abandoned his, the lady demolishes his case by stating that she isn't married to the other gentleman at all.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba.
And speak of war with Spain,
But I'm for soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.

... men can tame ...
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Madame Anna Bishop, assisted by Signor Pietro Baccei, the tenor, J. G. McKenzie, the California baritone, and L. Bodeker, pianist, gave her farewell concert at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Thursday evening.

J. M. Hutchings will give a matinee and evening entertainment at the Metropolitan Theatre to-day. It will consist of views of Yosemite with a lecture. On Monday the Metropolitan Theatre will once more pass into the hands of Thomas Maguire, and the Wonderful Girards and Maguire's California Minstrels will commence a season. The Bee says the people of Sacramento will welcome a season of first-class minstrelsy and will support it as liberally as they did the late dramatic season.

SAN JOSE.—Under the management of H. A. Delacy the Opera House is a live institution, and the people of San Jose are waking up to an appreciation of dramatic entertainments. The Templeton troupe commenced a new engagement on Monday night, and have played every night this week. On Monday the bill consisted of "Fanchon," "Cupid Medleys," the "Irish Doctor," and gymnastic feats by Mlle. Laura and Harry Clark; on Tuesday, "Kathleen Mavourneen," Fay Templeton's Rip Van Winkle songs, "All the World's a Stage," and trapeze performance: on Wednesday, "Camille" the "Little Sailor," by Fay Templeton, "Contentment Better than Riches," and feats by Mlle. Laura and Harry Clark. The Mercury's critic speaking of Miss Alice Vane, says:

This charming actress carried the house by storm last night in her matchless delineation of "Camille." In the pathetic passages she touched all hearts, and unsealed the fountains of many an eye. In the sway and play of the emotions, in which this play abounds, her acting was simply grand.

Ah! ah! who wouldn't go to San Jose? The "sway and play" and all that sort of thing rather beats the tame utterances of our San Francisco critics. Thursday Miss Alice and Isabel Vane took a benefit, and presented "Pocahontas," "Married Life," and "The day after the Wedding." last night little Fay Templeton had a benefit, and appeared in "Black-Eyed Susan," and the "San Jose Fireman." The season will close to-night.

MARYSVILLE.—Carl Bosco, the magician, performed his wonders at the theatre on Thursday and Friday evenings and will give another entertainment to-night.

STOCKTON.—Madame Anna Bishop gave a concert here on Wednesday evening.

VIRGINIA CITY.—On Monday evening Dion Boucicault made his first appearance at Piper's Opera House, in "Kerry" and "Used Up." On Tuesday evening he took a benefit. The Footlights says: Last night the Opera House presented the most brilliant spectacle we have ever witnessed under its roof. Mr. John McCullough came out of his way, on the road from Salt Lake City, where he has been playing to crowded houses, to do honor to his friend, Mr. Boucicault, and made his appearance between the two pieces, "Kerry" and "The Colleen Bawn." That appearance was the signal for one of those roars of applause to which he must ever be accustomed yet can never be wearied. Mr. McCullough, in a magnificent voice, recited the charming descriptive piece, "The Little Hero." In the last piece Mr. Boucicault appeared as Myles na Coppaleen.

On Wednesday "Arrah na Pogue" was played, on Thursday there was a matinee performance, when "Used Up" and the "Soldier's Return" were played, and in the evening Mr. Boucicault closed his engagement, appearing in "Daddy O'Dowd." On Friday evening Miss Kate Dunin made her appearance.

WALLA WALLA, W. T.—The Rosedale Dramatic Troupe, comprising Robert M. Fulford and the Pixley Sisters, were performing here at latest dates.

SALT LAKE CITY.—John McCullough and Miss Annie Graham terminated a very successful engagement last Saturday, appearing in "Macbeth." On Monday, the favorite comedian of Salt Lake, Phil Margetts, made his reappearance, supported by Miss Jean Clara Walters. The entertainment consisted of the comedy of "A Night of Peril," and the farce of "Family Jars," on Tuesday the "Flowers of the Forest" and "Family Jars" constituted the bill, on Wednesday "Green Bushes" was played, and Thursday in addition to other attractions, Prof. Faber's Talking Machine was exhibited.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best, ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE-ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. "Figaro" will appear in a new dress about March 1st, when important improvements will be made.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The matinee performance to-day, and the entertainment to be given to-night and Sunday night will be the last which the public will enjoy in this theatre for some weeks. The programme is brilliant and varied enough to secure an overflowing house on each of these occasions. Billy Manning and Billy Sweetman will soon be cracking their jokes to the members of the Legislature, and the Wonderful Guards will soon be bewildering the sober citizens of Sacramento with their "Leg-Mania." The great programme which has delighted so many during the present week, will be performed on each of the occasions above mentioned.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Those who have not yet seen "Andy Blake" and "Widows Bewitched" at this house, have missed one of the best bills of the season, and should avail themselves of the opportunity offered at the matinee to-day and this evening. The first is one of Boucicault's most pleasing comedies, and the last one of the most charming operettas ever written. Miss Jennie Lee, J. P. Burnett, Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher, John Howson and others perform their respective parts to perfection. On Sunday night, "Andy Blake" and "Beautiful Forever" will constitute the bill.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE—The stormy weather prevented Miss Katharine Rogers from having such a house on the occasion of her benefit last night, as her merit as an actress entitled her to. In no character which she has played during her engagement in this city, has she appeared to better advantage than she did last night in "Hunted Down." This piece having been played in this city before it is unnecessary to give the plot. As Mary Leigh, the woman whose position in society is liable to be lost at any moment through the machinations of the unscrupulous Rawdon Scudamore, Miss Rogers did some wonderfully intense acting. Lewis Morrison as Rawden Scudamore came out strong as a heartless scamp, and Henry Edwards as the noble John Leigh, presented an admirable contrast to that unworthy character. Miss Ellie Wilton as O'Ara, Mrs. Sophie Edwin as Lady Glencarrig, and Mrs. O. B. Saunders as Mrs. Ralton Jones played their respective parts capitally, and altogether the drama was most effectively presented. The performance concluded with the capital comedy of "The Rough Diamond" in which J. C. Williamson as Cousin Joe, and Miss Maggie Moore as Margery, repeated their triumph of the previous night. "Hunted Down" will be played at the matinee to-day, and again this evening, when Miss Rogers will make her last appearance. The performance will on this occasion conclude with "Robert Macaire" which will be played with the cast given on our first page.

THE NEW PALACE AMPHITHEATRE.—There will be a matinee performance at this very popular place of amusement to-day, and the programme which has delighted so many thousands during the week, will be repeated this evening and to-morrow evening. Among the features which cause most wonder and delight, are the wonderful double somersault over ten horses and a pyramid of men three high on their back, by Fred O'Brien, daring and graceful performances on the trapeze by Senorita Tournour, brilliant equestrianism by Miss Helen Cook, startling mid-air performances by Leon and Laiscalle, and extraordinary somersaults on horseback by Woods Cook. On Monday, the Biegriats and their dogs will commence a farewell engagement.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The opera on Sunday at the California Theatre will be the "Daughter of the Regiment," with the following cast of principal characters: Anna Elzer as Marie, Baccei as Tonio, Orlandini as Sulpizio, Mrs. Evans as the Countess, and Roncovieri

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The new bill presented at this house last night proved a great success. Ed. Murray caused great fun in the local play of "The Streets of San Francisco" and was ably supported by Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers, Charley Nickerson, John Woodward and others. The serio-comic songs by Miss Alice Ross were received with much applause and laughter, and Mr. Murray was equally successful in his "Budget of Fun," Cassim and Fritz delighted the audience with their capital act entitled "Spider and Fool," and Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly, and Charley Nickerson made the spectators roar with laughter at their antics in "The Parlor Circus." The same bill will be played to-night and to-morrow night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—Walter Parks, M'lle Blanche, Miss Katie Zoe, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Frank Mortimore, the ever-popular Miss Ida May, the old California favorite Ned Buckley, and a great number of others will appear in a brilliant Saturday night bill, which is published on our first page.

THE WRESTLING MATCH AT PLATT'S HALL—A wrestling match for the championship of the Union, will come off here this evening between the California champion, Michael Whelan, formerly of the Police department of this city, and Col. James H. McLaughlin the renowned wrestler from Detroit. Both men have been in training for this contest for many weeks, and the match, which is for $4,000 and the championship, is attracting much public attention. as Ortensio. Persons holding tickets can secure seats at the Hall up to 6 o'clock to-day.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—On Saturday and Sunday first appearance of the Flying Boy in his thrilling feat, 'Double Salto Mortal Aerial," the pantomime of "Gig-Gig," instrumental concert etc., together with the fifteen sea lions and other attractions.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every

NOTES.—The alterations in the Alhambra Theatre, have already progressed considerably without necessitating the closing of the house. The excavation under the stage, and building of new walls is already completed, and on Monday, the carpenters will go to work to lower the stage and remodel the auditorium on the plan already mentioned. When these alterations are completed the Alhambra will be one of the prettiest and most comfortably theatres in the United States, and the dimensions of the auditorium will be so increased that the money capacity will be over $1,300.

The Grand Carnival Ball, to be given by the Italian Benevolent Society, at Platt's Hall on Monday next, in aid of their hospital, promises to be a very lively affair, and there will be more fun then their usually is on such occasions. There will be the utmost freedom as to costumes, any one holding a ticket being allowed to mingle with the maskers in citizen's clothes if he so choose. Olowne representing the Italian cities will be among the characters. There will be a supper buffet under the direction of L. Gamba, one of the best chefs in San Francisco. Tickets can be obtained at the moderate rate of $1 50 each of M. Gray, Sherman & Hyde, C. S. Eaton, and members of the invitation committee, whose names are published in another column.

On Monday, John McCullough, the popular manager of the California Theatre, will make his reappearance, and receive the congratulations of the public on his success in the East. He will appear as Spartacus in Dr. Bird's tragedy entitled "The Gladiator," which was written for the late Edwin Forrest, and has now become the property of Mr. McCullough. The audience on this occasion will certainly be limited only by the size of the theatre. An address of welcome by Walter M. Leman, will be published in Monday's FIGARO.

Professor Allen, the aeronaut, has been waiting for the arrival of some of his apparatus which was left behind at Panama. He hopes to be able to get one of his balloons up, at Woodward's Gardens next week. The first captive ascension will be made with a rope one thousand feet in length.

The Franco-American Alcazar Association, have secured a five years lease of Pacific Hall, commencing on April 1st. They pay $ 000 a month. The performances will consist of opera bouffe and variety. FIGARO will be the programme.

Wilkes Spirit of the Times, which publishes a better summary of theatrical news than any other paper in New York, relies entirely on FIGARO for its California news and criticisms. In this it shews a level head, for everyone confesses that FIGARO is the only dramatic authority on the Pacific Coast. We think we have said this, before.

On Thursday evening, the popular musical composer and talented conductor, George T. Evans, one of the most talented, and hard working men in the musical profession, will take his benefit at the Opera House. A great entertainment will be presented on this occasion as may be seen by referring to another column. The house will probably be fully sold by the evening of the performance. All should be anxious to take part in this testimonial to an artiste who has done much to assist in elevating the musical taste of this community.

The bill for next week at the Opera House will consist of the sterling comedy of "Perfection, or the maid of Munster" and the delightful operetta of "Widows Bewitched."

On Monday, the 23d, the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Combination, will proceed to Sacramento, where they will give a two weeks season of comedy and English Opera. Sacramento is highly favored in the amusement line this season

The Fanny Morgan-Phelps Dramatic Company, consisting of Mrs Fannie Morgan Phelps, Miss Lizzie Morgan, Carrie Lingle, S. Piercy, Frank Cleaver, E. J. Crowell, E. Lipsie, and others returned on Wednesday from their season of nine weeks at Eureka, Humboldt Bay, and left this morning on the Senator, for Los Angeles. They have engaged the Merced Theatre for three weeks.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, "Money" still held the boards at Wallack's Theatre.....At Booth's, "La Femme de Feu" not proving a success, "Elene," another play by the same author, was produced on the 3d. Mrs. J. B. Booth played the title role in it. The Arcadian has the following criticism of the play: The plot is feeble in the extreme, and is, moreover, worked out in a slovenly and disjointed way. Some of the scenes have scarcely anything to do with the play, and one "carpenter's scene," between an Irish porter and a Yankee hotel-clerk, who, through some wonderful chain of circumstances, are employed in a Parisian hotel, is absurd. What little plot there is turns on the theft of a sum of 100,000 francs, which had been deposited with a young banker's clerk named George Monant, by Mr. Markett, an American. George is married to a very charming lady, Elene, who, unfortunately, is burdened with a father of gambling propensities, the Baron de Turgis. This gentleman abstracts the money from Mortant's desk, in order to pay gambling debts. Montant being unable to replace the money, is about to seek the Frenchman's usual remedy, suicide, when his wife surprises him. He confides to her the loss of his money, but being unwilling to inculpate her father allows his wife to think that he himself has gambled away the money. She is, however, undeceived by her sister, who, in some undefined way, has become acquainted with the true facts of the case. Elene learns that there are yet two days before discovery will be made, and hurries to Spa, determined to win 100,000 francs. It is needless to say she fails, and then adopts the only sensible course, of telling Mr. Markett the true facts of the case, and asking him to wait till they can repay him. Markett consents, and begs the hand of her sister as his security. Mrs. Booth played Elene with considerable power, though occasionally she lacked force, as where she first learns of her husband's intention to commit suicide. The other performers are beneath notice, except Mr. Glenn, who played an old money-lender with much humor and strength. Mr. Pateman completely spoiled the effect of the gambling scene, by constantly flourishing a paper umbrella over the roulette table.....At the Fifth-Avenue Theatre, "Follies" having been generally pitched into by the press as "grossly indecent," was drawing good houses. Mr. Daly has ready, to succeed it, an adaptation of Dumas' latest Parisian success, "Monsieur Alphonse".....At Niblo's, the Vokes' Family are to close their engagement on the 21st, and will be followed by George Fawcett Rowe in a dramatization by himself of "The Last of the Mohicans," in which he will play Natty Bumpo and Miss Fanny Cathcart (Mrs. George Darrell) Cora.....At Wood's Museum, Miss Amy Stone commenced an engagement on the 9th, in "Cigarette." A new burlesque entitled "Last Sin; or, the Elopement" was underlined.....'Led Astray" was still running at Union-Square Theatre.....'Humpty Dumpty Abroad" continued the attraction at the Grand Opera House.....The New York Mercury says: The return of a lady so famed in histrionic annals as Charlotte Cushman, created a fashionable literary flutter at Steinway Hall on the 28th. A crowded and intellectual house were delighted with her wonderful elocutionary powers in miscellaneous readings and a selection from "Hamlet." A largely attended matinee was given on the 31st, when "As You Like It," Schiller's "Eridolin" and other poems, furnished a delightful entertainment. The two remaining readings of the series were given on the evening of the 3d and morning of the 4th ager, was doing a good business with Miss Sallie Holman's English Opera Bouffe troupe, and a very strong variety company, comprising Delehanty and Hengler, Martha Wren and James Collins, John Morris, J. W. McAndrews, Miss Jenny Arnot, Johnny O'Neil and many others.....At the Metropolitan Theatre, the Martinetti Pantomime troupe, the Jackley Family, Mr. W. H. Courtwright and Mr. Cool White appeared on the 9th .....At Dan Bryant's, Bob Hart continued a great favorite, and the burlesque of "Cinderella" was still running.....At Tony Pastor's, Johnny Allen, the Victorellis and Miss Annie Braddon were the latest additions to the company.....At the Bowery Theatre, Miss Laura Alberta was the star.

The New York Spirit of the Times says: Barney Williams is seriously contemplating the erection of a new theatre in Philadelphia. If he does not build one, he proposes to make such changes in an old one there as will make adequate provision for that large class of theatre-goers who do not like to pay a dollar and a half for a seat. Barney's head was always level, but he had better carry out his idea in New York—the field is open just now.

Mr. Sothern commenced an engagement at the Walnut, Philadelphia, Feb. 9. He was assisted by Miss Minnie Walton, Miss Edith Challis, Miss Dora Stuart, Vining Bowers and Lyt on Sothern.

The Berger Family and Sol Smith Russell open at the Olympic Theatre, New York, on March 2.

The managers of the Lyceum Theatre, New York, have compromised with the artistes recently engaged there to whom salary was due, and it is rumored that the theatre will be shortly re-opened.

A. P. Durand, of Painter and Durand, acrobats and gymnasts, is now the stage manager at the Variety Theatre, Mobile, Ala., and Wm. Painter is at work in a store in Artesia, Miss.

Ella LaRue is at the Adelphi, Chicago.

Ella Wesner commenced an engagement at the Theatre Comique, New York, on the 9 h.

Walter Fenton, who was with the Leroy-Duret troupe in Los Angeles, is in New York. He advertises for an engagement as walking gentleman.

J. K. Emmet, Louisville, Feb, 2, two weeks.

Charlotta LeClercq, Opera-house, Philadelphia 16th, two weeks.

Manager Frank Lawlor, of the Globe Theatre, Chicago, advertises for combinations of all kinds, and stars having open dates, to address him.

A dramatization of "La Maison Neuve" by Sam Geneco, has been included in the repertoire of Charlotta LeClercq.

Lawrence Barrett and troupe, Jackson, Miss. Feb. 9 and 10; Cairo, Ill., 23d, 24th; Bloomington, Feb. 25, 26.

The Royal Lyceum Theatre, Toronto, Canada, was burned to the ground after the performance of the 30th. It was under Tannehill and Glen, with Dominick Murray as the star. The building was insured for $15,000, against a loss of $60,000, but there was no insurance on the contents.

The New Olympic Theatre, on Market street, Philadelphia, caught fire about three o'clock on the morning of the 29th, and was totally destroyed. The building was formerly known as National Hall, and was used for public meetings, exhibitions, conventions, etc. It was lately occupied as a Varieties Theatre, under Johnson, Pilgrim, and Fitzgerald. The flames originated from the stove in the green-room. Two firemen, George W. Devitt and Charles O'Neil, were killed, and six were injured. It was valued at $80,000, and was insured for $45,750. The insurance on the furniture was $20,000. The building belonged to the Prentzell estate, and was leased by Thomas H. Johnson & Co., who recently spent $21,000 upon it. It was erected in 1850, and was an unfortunate speculation, never having been popular. The loss to the management was about $26,000. Among the sufferers were Mr. Van Horn, costumer; Amelia Dean, Minnie Jackson, Sophie Elmer, Fannie Bean, Charles Vincent, Little Joe, and J. F. Baymond, of the company, all of whom lose considerable wardrobe. Harry Mack also lost his performing dogs.

The New York Mercury says:

J. M. Wilder leaves for California immediately to engineer a speculation in the smaller towns Among the attractions are a baby elephant, Jack Hudson's Piute Indian, a learned goat, etc.

A Piute Indian, will be a startling novelty, and goats are such rare animals, that the show is sure to draw. A wilder speculation than this, we never heard of.

A London correspondent of the New York Mercury, is disappointed in the well-puned Mrs. Rousby, and considers her a cross between Mrs. Scott-Siddons and Bella Pateman, having the figure of the latter and being much less pretty than the former. He considers her also by no means the equal in talent of Miss Pateman, with whom she was once associated in a troupe under Rousby's management in the island of Jersey.

The New York Spirit of the Times says:

"There is the same difference," remarks a San Francisco paper, "between Boucicault and Gaylor that there is between a nightingale and a mudhen."

Why couldn't you say FIGARO, instead of a "San Francisco paper ?" We give you credit for your saying, sweet Spirit.

Mr. J. M. Ward and Miss Winnetta Montague were going "Through by Daylight" at the Chestnut street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 21.

Bartley Campbell is to manage the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, during the season of 1874-5. It is his intention to conduct a first-class comedy theatre, playing only a first-class stock company.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams were playing in Gayler's drama, "The Connie Soogah," at the Walnut street Theatre, Philadelphia.

The Kellogg Opera troupe were at the Philadelphia Academy of Music during the week.

Joe Murphy opened at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 2d.

Mme. Jaunauschek will appear at Booth's Theatre on the 23d.

Salvini played "Ingomar" at Hooley's Opera House, Chicago, on the 21.

Mr. Frank Mayo appeared in Lowell, Mass., on Feb. 4th and 5th.

Miss Neilson will appear at Booth's Theatre on April 20th.

Mr. Shell Barry played in Rochester, N. Y., during the week commencing Feb. 2d.

Susan Denin was in Omaha on the 12th.

The Strakosch troupe commenced their Boston season on the 3d.

Mr. Florence produced George Walker's play of "Coming Home" alias "Sithers to Grind." alias "Home; or Christmas Eve," for the first time in America, at the Opera House, Rochester, on the 23d ult., with tolerable success.

Miss Adelaide Phillips has formed a troupe for parlor opera for lyceums. The principal buffo artist is Signor Ferranti. The opera selected for the opening is the "Barber of Seville."

The mutual admiration critics of the "Hub," have become ecstatic in their laudation of Miss Rosa Rand, recently the stellar heroine of "Davy Crockett," at the Boston Theatre. She has been compared with Neilson, LeClercq and Clara Morris, all of whom she is said to equal. Alas! for Ross.

Aiken's Theatre, Chicago, was opened as a varieties house, under the title of the Great Adelphi Theatre, on the 2d.

Joe Murphy will play in Baltimore for one week from the 9th; Columbus, Ohio, 16th, one week,

Menacing Business.

We are extremely sorry to see the Bulletin trying to force advertising by publishing injurious paragraphs concerning business houses in this city. It pretended to be shocked when the Chronicle published a string of doggerel about oleomargarine, and yet in Saturday's issue we find the following infamous and mendacious libel, concerning a company which gives employment to a large number of men, though it throws a great many highly respectable cows out of employment:

"Oleomargarine, the new kind of butter, ought to be popular with lawyers and litigants, with whom "sue it" is a favorite article.

This means nothing else than that oleomargarine is no better (no butter?) than the suet. A conundrum for Mr. P.—"Was this inserted to influence a business house to advertise in the Bulletin?"

How to Train a Mother-in-Law.

All this bother with mothers-in-law is caused by letting them get the upper hand of you before you are married. An Oregon exchange tells us that:

A young man wanted to marry a girl in Yamhill County, but the mother of the girl did not like the arrangement, so she knocked him down with a board, and told him to clear out. He had spunk, and pitching in, knocked the old woman's nose out of joint, and while she was nursing it, he went away with the girl and got married.

Now that young man will never have any trouble with his mother-in-law. He commenced in time with her and let her know what kind of a man he was. Train up a mother-in-law in the way she should go, before she is your mother-in-law, and when she is your mother-in-law she will not depart from it.

Fortune's Favorites.

M. Capoul was a linen-draper's assistant in Paris, Madame Nilsson was a common street singing girl in Stockholm, Mr. Santley was a merchant's clerk at Liverpool, Signor Campanini was a nobody, and Signor Aramburo very little more, in Italy. Mr. Sims Reeves was the son of a parish clerk in Kent, and M. Devillier was a cooper in Boulogne. The wheel of Fortune turns round, such are the vagaries in the dame with regard to art."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looms so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little dinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Pursuit of Happiness.

Among the rights secured to citizens of this favored land, are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. If all would agree upon the right means of pursuing happiness, it would be enjoyed by all. The man who is really happy himself, makes those around him happy. There are too many, however, who are mistaken in their method of pursuing happiness. Ichabod Howl, is one of these. He has money, but he does not enjoy it; good health, but he is not comfortable; social acquaintance, but he takes no real pleasure in their company. He is never content with things as they are, but seeks happiness in finding out what is wrong. He assumes that there is something wrong in everything and everybody, and that is the chief object of his search. At the opera he sits in anxious expectation of some artiste singing out of tune. If this does not happen, he is disappointed. A painting gives him no pleasure, unless he can point out some false drawing in it; at dinner a deliciously prepared entree, with which we can find no fault, draws forth the remark: "goodness knows what unwholesome stuff it is made of." If Jones and Smith, who were about to have a law-suit, determine to compromise, Ichabod Howl tells them they are fools to do so. Jones points out the fact that the compromise is fair and satisfactory; Howl says he would go to law anyhow. (Howl is a lawyer, but we do not insinuate that this has anything to do with his giving this advice; we impute it to his disposition.) If a happy mother shows Howl her baby, and asks if it is not the picture of health, he says "a great many children are dying of whooping cough in my neighborhood." When Howl purchases anything he counts his change twice, and then looks at the storekeeper suspiciously, as much as to say "you would have cheated me if you had dared." When Howl joins a club, the first thing he does is to get an investigating committee appointed to look into the treasurer's accounts and examine the acts of the trustees. If it be urged that the club has full confidence in its treasurer and trustees, Howl says "it will do no harm to have an investigation anyhow." As to its hurting the feelings of the officers, he cares nothing for that, having no feeling of any kind himself. Howl thus pursues happiness, but we do not think he attains it. He is never cheated, but we are sure that there are men who are often cheated who are happier than he. He thinks that he always "gets the worth of his money," but he does not. Money rightly spent can purchase a great deal of happiness. Poor Ichabod Howl has not an idea of how to be happy. He sees a man who is happy and he thinks "that man has no right to be happier than I am," and he incontinently goes for that man and says something to make him uncomfortable. With such as Ichabod Howl the pursuit of happiness consists in indulging the power to make other people unhappy. But it does not work well. Ichabod is not happy; he is snubbed, shunned and dispised as an unpleasant, discontented, meddlesome man.

Equal to the Occasion.

Jack ——, of Kearny street, has a very red nose. He does not drink, but his Bardolphian nose makes people think he does. Jack has fallen in love with a pretty widow. The other day he was making desperate love to her, and exclaimed: "My heart burns with love for you." The widow replied; "Your heart burns with love eh? I should fancy the fire started in your nose." Jack was not abashed. He replied: "Never mind my nose, that is simply the chimney on fire."

Highly Sarcastic.

A little knot of ladies were discussing the subject of marriage. One of the party, a single young lady, said: "Matches are made in heaven." "Very likely," was the rejoinder of a married lady, "and they are often 'dipped' in the other place."

Putting Him to Use.

A lady in Boston cleared her house of flies by putting honey on her husband's whiskers when he was asleep. The flies stuck fast, and when he went out of the house he carried them out with him.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1n

A Rival of the Danbury News.

No one ever heard of the Danbury News, before Bailey began writing for it. Another paper, the Charlton County Brunswicker, has some one connected with it who writes as good paragraphs as the Danbury News man. We make the following selections: "What is the price of Remnants?" inquired a woman at the photograph gallery a day or two ago.

Wanted—Some pleasing and expressive synonym for "cordially invited." Address Church Committee.

The drunkard appears to have no particular mission in life. He seems to think he is put in this world just to "fill up."

No wonder that a man who drinks rum and fools around on a muddy night should appear rumpled and muddled in the morning.

It is difficult to understand why hard times do not come in Summer, when they could be more easily met, instead of in Winter, when hot whisky is almost a necessity.

There can be seen on our street, most any day, a man who, when a boy, used to commit to memory one hundred verses of Scripture every week. Now he can't get credit for two cents' worth of soap.

It will ever be a mystery to us why all the lanterns on a dark night, and all the umbrellas in rainy weather, are carried by persons going in an opposite direction to the one we wish to pursue.

"Will a straight flush beat four aces?" is a question that has cost some of the best blood of the country, and still brings out the deadly six shooter when it arises. Our Legislature should do something about this.

Is there a man who can sit patiently and be shown through an album of strange faces and listen with apparent relish to a biographical sketch of each faded old poodle of a grandmother or an aunt or uncle, whom he has never seen and doesn't want to see? If there is such a man we would like to know what kind of business he is engaged in, and whether he is making any money out of it.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

This week is the last of the appearance of the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe, prior to their departure for Sacramento. The performance this evening will commence with the very pleasing comedietta entitled "The Maid of Munster," in which Miss Jennie Lee will appear as Kate O'Brien and will sing "The Dream of Love is over," composed by Prof. O'Rearden, and "Kathleen Mavourneen." J. P. Barnett will play Charles Paragon, and H. D. Thompson Sir Lawrence Paragon. After this, Virginia Gabriel's delightful operetta entitled "Widows' Bewitched," which proved such a success last week, will be presented by Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelcher, Mrs. Julia Melville and John Howson.

California Theatre.

There will be a tremendous rush to this theatre to-night to welcome the popular manager, who will on this occasion make his first appearance since his return, crowned with Eastern bays. He will play the character of Spartacus in "The Gladiator," a tragedy by Dr. Bird, written for the late Edwin Forrest, and never played by any other actor than himself. The play will be produced with new scenery by Porter, new dresses and appointments. A large number of seats, and all the boxes were sold on Saturday, and it is confidently anticipated that the entire house will be sold before the curtain rises to-night, so great is the desire of the public to participate in the welcome tendered to the popular manager.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The wonderful Siegrist Troupe and their intelligent dogs will commence their farewell engagement at this place of amusement to-night and those who wish to see them before their return to the East should avail themselves of this opportunity. Fred O'Brien has created a furore by his wonderful leap over ten horses, and pyramid of Leon, Sacorita Millie Turnour is as popular as ever, and all the stars comprised in the great combination performing here are rewarded with much applause for the novel feats which they nightly present. By referring to our first page it will be seen that an entire new programme will be given to-night.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic songs, and with Ed. Murray in "The Irish Couple," Moore and Gray in song and dance, Ed. Murray in his "Budget of Fun," Cassim and Fritz in "Spider and Fool," Johnny Tuers in amusing acts, Ed. Murray, Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers, Charley Nickerson, and others in the local play of "The Streets of San Francisco," and many other attractive performances, will be presented to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Von Dinklespiel's Troubles" in which Harry Dever, Geo. Foster, Hughey Morton, Frank Mortimore, Walter Parks, and Misses Maggie Brewer, Fannie Webster, and Mollie La Forrest, appear has made a hit at this house. It is preceeded nightly by a capital first part and brilliant olio of songs, acts, and dances.

Notes.

J. O Williamson and his wife, Miss Maggie Moore, the charming young comedienne of the California Theatre, one of the most promising of the many actresses who have commenced their career in California, left for Salt Lake City yesterday morning. They will open at the theatre on the 19th and play a starring engagement of nine nights during which they will produce two new and original plays by "A. Malgum" entitled "A California Girl" and "Struck Oil." These artists will thus fill up a temporary leave of absence granted them by the management during the season of tragedy at the California Theatre, and will serve an opportunity to try the strength of their wings before pluming them for a bolder and more extended flight.

There was a capital house at the California Theatre last night when Donizetti's opera of "La Fille du Regiment" was performed, with Miss Annie Elser as Maria. The rendition of the opera was not a very happy one, and Miss Elser did not make as great a success in the role of Maria as she has in some others, though she played it with considerable vivacity, and won an encore for her drum solo.

The postponed benefit to Madame Bianchi, will come off at the California Theatre on Sunday evening next, when the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be presented. Tickets already sold will be good for that occasion.

The Girards will leave for Australia, on the steamer of March 28th, under engagement to George Coppin, and will probably proceed thence to England.

Madame Anna Bishop, who is to leave for Australia on the 28th inst., will give a final concert in this city on the 26th.

WELCOME.

[The following song of welcome to the Californian Star Mr. JOHN MCCULLOUGH, who brings back with him the commendations of the Press and People wherever he has played, was written by Mr. WALTER LEMAN, of the California Theatre Company:]

What a sight is this before me!
What a glorious scene is here!
Smiling throngs of happy faces,
Crowded seats in every tier,
From the city's West Addition,
All the people sure have come
From "Potrero" and the "Mission"—
Building full from base to dome;
In the heart of every one,
A welcome home to noble John.

Oakland, too, and Alameda,
Send their deputations forth;
So does new South San Francisco,
And the Beach to slept the North.
All the city, wise and witty—
Youth and manhood here repair,
All the brave among the bravest,
All the fairest of the fair;
On the lips of every one,
A welcome home to Glorious John.

Nor alone before the curtain,
Are the words of welcome spoken,
Stage and orchestra together
Join you in the friendly token:
All within the Muses' Temple,
Actor—actress—artizan,
Emulate your admiration,
For the manager and man:
And unite with you in one
Loud voice—Welcome, Genial John,

Here he won his earliest triumphs,
Here, his young ambition grew;
And the true dramatic jewel,
Found and recognized by you
In our California placer,
With effulgence bright and clear—
Glows—for men of "wisest censure"
Have approved your judgment here;
Twining wreaths of laurel on Shakespeare's Hero—Sterling John.

Who like him can hold the mirror
Up to nature? Who impart
All the stirring, wild emotions,
Struggling in the human heart?
For Lear's grief—at Benedick's raillery,
He can make you weep or smile,
Realize Othello's torture,
Rhetelieu's craft—or Richard's guile;
Every sense sits fitting on
Our true artist Noble John.

From the far Atlantic border,
From fresh fields and pastures new,
With a rich and ripe experience,
He returns again to you,
Welcome him, as Californians,
Welcome those they love—on sight,
Giving and receiving pleasures
In your welcome of to-night;
So my grateful task is done,
Hip, Hurrah! for Glorious John.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go

Here men can talk their business
While lounged in a pile

Drunks in the Cars.

The Meridian, of Chicago, has been writing about the different kinds of drunks to be seen in the street cars in that city. After giving a description of a chronic case, it says:

That is your professional drunkard. The amateur is a different bird. Jones is an amateur. It was only two days ago Jones was injudiciously full. Being painfully aware of inebriety, he endeavored to conceal it from the public by buttoning up his coat very closely, imparting an abnormal stiffness to his knees, and tripping over his own heels. He stalked up to a State street car on the corner of Madison, walked briskly in, just as the horses started forward, and instantly tumbled out again backward without unbending a muscle. Straightway he recovered the upright, splashed with mud, re-entered, seating himself beside an acquaintance, making no sign of his mishap. Presently he turned to this individual and queried:

"Elishan?"

"No."

He considered a moment, and again asked:

"Offthetrack?"

"No."

More reflection—sleepily, then—

"Runovera prespice?"

"No."

"Splozhn?"

"No."

Somnolent cogitation,

"Any acc'dnt?"

"Not any at all."

He took this piece of information into his intellectual maw, and digesting it, concluded that he was very drunk indeed. Anxious to cover up the fact, and turn the matter off respectably, he shortly turned again with the bland observation:

"Well, if I'd anone that I woodeda got out."

He blinked off into an unconscious state in a little while, then "woke up" with his eyes very wide open, to show everybody that he had only been thinking. He rode on about a mile beyond his street and was finally taken home in a hack. Have you ever seen Jones?

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 416, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Iac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 76 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

The "Sensation Press."

The Alta, Call and Bulletin are howling at the Chronicle as a "sensation newspaper." The Chronicle is taking a back track now. There is nothing sensational about the following, which appeared in yesterday's issue:

A subscriber says: My horse rubs his tail and is fast taking the hair off. What shall I do? I saw a prescription in a recent issue, but have mislaid the number. Answer—First use a wash composed of borax, half an ounce, dissolved in water, one pint; then apply the following: Take of acetate of lead and lac sulphur, of each two drachms; glycerine, four ounces; rain water, eight ounces; mix and apply by means of a sponge. Repeat the dressing every second day, using the above preparations alternately. The horse may be troubled by pinworms.

In the same paper there was an article on stringhalt and another on tumors. As far as we can judge from appearances, the Chronicle is trying to turn itself into a horse paper, with an idea of becoming a stable institution. To-morrow we expect to see an answer to a correspondent who says his horse is eating head off. Really there is no harm in the Chronicle now-a-days.

England and America.

Ambrose Bierce, who is writing the Town Crier for the London Figaro which is published by an American, makes the following sensible remarks in a recent issue: Of international hatred the universality is insufficiently remarked; all nations cordially detest each other. Englishmen and Americans are the best of friends—England and America are the worst of enemies. The reason is clear: individual character is commonly agreeable; national character is always contemptible. A man otherwise modest, amiable, and sensible, will say, and believe—in his capacity as national unit—things which are arrogant, provoking, and silly. The person who would recoil with disgust from one who should praise himself or his family, will brag and swagger through a whole editorial column—or a whole book, for that matter—concerning the exalted virtues of his country, with a serene unconsciousness that he is disgracing himself, and an equally calm disregard of the feelings of disgust or exasperation with which he is inspiring every reader of another nationality. Who does not believe in the superiority of his countrymen in bravery and sense, and his countrywomen in beauty and virtue? And who, from the fear of being offensive to every other people, will restrain himself from maintaining the vulgar untruth? As long as each nation claims a color monopoly of universal virtues, every other nation will hate it cordially, instinctively, and very properly.

An Apt Simile.

"Well, Mr.——, how do you feel?" said a friend to a defeated candidate a few days after election. "I feel, I suppose," he replied, "as Lazarus did." "How was that?" "Why," said he, "Lazarus was licked by dogs, and so am I."

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. "The Critics Criticised."

DEAR FIGARO: I should like to say a few words about critics, and beg leave to speak. In undertaking the task of reviewing the various criticisms good, bad and indifferent which daily appear in the journals of this city, our task is both difficult and dangerous, and the burthen taken upon ourselves seems greater than we can bear, (Longfellow excuse) for the following reasons:

"In criticising critics pray beware
Lest any erring statement lay you bare
To bitter critic's pens, thrice dipt in spite,
And therefore trebly pungent in the fight
If from a razor you would wipe old stains
Beware the edge may cut you for your pains."

In the first place, let us define criticism, namely, a close and accurate survey of a play, coupled with generous approval where the impersonation of character admits, and a not too vigorous censure where rebuke is necessary, always remembering that the young actor may be by necessity forced to play a role totally unsuited to his or her capabilities. There are four classes of critits in this city, or rather there are four heads under which gentlemen who are employed in this capacity may be classified. Firstly, the gushing critic, secondly, the hypercritical critic, thirdly, the pragmatical or impertinent critic, and last, but not least, the incompetent critic. With these we will couple four papers, the criticisms in which fully justify the allusion. Firstly, the Alta, revered in age, but whose gush in her theatrical columns fully balances the deep thought displayed in her editorials; secondly, the Post, which employs a young gentleman whose dramatic sketches may justly be termed hypercritical. We glanced at the Post of Tuesday, in which appeared a somewhat extended notice of "Margaret Elmore," and in observing the particular attention bestowed on every detail of both the actors' and actresses' wardrobe, we were quite overcome with the sudden idea that the young gentleman who usually writes up the theatres being sick, he had dispatched his tailor with full authority to write what he chose, and that he, not being able to find fault with either acting, reading, or setting of the play, his comprehensive mind had immediately reverted to yards and ells: material, etc.. For the pragmatical critic, we call the attention of any one to the Call's Monday morning columns, but more especially to one some months back, where a certain charming young actress was in a matter of fact sort of way put down as far from pretty. This gentleman usually, however, scars and soars in language extremely Johnsonian, and mightily unsatisfactory to the ladies and gentlemen who do not meet with favor in his sight. For a long time the fourth of our readings adorned the brow of the Chronicle's dramatic writer without being exactly incompetent. That gentleman's writing usually savored of Era Almanack's and musty smatterings of long forgotton dramatic lore. The gentleman who now occupies the responsible position, when he does condescend to notice anything at all, usually ignores detail, and hatchet in hand cleaves his way through the principal characters, forcibly reminding the reader of a Town Crier out of place. The Golden Era, a weekly budget of thrilling narratives, on each of which there hangs a tale, where maudlin sentiment and weak poetry, very much impaired by tobacco smoke are greedily accepted, publishes a dramatic summary chiefly noticeable for gush. The Bulletin, after digesting all the morning papers, endeavors to couch the same meaning in different words, the natural consequence being a confused and hopeless murder of the English language. But out of all these papers, not one even publishes a true and faithful criticism, devoid of all prejudice, in which the actor, although the truth may read unpleasantly, has to acknowledge such to be the case; a kind of mirror by which he can correct himself. The Alta spoils, the Post disgusts, the Call discourages, and the Chronicle offends. How very easy it is for a man to sit down and find fault, sometimes from want of knowledge, sometimes from prejudicial motives or maybe an empty and billious stomach. It looks so very easy from the front, but that little line of glaring lights constitute a boundary more formidable and more confounding than imagination can well conceive. A critics motto should be

"Always be just, use leniency, with grace
Gently reprove all faults, in gesture speech and face."

ACES,

Emotional Plays and Players.

The Clipper has the following sensible remarks on the above subject: We should much like to know the real meaning of this new phrase that has crept into the theatrical profession. We are continually hearing of some "emotional actress," or "emotional play." If an actress knows her business—and "leading ladies" are supposed to do so—do they not, as a rule, show emotion if they play an emotional part? There are very few plays, ancient or modern, that have not some emotional scenes in them. The way that the "emotional actress" and the "emotional plays" are being quoted just now would give the idea that emotion on the stage is a new thing, a novelty. If so, what style of actresses have we heretofore had to play Shakespeare's beautiful heroines? Who could play Cordelia without emotion?—or Juliet, Desdemona, etc.? All these plays require emotional acting. Are we to presume that for three hundred years these parts have been played without emotion? If an actress knows her business, and plays these parts, it is an understood thing by the manager and by the audience that emotion is a part of that business. A leading actress should know how to cry, to laugh, and to scream! It is the power to do these things that constitutes her the "leading lady." The mere words can be parroted into any one. The very word actress means that she can act, portray feeling, be emotional, and be for the time being the person she is representing. Why, then, do we see one particular actress called an "emotional actress," or a particular play called an emotional piece? If our plays and our actresses have heretofore been without emotion, we pity the audiences who have had to sit through five acts of mere words. They must have been equally bereft of emotional powers to have been able to do it. A good actress will always be able to make her audience laugh or cry; and we presume there are still some good actresses among us.

Equal to the Occasion.

Jack ——, of Kearny street, has a very red nose. He does not drink, but his Bardolphian nose makes people think he does. Jack has fallen in love with a pretty widow. The other day he was making desperate love to her, and exclaimed: "My heart burns with love for you." The widow replied; "Your heart burns with love eh? I should fancy the fire started in your nose." Jack was not abashed. He replied: "Never mind my nose, that is simply the chimney on fire."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

A splendid audience, mainly composed of the best people of San Francisco, assembled in this theatre last night, to welcome the worthy manager John McCullough, who was on this occasion to make his first appearance on the boards of his own theatre since his return from the East, and play the late Edwin Forrest's great role of Spartacus, in "The Gladiator." The money taken on this occasion amounted to $2 000 75, $61 more than was ever taken on any single occasion since the theatre was built. The curtain rose, and after a brief opening scene between Ballarus Lentulus (John Wilson,) and Bracchius (Walter M. Leman,) John McCullough made his appearance as Spartacus, the Gladiator, brought in chains to Rome. Too much credit cannot be accorded this sterling actor for still sustaining his assumed character under such circumstances. Cheer after cheer broke forth from the audience, but still all that was to be seen on the stage was Spartacus the slave. With a slight inclination of the head, Mr. McCullough acknowledged the plaudits of his assembled friends, and then the play went on. The plot is as follows: Spartacus, the leader of a band in Thrace, is betrayed by his followers into the hands of the Romans, is brought to Rome, and sold to Ballatus Lentulus, as a Gladiator. He refuses to swear to serve his master in that capacity, but when he finds his wife Senona, (Miss Annie Graham), and child are in slavery, he consents, in order to procure kind treatment for them, to enter the arena. Here he meets a Gaul, whom he defeats and slays, while professing his disgust at such cold-blooded butchery. His next antagonist is Phasarius (Barton Hill,) one of the most noted gladiators in Rome in whom he recognizes his younger brother captured by the Romans many years before. The brothers instead of fighting embrace, and Spartacus appeals to the Praetor, Marcus Lucinius Crassus, (W. A. Mestayer,) not to command him to imbrue his hands in fraternal blood. Crassus bids them proceed with the combat; Pharsarius, informs Spartacus of a planned uprising of the Gladiators, gives the signal, and the captive overpowering the guards, make their escape. After this, Spartacus, having raised an army, defeats the Romans in many fights, releases his wife from captivity, and Pharsarius captures Julia (Miss Ellie Wilton,) niece to Crassus and Florus, (J. N Long,) her lover, son of Ballatus Lentulus. Pharsarius claims his captive, Spartacus defends her from his brother, and promises her safety. Pharsarius offended at this, and also considering that his brother will not consent to march on Rome, deserts, taking with him a large portion of the army. His troops are routed and he escapes and returns to his brother in a penitent frame of mind. Spartacus surrounded by Roman troops puts his wife and child in the care of Phasarius. He, led by mad ambition to distinguish himself, and desire for revenge, instead of piercing the Roman lines by stealth plunges into the fight, and the wife and child of Spartacus are slain. He returns desperately wounded, imparts the news to Spartacus and dies, Spartacus at first determines to slay Julia, but she reminding him that Senona promised her her life, he relents and sends her to her uncle. Spartacus, then gathering his men together, forces his way into the Roman intrenchments and dies fighting. John McCullough, as Spartacus, did some superb acting, his positions were natural and graceful, and his reading of the many speeches which occurred in his part characterized by a quiet intensity that was far more telling than the rant which many actors indulge in in similar parts. He was ably supported by Barton Hill, who frequently gained applause for his admirable reading and acting. Miss Annie Graham, as Leonora, acted and read well; and Miss Ellie Wilton was particularly good as Julia, fairly bringing down the house in the scene where she pleads for her life and that of her lover. W. A. Mestayer made a splendid Roman, and as the Praetor, Marcus Lucinius Crassus, perfectly realized the character of a Roman soldier and patrician; Henry Edwards played the part of the old centurion, Jovious, very effectively; John Wilson, as the cold-hearted, unscrupulous Ballatus-Lentulus, gave a strong rendition of his part; J. N. Long read and acted the part of Florus well; and E. J. Buckley showed what could be done by a good actor with a small part, by making Ærumanus, though he had little to say, always an object of interest; Walter M. Leman had a good many [illegible] read with due effect: and S. W. Leach performed his part, that of Lucius Gellius, very well. Mr. McCullough was called out at the end of the first, second, fourth and fifth acts, and on the last occasion of his being called before the curtain acceded to the demand of the audience for a speech:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: Kind friends—for indeed you have proved yourselves my friends ever since I came here a stranger, and have in every way encouraged me. I feel, now I return from the East, that all the success I met with there I owe to you. You, by your endorsement of my efforts here, secured me a hearing in every city. I must tell you how proud I am of my adopted California—any one who ever heard me speak of it on the other side of the mountains could tell you—and at the risk of being thought to boast, I must say how well San Francisco stands among the cities of the United States in the matter of appreciation of the drama. You have, by your cordial support, enabled me to produce here, night after night and season after season the works of Shakespeare and other standard plays, while in New York, the metropolis of the country, a city with over a million of inhabitants, there was only one theatre devoted to the standard drama, and that theatre has driven its manager, a grand actor, the son of an actor, into bankruptcy. Ladies and gentlemen, I will not detain you longer, but, thanking you all, my personal friends, and the gentlemen of the Press, who have done so much to assist me in gaining a favorable reception wherever I have been, will wish you all good night.

This very pleasant little speech sent the audience home in high good humor, and we doubt not there will be an equally pleasant assemblage at the theatre to-night to witness the second performance of "The Gladiator."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The new programme presented at this popular place of amusement, last night, comprised many admirable features and gave great pleasure to all who witnessed it. Woods-Cooke's principal somersault act was much applauded, the Siegrist family, who appeared in their beautiful parlor entertainment, received a hearty welcome, and Senorita Turnour, Fred O'Brien, Leon and Lascelle, and all the other stars presented some of their most attractive performances. The same bill will be given to-night. The Roman Wrestlers are engaged for next week.

Opera House.

The last week of the engagement of the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Opera Bouffe, Burlesque and Comedy Troupe at this house, opened brilliantly last night with the charming comedietta of "Perfection; or, The Maid of Munster." Miss Jennie Lee, as the fascinating Kate O'Brien, acted the part capitally, and won much applause for the charming manner in which she sang Prof. O'Reardon's song "The Dream of Love is O'er," and Kathleen Mavourneen." J. P. Burnett, as Charles Pargeon, did some very clever light comedy acting. H. D. Thompson played the character of Sir Lawrence Paragon well, and altogether the piece was most successfully presented. The performance concluded with the delightful operetta of "Widows Bewitched," by Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher, and John Howson. This is, as we have said before, one of the most pleasing musical compositions ever presented at this house, and cannot fail to be enjoyed by all lovers of good music.

The Carnival Ball.

The Carnival Ball given at Platt's Hall last night by the Italian Benevolent Society, for the benefit of their Hospital, was largely attended and was a very pleasant affair. The comic masks were numerous, and there were many original costumes. A lady dressed to represent Italy, attracted much attention and did good service by selling bouquets for the benefit of the society. A character representing Neptune, was well made up, the dress consisting of canvass on which were fastened bunches of seaweed and clusters of shells, the clowns were lively and caused considerable fun, and altogether the ball was quite a success.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross in serio comic songs, Ed. Murray in his Budget of Fun, and the two in "The Irish Couple" are very popular at this house. The local comic drama of "The Streets of San Francisco," in which Ed. Murray, J. W. Summers, Miss Jennie Johnson, Charley Nickerson, John Woodard, Miss Fanny Garretson and others appear, is a great success, and "The Parlor Circus" by Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly and Charley Nickerson, with which the evening's fun terminates, was received with roars of laughter.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Von Dinklespiel's Travels" concludes a capital entertainment, in which Ned Buckley, Frank Mortimore, Miss Maggie Brewer, Geo. Foster, Hughey Morton, Miss Lizzie Harmon, and a great number of others, whose names are published on our first page, appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

THE DREAM OF LOVE IS O'ER.

[A new song published by M. Gray, words and music by PROFESSOR O'REARDON, of "Tumbler-onicon" fame, now sung nightly by MISS JENNIE LEE, at the Opera House.]

O we've parted from each other, and our dream of love is o'er,
That bright dream was too beautiful to last,
And we'll meet as only strangers in the future
evermore,
Our once tender love is buried in the past.
I've tried to bear the blow without sighs or bitter tears.
And tried to smile when my heart ach'd with pain,
But the burning tears would fall in spite of all that I could do,
For thee, darling, whom I ne'er shall see again.

CHORUS—My dream of love is o'er,
I try to smile when my heart aches with pain,
When the memory of the past comes up before me like a dream,
For thee, darling, whom I ne'er shall see again.

They say you love another, and he's claimed
you for his bride,
And you ask me to forgive thee and forget,
The vows we pledged together, by the rippling
of the tide,
As I looked into thy beauteous eyes, my pet.
Ah! the heart is like the tide that flows and ebbs at will,
And I would not cease to love thee, if I could,
Through all the future years, I'll love thee,
dearly love thee still,
For I could not cease to love thee if I would.
CHORUS—

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. P. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

WEDNESDAY.....FEBRUARY 18, 1874

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre; and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences.

BARTON HILL,
Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres.

T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements only attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Simply Ignorance.

Every dramatic critic in San Francisco except one praised Barton Hill's acting in the role of Pharsarius; the exception is the individual detailed by the Bulletin to attend the California Theatre on the production of "The Gladiator" and reappearance of John McCollough. He says:

"Pharsarius" is his chief supporter; but, in the hands of Barton Hill, if we except the scene in which he describes the horrible fate of his rash and unfortunate comrade in the assault on Rome, it is not much of a success.

He had the opportunity of reading what men who attend the theatre every night and who see every new play, and every new actor, said on this subject, but preferred to set up his own opinion. The opinion of the Bulletin with regard to dramatic matters is simply worth nothing, any one and every one writes dramatic notices for that paper, and each individual expresses his opinion as if he were the only person qualified to give one. Barton Hill during an entire season supported Edwin Forrest in the character referred to, and played it to the satisfaction of the great actor; but he has not succeeded in pleasing the critic of the Bulletin.

Wait!

Of domestic happiness, Miss Braddon, the novelist, says: In many of the conjunctures, crises and involvements of human life, the only safe, or kind, or wife course, is to sit quiet, in this solemn, though heart-broken silence, under the shadow of which, it often happens, that wrongs slowly work themselves right; pains lesson to tranquil endurance; or an unseen hand, by some sudden sweep of destiny, clears the dark and thorny pathway, and makes every step easy, peaceful and plain."

How Is This?

We don't quite understand the following:

Hon. Marvin H. Bovee will deliver sixty lectures in Illinois against capital punishment.

Is it intended to make compulsory attendance at these sixty lectures a substitute for capital punishment.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

A Visit to Barnum.

C. P. Q. Philander Smiff, the great naturalist of the London Figaro, gives an account of his visit to Barnum, from which we make the following extract: No sooner did I understand that Mr. P. T. Barnum was amongst us, than I yearned to see that wonderful man; and when, after many futile inquiries, I one day last week saw a letter from him to the Times, with his address appended, I lost no time in packing up a few portable phenomena in a portmanteau, and waiting upon him at his Regent-street abode.

There was nothing outside the street-door to show that the "Prince of Showmen" was domiciled within; and it was not until the door was opened to me by a tattooed Caffre maid, and I had fallen over an antediluvian man in a glass case, who had been carelessly left in the passage, that I realised that Barnum was indeed lodging on the first-floor. But, once inside, there was no getting rid of that realisation. After picking myself up, and putting the primeval mummy in a corner, I all but trod on a boa-constrictor which had descended from a hat-peg to which it had been insecurely fastened, and was making off as fast as it could toward a courtyard at the back, incited no doubt by the smell of a talking-fish and an electric eel, which I could see outside, fraternising in a washing-tub.

I called the Caffre girl's attention to the snake, but she was so busy helping out two giant sisters, who had just arrived in a covered furniture-van to seek an engagement, that it would have gone hard with the abnormal fish, had not an Indian with a tom-tom come down-stairs at that moment, and charmed the boa-constrictor on to the hat-peg again, with a celebrity that secured Mr. Barnum's warm approbation, and an offer from him, over the banisters, to engage both the Indian and his snake at twenty dollars a week, for a twelve-month.

Then he caught sight of me. "Are you the man-monkey," he said, "that was to call at twelve?"

I sternly resented the insinuation, and gave Barnum an overwhelming look. "My name is Smiff!" I added, with proud emphasis.

"Smiff!" echoed P. T. B. "I have long wished to see you. Come up."

So I went up, picking my way, for there were several dwarfs sitting about the stairs, and a living skeleton trying to recover his breath on the first landing-mat. "Come in," said Barnum leading the way to the large front room, "and sit down," he added, sweeping a couple of performing dogs and a learned pig off one of the chairs. So I went in and sat down, having first nodded, in a general way, to the double-headed nightingale, the Siamese twins, the petrified man, and a mermaid or two, who were lolling about the apartment.

An Appropriate Opening.

After the funeral of a woman in Jersey, the mourning relatives returned to the bereaved house and sat down to a quiet dinner. One of the relatives made a sympathizing speech to the afflicted husband, who commenced his reply by saying, "This is the happiest moment of my life." He couldn't understand why all his wife's relatives got up from the table and hurried out of the house as though they were angry. He thought he had used the right words for the opening of a speech.

A Brief Telegram.

A lecture committee at Milford, Me., wrote to Boston, inquiring what Mrs. Scott-Siddons would charge to read for them. The agent answered: "Three hundred dollars and expenses. Answer, as Mrs. Siddons will sail for Europe at once, if you don't want her." The reply of the committee was brief, but expressive: "Let her sail."

It Don't Work

A young man in Ashtabula sought to secure his sweetheart by strategy, so he took her out for a boat-ride, and threatened to jump overboard into the lake if she didn't consent to marry him. But it did not work. She offered to bet him a dollar that he daren't dive in.

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News of Saturday.]

The amount of enjoyment a bad boy manages to squeeze out of this vale of tears is certainly astonishing.

There is nothing that will change a man so much as a great grief, unless it is shaving off his mustache.

There is a very perceptible break in the gloom and depression which ushered in the new year. Our people have gone to chewing again.

One of the hardest working men in Danbury earns his bread by the sweat of other people's brows. He makes sweat leathers for hats.

There is always some incentive to the American youth to study and work. He may not become President of the United States, but he may be the oldest Mason.

There is a general opinion that the ice crop for 1874 will prove a complete failure, and much suffering has been apprehended among the wealthy next Summer.

A local poet, well-known to our readers for the spirit of unrest pervading his verses, and the weird sadness which breathes through every line, and which must have touched all sensitive natures, ate fifty-five oysters on a wager, Saturday night.

A Slawson farmer was negotiating with a workingman for his labor. He represented that $15 a month and board was sufficient pay. The man demurred. "But, consider," said the farmer, argumentatively, "the location. There haint a man died on this farm in ten years. Health is something." A bargain was made.

We are much obliged to somebody for a report of a convention of asthmatic people, held in Denver, Colorado, in December last. It is difficult to decipher the entire volume for the tears that will fill the reader's eyes, as he proceeds through the detail given by the victims. Every family should have a copy.

A prudent young man on Nelson street, not being able to beau his girl home from church, sent his father to do it for him. He said if he had been keeping company with her any length of time, there might have been no necessity for the precaution, but as he was but little acquainted with her it was different.

At a recent fire in this vicinity the owner of the property, a man with a wooden leg, being confused by the sudden awakening and cries of the populace, screwed his leg on backwards and presented to the astonished and awe-struck neighbors the spectacle of a man going to two opposite directions at once.

An applicant for old clothes at a Pine street residence, Saturday, received a half dozen soiled paper collars with the advice "to turn them and chalk the edges." This might be called generosity without judgment, and is in keeping with the act of a soldier's mother, during the late war, who sent him in a Christmas box an elegant spittoon.

At a recent funeral in Danbury where several organizations were in attendance, no crape badges were provided for a female society. The president, after fidgeting about in a manner peculiar to her unfortunate and unhappy sex, suddenly blurted out, "I declare! I don't enjoy this funeral one bit!" The announcement cast a gloom over the entire gathering.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

Miss Jennie Lee is particularly amusing in the character of the sprightly Kate O'Brien in "The Maid of Munster," and the operetta of "Widows Bewitched," performed by Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, John Howson and Mrs. Julia Melville, is much enjoyed by all who hear it. With our lines of cars passing within a few paces of the Opera House, rainy weather need not keep the public away. To-morrow night George T. Evans will take his benefit. The extra attractions prepared for this occasion are specified on our first page. Madame Anna Bishop has most kindly volunteered, and will appear with a host of other talent there specified.

California Theatre.

Another deputation sent by the public of San Francisco greeted Manager McCullough on his making his second appearance last night. "The Gladiator" was performed excellently well, and the handsome manner in which it was mounted was the subject of general commendation. It will probably be played every evening this week, and at the matinee on Saturday, The next production will be "Richelieu."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The amphitheatre is a most comfortable place to go to to get out of the rain, and the entertainment given there is one that cannot fail to please every one. There will be a matinee performance to-day. The Siegrists, Fred O'Brien, Senorita Tarnour, Wooda Cooke and all the stars will appear.

Bella Union Theatre.

"The Streets of San Francisco," by Ed. Murray, S. W. Summers, Miss Jennie Johnson, Charley Nickerson and others, "The Parlor Circus" by Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly and Charley Nickerson, song and dance by Moore and Bray, "The Irish Couple" by Miss Alice Rose and Ed. Murray, gymnastic feats by Cassim and Fritz, and a great variety of entertainments make up the bill at this house.

Buckley's Varieties.

Ned Buckley, Miss Ida May, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie Brewer, Frank Mortimore, Harry Devoy and a host of others appear at this house in an entertainment terminating with "Von Dunklespiel's Troubles."

Woodward's Gardens.

The latest novelty at these gardens is the Cosmorama, a collection somewhat resembling the Happy Family, the trained animals are exhibited every day, and there is skating in the Pavilion. On Saturday afternoon the ascensions of the captive balloon will be commenced, and people will be allowed to take a trip to the clouds every half hour with Professor Allen as pilot.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Trisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

UNBOUND.

BY ELLA DIETZ.

Depart! I will not have my dream dispelled,
I will not see the garlands I have thrown
About thee, droop and wither one by one,
I will not lose the vision once beheld.

Go, go and leave me—see!—the sun is set,
But in this golden ray of lingering light
There yet is time for parting ere the night
Shall fall between us, shadowing regret.

Depart! before the echo shall have died,
That said "I love." I dare not now repeat
Those words again, and O! if tones less sweet
Should break the silence, could thy heart abide?

The wind that brought your bark with swelling sail
Gaily to port, has changed! 'tis now at north;
The white-capped waves receding call you forth,—
Go with the falling tide and northern gale.

Depart! before the quivering cord shall break
With sudden snap, betwixt you and your hope.
Weigh anchor! Trust not to the straining rope,
For hope, once lost, no telling can retake

Depart! while I can say with steady eyes
God bless and speed you on your outward way.
I fain would be as you going as one day
I blessed your coming with a glad surprise.

When I shall see once more thy white-winged barque
Shine out against the purple mist, and gleam
With the old radiance of that first sweet dream,
My heart shall gladden through the gathering dark.

And I will hold thee thus for evermore
In memory's thought-vision, blameless, true and free,
Though thou shalt wander on the wind-tossed sea,
And I alone, watch by this dreary shore.

—Arcadian.

Beware of "Infants."

Let the girls beware of very young men. According to the verdict in an important breach of promise case tried before Judge Neilson, of Brooklyn, recently, young men may make all the promises to marry they please; they cannot be held responsible if under twenty-one years of age. The facts were elicited that, on the Fourth of July last, Henry Graf met Mary Treiber on a moonlight excursion, saw her home, made love to her, and promised to marry her, but failed to do so. His counsel set up the plea of infancy, the defendant having been born January 1, 1853, and on that plea a hard-hearted jury decided that the disappointed Miss Treiber was not entitled to the $20,000 damages she claimed for blighted affections, etc., etc.

Denver Diversions.

Daily pistol practice in the streets of Denver, says a correspondent, prevents life being a burden in that city. The most profitable business a man can undertake up there is that of an undertaker.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba.
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-t

A Singer in Trouble.

The Ohio State Journal contains the following: Phillip Phillips, who sings for Jesus at $100 a night, has an unpleasantness pending with the concert committee of one of the churches. It seems that this church, on some of those occasions where it is necessary to clothe charity in the garb of carnal enjoyment, employed Phillips to assist at an entertainment for the purpose of raising money. Phillips would not agree to sing unless they would place the whole programme under his control. As a consequence there was so much Phillips that the bulk of the audience stampeded at the end of the first part. And now the brethren publish a card about Phillips, stating the facts as above, in which they call him "this pig-headed pilgrim," and declare that the rest of their concerts will "retain the excellence" which had distinguished them; and "which has been only marred, so far, by this pious fraud."

A Practical Suggestion.

The Utica Herald tells a story which we reprint for the information of car conductors in all parts of the world: "Two old ladies troubled a conductor on the Central road recently. One protested that she certainly would die instantly if the window were opened, while the other emphatically declared that it would kill her immediately if the window were shut. An experienced traveler advised the conductor to settle the dispute in this way: 'Open the window and kill one, then close it and suffocate the other, and we shall have peace.' We grieve to say that the story does not tell us to the success of the suggestion.

One of those Child stories.

A wretched cynic writes: "A bright little five-year-old was looking through a picture book the other night, when she suddenly paused, gazed eagerly into her mother's face, and while there shone in her eyes the light of a wisdom beyond her years said—[blamed if we haven't forgotten what she said]."

Desperate Men.

The impoverished "working-men" of Chicago talk of starting a newspaper. The Journal of that city thinks that if they put this plan into execution, they will be poor indeed before spring.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line, Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

John McCullough in his great impersonation of Spartacus in "The Gladiator," has drawn splendid houses. The bill will remain unchanged during the present week. Next week "Richelieu" will be produced

Opera House.

To-night, George T. Evans, conductor and musical composer, will be the recipient of a benefit at this house, and an extraordinary entertainment will be presented. It will commence with the comedietta of "The Happy Pair," by Miss Jennie Lee and J. P. Burnett, after this the grand chorus from "I Lombardi" will be sung by the Italian Opera Chorus; this will be followed by a romanza by Signor Carmini Morley, and a ballad by Mme. Anna Bishop; and then the highly successful operetta entitled "Widows Bewitched" will be performed by Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher and John Howson. The performance will conclude with a grand concert by the Amphion Quartette, Signor Carmini Morley, Alfred Wilkie, the Bohemian Club Choir, and an orchestra of forty-five musicians. The full programme is published on our first page. The public will be glad of this opportunity to shew their appreciation of the talent and industry evinced by Professor Evans both as conductor and composer.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

Even during the rainy weather this place of amusement has done a good business, and now it is fine there will be a rush to see the elegants. Fred O'Brien, Senorita Turnour, and the numerous other attractions. There is now no extra charge for reserved seats.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Rose and Ed. Murray are great favorites at this house. They appear nightly in specialties, and together in "The Irish couple," Johnny Thoes appears in amusing acts, "The Windy Guards" and "The Parlor Circus," and also in the first part.

Buckley's Varieties.

Among the amusing acts performed at this house by Frank Mortimore, Geo. H. Foster, Harry Dovey may be mentioned "The Lonely Cabin," "Two Alike" and Quiet Lodgings." The performance concludes with "Von Dinklespiel's Troubles."

Woodward's Gardens.

The latest novelty at these gardens is the Commune, a collection somewhat resembling the Happy Family, the trained animals are exhibited every day, and there is skating in the Pavilion. On Saturday afternoon the ascensions of the captive balloon will be commenced, and people will be allowed to take a trip to the clouds every half hour with Professor Allen as pilot.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

"O GOD MAKE ROOM FOR A LITTLE FELLOW."

BY R. S. HILL.

This pitiful prayer from infant lips arose,
Lips which death's cruel hand, was doomed to close
Forever;
In Heaven above, sexless, white-robed throng,
Stood harp in hand, all jubilant with song
Together.

Long, ere that tiny form to dust was given,
His soul had fled, and passed the gates of Heaven
Forever.

Can you believe, that one too young for sin,
Those Golden Gates would be refused within?
No, never!

That "little fellow" stands no more alone
But with Archangels, bends before the throne
Of God!

While his still form, buried 'neath dust, and clay,
Awaits, the stirring trump of judgment day
To break the sod.

Here in our world, music was his delight.
But now he joins, in the bright realms of light,
In songs of praise.
What need have we to mourn? His spirit's flown
To a far brighter world, as yet unknown
To mortal gaze.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 18, 1874.

The Vinelanders.

A Female Dress Reform Convention met lately in Vineland, New Jersey, at which this resolution was submitted:

"Resolved, That when the mother puts her girl into petticoats and her boy into trowsers, she seals her girl's doom as a slave, and gives the boy a title-deed of ownership when he records and presents against her whenever, in after-life, she asks for equal rights with him."

During the second day of the session Mrs. Butler wanted to know what the end of all the talk was to be. Was any woman going to take off one inch of her dress? What she proposed was an association of twenty-five women, who would agree to give up stays, furbelows, and flounces, and shorten their skirts. She exhibited two young ladies of Vineland who had never worn corsets, and the effect drew out the following:

"We, the undersigned, agree to wear our dresses four inches from the ground; provided twenty-five or more ladies can be found who will co-operate with us in the reform. [Signed:] Mrs. E. B. Duffy, Ellen Dickinson, A. N. M. Bartlett, A. M. Nute, Rita Wessills."

For Lack of Stamps.

Senator Scott was talking to a Pennsylvania Sunday school, a Sunday or two ago, and asked the scholars why Simon was kept in prison. One of the teachers quietly prompted a boy to say that it was for a hostage, and the youth, not quite catching the words, piped out: "He was detained for postage!"

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Hookaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While seated in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

Up an Infernal Machine.

Max Adeler tells the following story. Out in Toledo, Ohio, the other day, a well-known citizen received a box which, upon being opened, exploded. It was an infernal machine, sent to him by an enemy. Of course everybody has been sorry since then, and the impression prevails that this kind of thing is becoming too common. Mr. Conroy, of Toledo, received another one last week. The express company brought to his house a small wooden box, and he knew at the first glance that it was an infernal machine. He carried it out in the most gingerly manner to the yard and placed it on the bottom of an inverted bucket. Then he bought ten pounds of gunpowder and placed it under the bucket and laid a train of powder about 100 yards to the door of the kitchen. Then Conroy, lit a match in the kitchen, and after lighting the train he dodged in quickly and closed the door. The whole family stood at the window to see the infernal machine explode. It did so with terrific violence, and the next moment there was a ring at the door bell. It was the postman. He brought a letter from Mrs Conroy's aunt, informing her that she had just sent her a box full of jars of raspberry-jam and mince-meat. In an agony of dread, Conroy rushed out to the scene of the explosion. He found mince-meat and fragments of glass lying around the yard, while raspberry-jam was smeared all over the door of the woodhouse. The manner in which Mrs. Conroy carried on about her aunt's preserves is said to have been dreadful; but Conroy maintains a dignified silence. It pains him to hear the slightest reference to raspberry-jam and mince-meat.

A Portland Joke.

A demure citizen of Portland was walking down town one morning last week, when a stranger addressed him:

"Do you know where the Post Office is?"

"Yes," answered the Portlander, affably, and walked on without further parley. After proceeding for about ten steps, he looked back and inquired in his turn:

"Why? Did you want to know?"

"No," replied the victim, with great earnestness; and then, the accounts having been balanced, the two shook hands.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1x

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. E. Bunker's 74 and 76 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 19th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

One who knows how it is.

Mrs Julia Ward Howe recently remarked: "There's nothing left but dumb submission for the women." Mr. Jeremy Armstrong says in reply: "I wish Mrs. Howe would visit my house on washing day. My wife's dumb submission makes more noise than a boiler shop. I can't understand what the connection is between soapsuds and scolding, but I know that as soon as my wife gets up to the elbows in suds she begins, and there isn't a let up until every rag is on the lines. Maybe it's the oil in the soap that, becoming detached from the lye, lubricates the organ of speech. Some scientific man, like Tyndall or Proctor, ought to investigate the matter. It's more important for me to know how to stop my wife's tongue than to learn whether the moon is peopled or not. I only wish that Mrs. Howe's statement about dumb submission was true, I think my sands of life wouldn't run out quite fast, and he wiped away a tear which had gathered in the corner of his eye.

Prejudical.

John Hains, of Maine, when dying recently, sent for the brass band, and had it waft him over the dark valley on the strains of "Yankee Doodle." An Englishman who was present at the obituary music, said: "Most anybody would be content to die to escape the sound of such blarsted music." These foreigners never could appreciate the beauties of our national airs.

Good Law.

Here is the opinion of a Detroit Court: "Law is law," mused his Honor, as he adroitly removed the coat from a mammoth unbaked peanut, and dropped the kernel where it would do the most good. "A man may be a murderer, and you may have a thousand witnesses that he is a murderer, but yet you can't convict him of stealing a wood-scow because he is a murderer."

A Hard Case.

A North Carolina woman recently gave birth to four at once—two boys and two girls. The father wants to know why everybody congratulates him. He can't see why a man who's on his way to the poor-house, if his wife keeps up that sort of trick, should be shaken by the hand, slapped on the back and called a bully boy.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays

THE WOMEN AND THE PRESS.

There may be a class of men in the United States, who are unwilling to give woman an equal show with man to earn her living, who believe that a woman should receive less remuneration for work done than a man does. There may be men who think that the best work a woman can do is to sew the buttons on their shirts, to cook their dinners, and take care of their children. We do not, however, think this class is a large one, and we are certain that it is not largely represented on the Press. Occasionally, some of the more disreputable papers publish burlesque accounts of women's meetings, under the title of "The Hen Convention," but from the leading journals of the day, woman receives every encouragement in her effort to assume a higher position than she has hitherto occupied. Every instance of a woman succeeding as a lawyer, a physician, a farmer, or in any other of the occupations formerly monopolized by man, is chronicled by the Press, and generally in a kindly and encouraging spirit. No one can accuse the Alta, the leading commercial journal of San Francisco, of being radical in its views of reform, or of being a "woman's rights" paper, yet, in Tuesday's issue, we find under the homely heading of "Give the Girls a Chance," the following manly remarks which FIGARO, who always does a little fighting for woman's true rights when opportunity offers cordially endorses:

There is a sensible and honest bill before the Senate passed to engrossment, providing that women shall be eligible to any position connected with our school system, except that of State Superintendent, which, according to our Constitution, must be held by a man. We would like to see that restriction struck from the Constitution. Man has been and still is quite too anxious to keep the lines in his own hands, to make himself by law the superior, and woman in everything inferior. It is the exertion of the tyrant's power, and it seems a very difficult thing to induce him to slack the reins. There are many vocations in which it is perfectly appropriate a woman should engage, if she so choses. One of these is that of teaching. And yet our laws have been so tyrannical and unjust that women, for doing exactly the same amount of work and quite as well as men can do, generally are paid an inferior compensation. In the Legislature, we believe, is a bill which makes it obligatory upon the officers to pay a woman for teaching, the same amount as to a male teacher who teaches a similar grade. That is right, and we hope it will become a law

There is an immense deal of truth in that confession "man has been, and still is quite too anxious to keep the lines in his own hands to make himself by law the superior, and woman in everything inferior." What a cowardly spirit this is. Is it to be wondered at that the thinking women of the United States have come to the conclusion that the only way to mend the matter, is to secure a voice in the making of the laws? We have a better opinion of the Alta than we had for a long time, in consequence of really just and manly editorial.

Chicago Poetry.

A Chicago poet, upon hearing that Nilsson was about to erect cow sheds upon her Peoria lots, has burst forth into the following verse: "Christine, Christine, thy milking do the morn and eve between, and now by the dim religious light of the fitful kerosene. For the cow may plunge, and the lamp explode, and the fire-fiend ride the gale, and shriek the knell of the burning town in the glow of the molten pail!"

Cooing is well enough before marriage, but the billing doesn't come till after; and then it comes from the tradesman.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1n

Woman Suffrage.

The Cincinnati Star has the following sensible remarks on the subject of Woman Suffrage:

We believe there are weighty reasons why women should not vote, yet we would be in favor of extending the right of suffrage to every woman in the country, who possesses property or is engaged in business and regularly reads the news papers. This we think would suit even the plucky Misses Smith.—Gardner News.

Our readers may or may not know that the above extract is taken from a paper printed away down East, in the State of woodennutmeg notoriety. It would seem that the fallacy of such reasoning ought to be apparent to every mind, yet the Gardner News man is not the only one who talks thus foolishly. People should either be for or against Woman Suffrage; if persons "believe "there are weighty reasons why women should not vote," then they should use their influence against their voting; but to say as above that one is in favor of those women voting who possess property or read the newspapers is absurd on the very face of it. Woman Suffrage should either not be given at all or given on the same conditions as to men. The latter are not required to "be engaged in business or to regularly read the newspapers" in order to vote. As to reading, women read much more than men, but whether they read the kind of matter that would make them intelligent voters is questionable; but they might post themselves better on the politics of the country if called upon to vote.

Press Privilege.

Deadheadism can sometimes be carried too far. A young lady in Georgia, while attending a fair, endeavored to to raise money for the undertaking by offering to permit male visitors to kiss her at ten cents a kiss. Everything proceeded smoothly until the editor of a daily paper came in, and he insisted upon taking kisses free because he was a member of the press. They put him out. This is probably the same man who, when he was married, wanted the clergy to take his wedding fee out in advertising, and gave to his bride as a present a double-barreled gun, which he won at a raffle in which he had three dead-head chances.

What It Is to Have a Wife.

It isn't every man who is lucky enough to have the editor of a newspaper for a wife. Mr. Lewis Walker, of Iola, Kansas, enjoys that sweet boon. Appreciating his modesty, she waited for his temporary absence, and then brought him out in her newspaper, the Iola Register, as a candidate for the United States Senate, with a most touching editorial setting forth his honesty, integrity, genius, learning, incorruptibility, special capacity for public affairs. How Mr. Lewis Walker took this sort of thing when he got home we are not informed.

Respect for the Law.

A prisoner in a petty court was asked by the judge if he had any counsel. "Yes," he said, "I had engaged an old bald-headed fellow to defend me, but I don't see him round, and I rather guess he's out for a drink."

An Orphaned Mother.

An Irishman received a challenge to fight a duel, but declined. On being asked the reason, "Och, would you have me leave his mother a orphan?"

There is always some incentive to the American youth to study and work. He may not become President of the United States, but he may be the oldest Mason.

THE JOURNAL OF AMUSEMENTS.

Published every Day in the Year by

J. P. BOGARDUS

—AT—

643 Merchant and 535 Washington Sts
Below Montgomery, San Francisco.

FRIDAY.....FEBRUARY 20, 1874

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences.

BARTON HILL,
Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres.

T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

The General Good.

The Stockton Leader says:

FIGARO, reminds us of the old parson who would deliver a sermon full of good advice, and exhortations to live honest, upright lives—but own by no means corresponding therewith—and would conclude with the injunction "ow, dear friends, don't do as I do, but do as I say." FIGARO disgusted with Olive Harper's letters to the Alta, because they evince such a spirit of disagreeableness and spite, after deprecating that naughty temper, turns round and says in a similiar amiable mood, "Why some one does not kill that woman we cannot imagine.

We love the human race and wish it to become better. With this idea we long for the suppression of nuisances. We have no spite against Olive Harper, but we are sure that there is no benefit to the world in her prowling round making herself unpleasant. In snubbing disagreeable people we know that we are doing good service to the public, and our desire is the general good even at the expense of individuals.

The Wrong Answer.

A country youth visiting the city was invited to a party. Among the other amusements in vogue, conundrums were proposed. Our genial friend had prepared himself for every emergency. When it came his turn he naively propounded the following: "When is a lady not a lady?" After many guesses it was given up. Bumpkin, with an conscious air of superiority at his success, gave the answer: "When she is a little buggy." Surprised at the sudden quiet which settled upon every one, he was certain there was some mistake. Begging everyone's pardon, he said perhaps he had made a mistake. Drawing a well-worn memorandum book from his pocket, he to his horror found he had slightly mixed things. Again, with an apology, he acknowledged his mistake, and said—"I mean when she is a little sulky."

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Gladsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentlemen who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2c

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation Hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk. No branch stores. Goods sent C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 810 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. 1

Rip Van Winkle's Dream.

The village of England is a right smart place. It boasts of a paper called the London Lancet, which is square up to the times. Long since it gave the particulars of the flood, with details of the disembarkation of Commodore Noah. Its marvelous enterprise has found out that sewing-machines are actual and factual, instead of being merely theoretical, as the Lancet once dreamed. Farther than this the practical editor of the Lancet stabs into things in this wise: "It having been ascertained that movement of the feet of women in propelling the sewing-machine is very injurious, we suggest the use of steam where many machines are operated. Now in view of the fact that steam has propelled sewing machines in this country for nearly fifteen years, this suggestion from little England is very timely, and speaks well for the observation of John Bull. The old bovine has recently adopted American sleeping and drawing-room cars, and the tail of Taurus is delightedly gyrating in consequence. For anything practical, Bull should consult Jonathan. It is an even bet that the Lancet is printed on a press of American invention.

A Suspicious Woman.

Mr. J. Hepson is a married man. He doesn't take much pride in the fact. His wife is a queer woman. When he goes home in the evening she asks so many impertinent questions. She wants to know why his breath smells as though he had been eating nutmegs and cloves. And he has to explain that he has been eating cloves to keep his mouth warm in this cold weather. Then she wants to know what makes him purse up his mouth in that ridiculous way. And he is compelled to inform her that he does it to get up a circulation of the blood. Then she asks him why he tries to stick the fork with the piece of beefsteak on it into his eye, and elevate the tea-cup to his nose. Then he is obliged to tell her that he wants to see if the steak is well done, and smell of the tea to discover whether it's black or green. She is about to ask him more conundrums, when he slides off to bed. The other day, in speaking of this strange curiosity on the part of his wife, he ended his remarks by saying, "I'm blamed if I don't sometimes imagine that woman thinks I drink. Women are so infernally suspicious, you know."

A Genial Scientist.

"To look at Mr. Proctor, the Secretary of the Royal Astronomical Society of London," says a letter writer, "you would never suspect the existence of scientific knowledge in his head. He parts his glossy black hair exactly in the middle; his face is flushed as though he revelled in plum-pudding, good ale, and plenty of sleep. How a man with so short a neck and such broad shoulders can gaze at the stars will ever remain a mystery. In manner he is agreeable, easy and pleasant, and he leaves a good impression wherever he goes."

Dull Homes.

Many a child goes astray, not because there is a want of prayer and virtue at home, but simply because home lacks sunshine. A child needs smiles as much as flowers need sunbeams. If a thing pleases they are apt to seek it; if it displeases they are apt to avoid it. If home is the place where faces are sour, and words are harsh and fault-finding is ever in the ascendant, they will spend as many hours as possible elsewhere.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1z

An Oconomowocie Editor.

A funny suit against an editor has been decided in the Circuit Court at Waukesha, Wisconsin. The Fays, proprietors of the La Belle House at Oconomowoc, brought an action before a justice to recover $97 04 for meals and cigars furnished Ashley D. Harger, editor of the Oconomowoc Times. Harger sat up a counter claim of $160 for "puffing" the La Belle House. Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff and Mr. Harger appealed to a jury. The case excited much interest, Harger being well liked, and having a solemn, earnest manner of making very witty remarks. He testified that Fay would say to him: "Harger, I've got a nice dinner to-day—come in. "No, I thank you, I am going home." Fay would prevail on him to stay, and after dinner the following colloquy: "Everything in there all right, Harger?" "Everything excellent," Dessert all right?" Excellent." "Ice cream all right?" 'Delicious, Mr. Fay." "Very well, remember this in your paper next week." In return for dinners and cigars, Harger says that he told a great many lies—editorially worth more than a thousand dollars. He would never have presented a bill for lies had not Fay fallen out with him and wanted pay for the dinners. Harger pleaded his own case, and the jury found a verdict for him, which threw the costs upon the hotel-keeper.

Sensitive Clergymen.

When the opera-troupe now at the Boston Theatre appeared in Milwaukee, Miss Cary shocked two unappreciative clergymen of that city by wearing tights in the part of Urbano in "Les Huguenots," and they have publicly complained of the injury done to their sensitive natures by such an immodest exhibition. We are afraid, however, that operatic pages will continue to wear tights in spite of this ministerial protest, and that, unless the human voice undergoes a marvelous change, that pages will be represented by women. If Milwaukee clergymen cannot look upon so symmetrical a lady as Miss Cary in a page's pretty dress, we should advise their relegating the opera to the index expurgatorius of their amusements.

An Obsolete Custom.

A young preacher at a fashionable city church took for his text the parable of the Ten Virgins, and in the course of his sermon he explained "that in old times it was customary, when the bridegroom and bride were coming, for ten virgins to go out and meet them and escort them home. Five of these virgins were male and five female!"

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Hookaway House on Market street
So elegant and new,
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

This house was crammed full last night, the large attendance being a well-deserved tribute to Professor George T. Evans, who took his benefit on this occasion. The programme was an excellent one, and was carried out most satisfactorily. Among the notable features were: a ballad by Madame Anna Bishop, a romanza by Signor Carmini Morley, the overture to "Will am Tell" performed by an orchestra of forty-five musicians, and some capital singing by the Amphion Quartette and the Bohemian Choir. The delightful operette of "Widows Bewitched" drew much applause. This will be repeated this evening, in conjunction with the amusing comedietta of "The Maid of Munster." The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow. George will sport a valuable solitaire ring after this, the gift of his friends last night.

California Theatre.

The tragedy of "The Gladiator," in which John McCullough in the role of Spartacus, fairly rivels the great original, will be presented this evening and at the matinee to-morrow. Every seat in the theatre was filled last night.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The return of fine weather has, as we anticipated, caused a rush to this popular place of amusement. Many were only waiting "until it stopped raining" to go and enjoy the wonderful feats of the Siegrists, Fred O'Brien, Woods Cooke, Senorita Turnour and the other bright stars of the arena who nightly appear here. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow.

Benefit of Madame Bianchi.

This well-deserving artiste will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at the California Theatre on Sunday evening, when the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be presented with the cast given on our first page.

Bella Union Theatre.

A new bill will be performed at this house to-night. "The Streets of San Francisco," which has proved a popular hit, will be retained on the boards, and Miss Alice Ross, Ed. Murray, Johnny Tuers and others will appear in new and original specialties. The evening's entertainment will conclude with the laughable sketch entitled "The Fly-by-nights."

Buckley's Varieties.

H. Morton, M'lle Blanche, Frank Mortimore, Miss Lizzie Harmon, and a great many other favorite artistes will appear in a very varied and attractive performance this evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The latest novelty at these gardens is the Commune, a collection somewhat resembling the Happy Family, the trained animals are exhibited every day, and there is skating in the Pavilion. On Saturday afternoon the ascensions of the captive balloon will be commenced, and people will be allowed to take a trip to the clouds every half hour with Professor Allen as pilot.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

UNENDING.

There is an end to kisses and to sighs,
There is an end to laughter and to tears;
An end to fair things that delight our eyes,
An end to pleasant sounds that charm our ears,
An end to enmity's foul libelling,
And to the gracious praise of tender friends;
There is an end to all but one sweet thing—
To love there is no end.

That warrior swayed an empire with his sword,
The empire now is but like him—a name;
That statesman spoke, and by a burning word
Kindled a nation's heart into a flame;
Now naught is left but ashes, and we bring
Our homage to new men to whom we bend;
There is an end to all but one sweet thing—
To love there is no end.

All beauty fades away, or else, alas!
Men's eyes grow dim, and they no beauty see;
The glorious shows of nature pass and pass,
Quickly they come, as quickly do they flee;
And he who hears the voice of welcoming,
Hears next the slow, sad farewell of his friend;
There is an end to all but one sweet thing—
To love there is no end.

And for ourselves—our father, where is he?
Gone, and a memory alone remains;
There is no refuge in a mother's knee
For us, grown old, and sad with cares and pains;
Brotherless, sisterless, our way we wend
To death's dark home, from which we shall not rove;
And so we cease, yet one thing hath no end—
There is no end to love.

A Born Idiot.

"Woggles, my dear, would you attend to the fire?" The voice is low and sweet, but there is no reply. "Woggles, the fire is very low!" Voice not quite so sweet; still silence reigns. 'See here, Mr. Woggles, if you don't attend to that fire it will be out!" Great firmness and rising inflection of the voice. Woggles rises, too, lays down his book with the calmness of despair, and goes out for a chunk. Selecting one with a view of being let alone the rest of the evening, he returns to the sitting-room, and, with the rocking-chair tidy, removes the cover of the stove, calmly ignoring the remark from Mrs. Woggles that he "might know that that stick is too big?" Carefully balancing it on the top of the stove, he bends forward and peers down into the fiery depths, mentally calculating to put it in big end first; but, as the smoke ascends, he forgets the balance and misses his calculations, for the stick plunges in small end first. Mrs. Woggles was sitting behind, and, of course, he would'nt look around, but he saw her face in the mirror over the mantle, and that smile nerved his arm. First he tried to get it down so the cover would go on. He pounded and shook to make it drop, but the more he pounded the less inclined it seemed to move. He tugged and wrestled to turn it, but when he paused to cough and rub his streaming eyes there was no perceptible difference in its position. Another seraphic smile beamed on him from the mirror, and then began the struggle to get it out. Grasping it about midway on both sides Mr. Woggles raised himself on tip-toe and pulled, but soon concluded that the force must be applied underneath. Now the chunk was suspended several inches above the bed of coals, and Woggles saw at once that there was room for his hand, which he inserted, intending with one good tug to unsettle the obstinate thing; but he didn't and as he rubbed the leg of his pants with the smarting member he audibly wondered "who'd have thought it was so infernal hot." "Any one but a born idiot," sweetly answered Mrs. Woggles, and the mirror reflected another smile. Then that "born idiot" put on his overcoat and banged the front-door.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-T

Disheartened Life Insurance Agent.

A family named Kemper moved into a house in our row last week, writes Max Adeler, and Benjamin P. Gunn, the life insurance agent, who lives in the same row, was the first caller. He dropped in to see if he could not take out a policy for Mr. Kemper. Mrs. Kemper came down to the parlor to see him.

"I suppose," said Gunn, "Mr. Kemper has no insurance on his life."

"No," said Mrs. Kemper.

"Well, I'd like to get him to take out a policy in our company. It's the safest in the world; the largest capital, smallest rates and biggest dividends."

"Mr. Kemper don't take much interest in such things now," said Mrs. K.

"Well, madam, but he ought to, in common justice to you. No man knows when he will die, and by paying a ridiculously small sum now, Mr. Kemper can leave his family in affluence. I'd like to hand you, for him, a few pamphlets containing statistics upon the subject; may I?"

"Of course, if you wish to."

"Don't you think he can be induced to insure? asked Gunn.

"I hardly think so," replied Mrs. Kemper.

He is in good health, I suppose! Has he complained lately of being sick?"

"Not lately."

"May I ask if he has any considerable wealth?"

"Not a cent."

"Then of course he must insure. No poor man can afford to neglect such an opportunity. I suppose he travels sometimes; goes about in railroad cars and other dangerous places?"

"No, he keeps very quiet."

"Man of steady habits, I s'pose."

"Very steady."

"He is just the very man I want," said Gunn. "I know I can sell him a policy."

"I don't think you can," replied Mrs. Kemper.

"Why? When will he be home? I'll call on him. I don't know any reason why I shouldn't insure him."

"I know," replied Mrs. K.

"Why?"

"He has been dead twenty-seven years!" said the widow.

Then Gunn left all of a sudden. He will not insure any of the Kempere.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences.

BARTON HILL,
Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres.

T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The only novelty at the London Theatres has been "Ought We to Visit Her?" a dramatization from Mrs. Edward's well-known novel of that name, at the Royalty. It was quite successful, Henrietta Hodson played young Mrs. Theobald, the heroine.

Nothing new at the London music halls, nor yet in the provinces.

Ermine D'Este (Mrs. B. Warner), a vocalist and burlesquer, died near Birmingham, January 18th, aged 29. Ann Matilda Halifax, Louis., wife of Samuel Wallis, aged 56, and Thomas Freeman, costumer of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, aged 60

Caroline Estelle, a columbine, and her sister, of the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, had their legs burned by their petticoats catching on fire on the 14th

The burned French Opera-house Company, in Paris, resumed their performances, under Mr. Halanier, on the 19th, at the Salle Ventadour, after thirteen weeks of leisure. "Don Juan" was the opera, with Madame Guymard as Elvira, Mlle. Ferucci as Donna Anna, and Mlle. Taibault as Donna Zerlina, Guillard was Leporello, and Caron Masetto. The Maurice Strakosch Italian Company attended during the week, with Mlle. Bellocha as prima donna, in "La Cenerentola," whose voice showed evidences of a decline

At the Palais Royal, "Le Magot," a vaudeville, had been produced.

A lady proves to be the best violoncelloist of the Ravenna, Italy, orchestra.

Rubenstein was last heard of at Naples.

The New York Clipper's London correspondent says: The London artists who enjoy affluence and position, are giving, this Winter, a series of receptions of the most brilliant character. Mrs. Crabbe (Miss Herbert,) who is not only one of the most talented, but one of the handsomest ladies on the English stage, gave a splendid reception a few evenings since at her charming residence, Sidmouth Lodge, South Kensington, at which the elite of society was present, including many of the leading ladies and gentlemen of the dramatic and musical professions. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Paul also gave a soiree des artistes, a few evenings ago, at their residence in Regent's Park, which was numerously attended by the literary, musical and theatrical celebrities of the day. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews, Mr. Toole, Mr. Lionel Brough, Miss Gainsborough, Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. W. T. Highton, Mr. Henry Irving, Mrs. Ross Church (Miss Florence Marryatt), Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Joseph Hatton, Mrs. John Wood, Mr. Stephen Fiske, Miss Herbert, Mr. Corney Grain, Mr. Arthur Cecil, Mr. Frank Marshall, etc. Miss Fowler, the gifted leading lady of the Olympic Theatre, has given several brilliant receptions this Winter at her mansion in Langham street, and I am glad to note the social advancement and culture of actors and actresses in England. All society is now open to them, and they have the tact and grace of mind to avail themselves of the opportunities afforded of studying society and life in its higher phases. Within the last six years quite a number of the recruits to the dramatic profession are affiliated by connection to what is termed the "upper ten," and this speaks well for the advancement of dramatic art in the old world. I hope the same remark applies to the leading cities of the United States.

Australian news by the last steamer is as follows:

The Lyster Opera Troupe has been disbanded—part are in Sydney giving Offenbach's music, part in Victoria giving concerts, and a few have gone to Calcutta. A new troupe is expected from Italy shortly.

Christmas pantomimes occupy the stages of all the larger theatres in the Colonies, to the detriment of legitimate business.

Billy Emerson's Minstrel Troupe are playing their ninth week's engagement at the School of Arts, Sydney. Mr. and Mrs. Bates are also there.

Letters from India say that Arabella Goddard is ill there, and will shortly seek an Australian sanitorium.

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast.
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
And the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head, for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But when men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new,
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes every body stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc, will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE—At the matinee today and again this evening "The Gladiator" will be presented with John McCullough as Spartacus, Barton Hill in the role of Phasarius, Miss Annie Graham as Senone, Miss Ellie Wilton as Julia and a very strong cast. This evening's performance will be the last of this strong tragedy. The large attendance during the week has been a gratifying evidence of the popularity of Mr. McCullough, and the pleasure the public feel in seeing him again.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Those who have not yet enjoyed listening to the delightful operetta of "Widows Bewitched," performed by Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher and John Howson, should avail themselves of the two last opportunities offered, which will be at the matinee performance to-day and at the evening's entertainment. The operetta is preceded by the sparkling comedietta of "the Maid of Munster," in which Miss Jennie Lee as Kate O'Brien, and J. F. Burnett as Charles Paragon, do some excellent acting The bill for to-morrow night will consist of "The Maid of Munster" and the hugely successful play of "Micawber vs. Heep" with John Howson as Micawber, and J. P. Burnett as Heep.

THE NEW PALACE AMPHITHEATRE.—There will be a matinee to-day and a grand performance this evening. The Siegrists will conclude their farewell engagement at this place of amusement to-morrow night. Fred O'Brien will appear in his wonderful somersault feat, benorita Turnour in her graceful and daring performance on the trapeze, Miss Helen Cooke in her daring bare back, balloon and drum act, and others in various specialities of the arena. John Wilson has great novelties in preparation for next week. Among the features spoken of is the introduction of Roman wrestling by noted athletes.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—Matt Kelly and Tommy Bree in "Do You Know Green?" Ed Murray in his "Budget of Fun," Miss Alice Rose in serio-comic songs, Cassim and Fritz as "The Merry Clowns," Moore and Bray in song and dance, Johnny Toers in "A Nice Hotel," and numerous other attractions, set forth in full on our first page, will be presented at this popular variety theatre to-night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—Bright first part and lively walk-around, amusing acts by Harry Davey, Hughey Morton, Walter Parks, Frank Mortimore and others, songs comic and sentimental by Miss Lizzie Harmon, dances by Miss Maggie Brewer, and other performances by popular artistes make up a great bill at this house. "Capt. Blowhard's Troubles" terminates the entertainment.

CITY GARDENS.—These beautiful gardens will be opened for the Summer season under the management of Schneider, Gramm & Co., (tomorrow), Washington's Birthday. There will be a grand instrumental and vocal concert, and a varied performance by well-known artistes. There will be dancing in the afternoon and evening.

OPERA—BENEFIT OF MADAME BIANCHI.—This well-deserving artiste will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at the California Theatre on Sunday evening, when the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be presented with the cast given on our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Professor Allen made two captive balloon ascensions at these gardens this morning, with perfect success. The "Castle in the Air" is a very handsome mammoth balloon, and proved perfectly tractable in his hands. The ascentions and descensions are regulated by a strong rope attached to a windlass worked by a steam engine. Professor Allen, Prof. Davidson, and Messrs. McRoberts and Irwin, respectively of the Call and Examiner, went in the first ascension, and Mr. R. B. Woodard and son, the publisher of this journal and his two daughters accompanied Professor Allen in the second trip. There is no jar or unpleasant motion experienced in making the voyage; you simply sail away from the ground, and glide downward on your return as easily; The view from the point of elevation is a grand and impressive one, and once seen will never be forgotten. Ascentions will be made every half hour on Sunday and Monday.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—The latest dramatization of Wilkie Collie's novel of "The New Magdalen" is from the pen of Mr. Lipsis of the Fanny Morgan Phelps Troupe, recently performing at Eureka, and now in Los Angeles. The dumboldt Times speaking of this dramatization says: We cannot praise in too high terms the plan of this drama—by Mr. Lipsis nor the manner in which it was acted on this occasion, the first of its rendering here, some parts of the play are thrilling in the extreme, and in all contains a salutary moral lesson, which will not be soon lost on the good people of Eureka. Mrs. Phelps outdid herself in her character of the Magdalen.

On Monday evening, Bulwer's great play of "Richelieu" will be produced at the California Theatre with John McCullough in the role of the King Cardinal and with new scenery, dresses, and appointments. Porter has been at work for some time past on the scenery, and something particularly brilliant is may be expected.

A. M. Gray, who built the Opera House on Bush street, has the contracts for the transformation of Pacific Hall into the "Alcazar" in accordance with the plans of Messrs Mooser and Goeart, architects. The work must be completed, and the Alcazar ready to open on the 28th of March.

Madame Anna Bishop will leave on the steamer City of Melbourne, for Australia on the 25th. She will give a final concert at Platt's Hall on Thursday [illegible] the people of Sacramento during the present week will make their reappearance in this city at the Opera House on Monday evening. The Susan Galton-Jennie Lee Troupe will go to Sacramento.

Mons. Perrier, professionally known as "The Strong Man," challenged Major McLaughlin to a wrestling contest, American and French wrestling, match and match about, prior to his departure, which the Major did not accept as French wrestling was not in his programme, but has been challenged by G. Tessier at a "collar-and-elbow" match for $1,000; which "The Strong Man" has accepted, the contest is to come off in thirty days.

The programme for next week's business at the California Theatre will be: Monday and Tuesday, "Richelieu," Wednesday and Thursday, "Hamlet," Friday, "Julius Cæsar," Saturday afternoon, "Richelieu," Saturday evening, "The Robbers." On Monday week, Mr. Barton Hill will take his benefit, when "King Lear" will be performed. On Monday March 9th. Miss Neilson will commence her engagement, during which "Romeo and Juliet" and "As You Like It" will be produced. John T. Raymond will appear with "The Wicked World," (no pun intended) on April 6th. The Aimee Opera Bouffe Troupe, Sothern, Lotta and the Vokes Family, will follow in succession.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Maguire's California Minstrels and the Girards commenced an engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday evening, and have been playing to capital business ever since. There will be a matinee performance to-day, and to-night the season will close. On Monday the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe will commence a season of English Opera, comedy and burlesque, and we are sure will afford as much pleasure to the public of Sacramento as they have to that of this city. Harry Estinge is acting as outside agent in this matter and will take care that the merits of the company be known and appreciated.

LOS ANGELES—The Fanny Morgan Phelps Troupe, with S. W. Pieroy as leading man, is performing at the Merced Theatre.

MARYSVILLE—Jari Bosco the illusionist gave an entertainment at the theatre on Monday evening, for the benefit of S. P. Everett, a popular citizen of Marysville, who was shot in the leg.

SAN JOSE.—The season of amusement in San Jose came to a close on Monday night when Mlle. Laura and Harry Clarke took a benefit. Harry Courtaine appeared on the stage drunk and made a blackguard of himself. The San Jose Mercury of Wednesday says: H. A. DeLacy yesterday dissolved his connection with the San Jose Opera House, by disposing of the lease to G. Brohaska. The reason for this step is that he considers himself unjustly censured for the late fiasco, and not desiring to give any one the least cause for real or fancied offense, he willingly resigns in favor of some other Manager. He has tried his best to suit the people; has come out loser by the operation and on top of all this to be blamed for something he neither was cognizant of at the time, neither sanctioned nor was responsible for, (Clark being the lessee for the evening,) he considers too much to be borne. In losing DeLacy the people have lost the best Manager San Jose ever had, and the most popular Manager among the theatrical people in the State. We are sorry that his undue sensitiveness should have caused him to have taken this step. Now that the people understand the full circumstances of the case, no blame certainly can be laid to his door.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—"The Son of Ice" was produced at Piper's Opera House, on Monday evening, with Miss Kate Denin in the roles of Louise de Lascours and Ogarita. It was repeated on the following night. On Wednesday evening the bill consisted of "Madelaine, the Foundling of the Faubourg" and "The Swiss Swains." On Thursday night "Under the Gaslight" was produced for the benefit of Miss Kate Denin. The management announced "The Geneva Cross" as in preparation, and early appearance of Miss Katharine Rogers. Miss Rogers will play during the coming week.

SANTA BARBARA.—The Mac-Wallace Troupe—Jake Wallace, Little Mac and others—performed during last week and on Monday evening. Jake Wallace and his wife have returned to San Francisco.

HOLLISTER.—The Templeton Troupe played here on Thursday evening.

WATSONVILLE.—The Templeton Troupe played here one evening during the early portion of the present week.

OROVILLE.—Oroville is waking up as an amusement town. On Monday the inhabitants will celebrate Washington's Birthday by a procession, foot races, bag races, a balloon ascension by Mons. M. Buicley, and a performance at Union Hall. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" will be played by the Oroville Amateurs.

SALT LAKE—On Monday evening, Dion Boucicault commenced an engagement at the theatre, opening in "Used Up" and "The Colleen Bawn" On the following evening, he appeared in "Arrah na Pogue" and "Kerry," and terminated his three nights engagement on Wednesday evening, appearing in "Daddy O'Dowd." On Thursday evening, J. C. Williamson and Miss Maggie Moore of the California Theatre were to commence an engagement.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, "Elene" another play by the author of "La Femme de Feu," was produced at Booth's Theatre on the 2d. The New York Courier says, comparing the two plays. Occasion was taken to point out the reprehensible character of the former and it is but justice that corresponding commendation should be bestowed upon the latter. The story of "Elene" is that of a noble hearted, devoted wife, who passes through many trials and endures much suffering to save the honor of her husband, who has been compromised by the dishonest actions of her own father. A certain sum of money has been entrusted to her husband and this her father has stolen. The day when the money is to be paid is rapidly approaching and there are no means of meeting the demand. In this extremity Elene calls her jewels and hastens to pawn, thinking she may win back the missing sum at the gaming table. She loses all, and returns broken hearted. Finally, she determines to appeal to the owner of the money. He destroys the receipt which is the only evidence of its deposit, marries Elene's sister and the wife's trials are over. The story is a very simple one, but it comes so pleasantly from amid the muck of immorality with which the modern French stage has been deluged that it should be accorded a very hearty welcome. Adultery has come to be so common a subject with the average French playwright that when he strays away from it he is to be encouraged in his reformation, and so M. Belot's work is worthy of all the good that can be said of it. The character of the heroine is one that is admirably adapted to the temperament of Mrs. Booth, and she plays it with a thrilling earnestness that is very effective.....At the Academy of Music, the opera season of the Strakosch Troupe was to be resumed on the 20th, with Lucia di Lammermoor. Mme. Nilsson, as Lucia; M. Capoul, as Edgardo, and M. Maurel, (first time). Morico-Early in the season, pr babl, about March 6th or 10th, Richard Wagner's great opera "Lohengrin," Campanini and Nannetti. "Aida" will also be reproduced. These will be the last appearances in America of Christine Nilsson, and as the troupe is the strongest ever seen in this country, a highly successful season should be the result..... At Wallack's, "Money" continued to draw good houses.....A benefit performance for the poor was given at the Lyceum Theatre on the 10th, under the auspices of the Rev. O. B. Frothingham, when "All That Glitters is not Gold" and "Barney, the Baron," were presented by Sol Smith, H. C. Byner, Charles Percy, J. C. Williams, Mrs. Weaver Miss McManus, and a first-class company. We are glad that Mr. Frothingham's debut as a theatrical manager was quite a success. He has always spoken a good word for theatrical entertainments, and is the most liberal of preachers..... At the Fifth Avenue Theatre "Follino" was to be played until the 21th when a revival of "Love's Labor Lost" was to take place. This play has not been presented on the New York stage for over twenty-five years. "Monsieur Alphonse," by Alexandre Dumas was in preparation, to follow "Love's Labor Lost,".....At the Grand Opera House "Jack Harkaway at Sea" the pantomime of "Humpty Dumpty at School" and a variety entertainment by by J. W. McAndrews, the Rizi Sisters, John Morris and others constituted the bill .....Miss Lucy Stone was playing at Wood's Museum in "Cigarette".....Bryant's Minstrels were still playing the burlesque of "Cinderella.....At Niblo's the Vokes Family were playing in "The Wrong Man in the Right Place" and "Nan the Good for Nothing".....Lad Astray" was still running at the Union Square Theatre, Miss Rose Eytinge took a benefit on the 13th.....At the Metropolitan Theatre the Martinetti Troupe including Mon. E. Villarde, and Madame Marzetti, the Jackley Troupe and Cool White and Billy Courtwright were the latest additions to the company .....At the Bowery Theatre the attraction was a new sensational drama by J. J. McCloskey, entitled "Life or Death" .....At the Olympic the Holman Opera Troupe were playing an English version of "La Grand Duchesse." A New York paper says: Miss Sallie Holman, the leading member of the troupe, is an exceedingly clever singer, and a bright, vivacious actress, and interprets the character of the merry sovereign of Gerolstein with much effect. Her sister, Julia, is also a clever performer, and makes an attractive Wanda.....Sunday evening concerts have been recommenced at the Grand Opera House by P. S. Gilmore's Twenty-second Regiment Band and the German Opera Company. The Colosseum with its great cyclorama views of Paris and London attracts many visitors.....At the Theatre Comique E. Eddy was playing in "The Rag Picker of Paris." Miss Ella Wesner made her reappearance on the 9th.

Aimee troupe has done remarkably well of late in the City of Mexico, and was to leave there 15th for Vera Cruz; thence 17th for New York Lyceum, March 4, 6, 7; Brooklyn Academy, 5th; thence Boston Theatre 9 h, two weeks. Business was large in Havana, Matanzas, and Cardenas. In Mexico, business in Puebla was very fine.

The violin used by the late James Speight, the little prodigy, has been given by his father to John Braham, leader of the Howard Athenæum. The body of the boy has been enclosed in a casket and will be taken home to England.

The Bowery Theatre was recently sold by Leopold Bertheimer to William Kraker, proprietor of the Atlantic Garden, for $ 60,000. Mr. Freligh, who holds a lease, will continue running the house for dramatic purposes at present.

The Clipper says: Sam Genese left for San Francisco, Cal., on Feb 9, taking with him a large balloon for exhibition. We trust his enterprise may not go up with it.

Edwin Booth has voluntarily gone into bankruptcy. Legal proceedings had been taken to force him into bankruptcy, but he got the start of his opposing lawyers by some two hours. After a statement of his assets and liabilities, he recites the circumstances under which Booth's Theatre has passed from his hands. Last Fall he found that the taxes due for two years preceding could not be paid, and that two parties who held mortgages upon the theatre were pressing their claims. So he transferred the building to Clark Bell, giving at the same time ten notes of $1 000 each, payable monthly from Jan. 17, 1874, to October 17, 1874. The proceeds of these notes were to be used in carrying the building paying taxes, insurance and the interest upon the mortages, which are five in number, and nearly exhaust the value of the building. His total liabilities amount to nearly $200,000. His chief assets and liabilities are jewelry, etc., $300; books and pictures $52,000, chandelier in theatre, wardrobe, articles of vertu etc., $6 00 ; due estate of Wilkes Ames (deceased), $100,0 0. This is a secured debt. The unsecured debts are as follows: To Richard E. Robertson, $33,80u; National Bank of New York, $3 000; Mary Francis Booth (his wife), $1,300; Clark Bell, $10,-000; Second National Bank of New York, $2,300; J. M. Magonigle, $251 30; Richard E. Robertson, $31,125 13; liabilities on bills of discount which we protest of E. R. Robertson discounted for Mr. Booth; the Manufacturers and Merchants' Bank of New York; Second National Bank, $30,0 0, notes held by the bank which were loaned to Booth by E. E. Robertson.

The N. Y. Clipper says: In the abrupt closing of the Chestnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, we have another instance of a good actor making a bad manager. Mr. E. L. Davenport has signally failed as a manager, and he will now, doubtless, confine himself to his art, and leave managing to those who understand its many duties and requirements.

Miss Hoit of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, has had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over $4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. C. L. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest stock of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

THE NEW FLEECING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider, and fine fruits can do so (at the Mat nee Fruit Store) without endangering their corns. 1-K

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

A Happy Man.

Jones is indeed a happy man. He married a charming and estimable young woman, who notwithstanding a squint, and the loss of nearly all her front teeth, is considered by many beautiful, her hair although not red, is usually styled by her lady acquaintances, carrotty, her off eye, the one which when she faces North inclines to the West, is of a firey and impetuous magenta, the other which has a tendency to the East would, by poets be described as a fresh, and verdant green (Jones generally keeps to the eastward of his wife.) This lady presents Jones with twins every year, and as they have been married sixteen years, as Jones says, the system has become monotonous. By profession Jones is a painter, i. e. an artist. His first picture after Bierstadt, Jones in a thirsty moment, placed on the floor to dry, while absent, the twins, one pair of them, in a frolicsome humour sat on it, Jones returned in time to find a not very legible but reversed landscape indelibly imprinted on their nether garments, influenced by kindly motives, he proceeded to inflict summary chastisement, their cries attracted a fond mother who entered, called Jones a brute, and warned him for the future not to wipe his dirty brushes on the dear children's clothes. Since that day Jones has taken to painting outside, choosing for a background the spaces over stores etc.; In this he was notably successful until in an evil moment he transcribed the name of Smythe, to Smith, the proprietor of the aforesaid cognomen in return painted Jones' eye, in tints, varying from green to a gloomy black, Jones retaliated and now languishes in the City Prison for a term of six months under the indictment of assault with violence.

A Smart Girl.

An old man of seventy was going to be married to a girl of seventeen. One day a friend surprised him tenderly embracing his intended. "I don't wonder at your astonishment," said the young lady, readily, to the intruder, "you don't generally find young heads on old shoulders." The marriage was broken off.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed new process, by a [illegible]

Four Ones.

The St. Louis Globe says: About two years ago a Missouri river steamboat left Fort Benton with a party of tough and well-to-do miners on board. There were also among the passengers three "brace men," and before they had reached Sioux City they had generally cleaned out the pockets of the miners. The boat stopped at Sioux City to "wood up," and found among others waiting to get on board a ministerial looking personage with the longest and most solemn countenance on him you could well imagine. He was dressed in black, and wore a white stove-pipe hat and "choker" collar ornamented with a black neck handkerchief.

Well, he got aboard, and the boat started down stream. For two days he was unnoticed by the other passengers, but one of the sports at last thought he saw a chance to make something out of the sad and melancholy individual. The latter would once or twice a day step up to the bar, and with a voice mild and gentle as a maiden's, ask for a "glass of soda, if you please," and then he would take out a roll of bills from his pocket and take a quarter from their interior layer. Then he would say to the bar-keeper, as if under a thousand obligations, "thank you, sir," and walk aft again as if about to commit suicide.

This thing had gone far enough, and the gambler I have spoken of at last approached him.

"Would you like a little game of seven up, sir?"

"Seven-up? What is that? Please tell me, my good friend."

"Why, a game of cards, you know, just to pass away the time; let us play a game."

"My good friend, I know nothing about cards; I can not play them."

"Well, come along, and we will show you how to do it." And the mild gentleman in black, after some further protest at length consented.

They showed him how it was done, and they played several games. The gentleman in black was delighted. Gamblers wanted to know if he would play poker, five cents ante, just for the fun of the thing. Gentleman in black said that he could'nt play the game, but they explained again, and the poker began. The gentleman in black lost every time. There were six in the game; each one dealt before the gentleman in black, and the ante raised to a dollar. Gent in black dealt awkwardly, and looked at his hand.

Next man to dealer bet five—goes round, and bets are raised to one hundred dollars. Gent in black "saw it and made a hundred better: Gamblers looked surprised, but would not be bluffed. The bet had reached five hundred dollars—a thousand. Gent in black made it two thousand. All drew out except a Pike's Peak miner, who saw and called him.

"What have you?"

"Well," answered the gent in black, "I have—let me see, let me see—I have found four ones."

The gamblers, who had suspected something before, now looked wild, and light began to dawn in the miner's mind. He leaned across the table and said in the most sarcastic tones he could command:

"Oh, yer heave, heave yer? Yer gol durned sentimonious son of a gun."

The gent got up from the table and handed one of the gamblers his card. It read, "Bill Walker, New Orleans,"—one of the most successful sharpers in the country.

London Amusements.

The Boston Courier's own correspondent writes that Miss Braddon has failed to command any success as a dramatist. Although she had the advantage of Mrs. Rousby's acting, "Griselda" has been a failure, and another piece will shortly be produced at the Princess's. Any extravaganza at the Gaiety Theatre in which Mr. Toole appears will always have an especial attraction for London play-goers. And Mr. Byron's latest effort, "Guy Fawkes," written expressly for the purpose of providing this popular favorite with an opportunity of giving another display of his comic powers, has been produced with every sign of success. At the close of his present London engagement Mr. Toole will visit America, and from the hearty laughter which greets all his efforts, the audience are evidently resolved to enjoy his performances as fully as possible while he is still among us. The theatres have taken a turn for the better. Drury Lane is now so well patronized that money is refused at the doors. Covent Garden is also doing very well Hengler's circus is an established success. There are twelve performances weekly, and at each a crowded and delighted audience. The "Cirque" in Argyle street is now one of the most popular places of amusement in London. Its neighbor, the old Polytechnic, is also doing a fine stroke of business, and Dr. Croft's holiday piece, "Raleigh's Dream," is mirth-provoking in the extreme. Under the active and intelligent direction of the worthy doctor, the once dreary Polytechnic has been transformed into a lively and enjoyable place of amusement. The great Barnum has bought £33,000 worth of dresses and properties from the Messrs. Sanger, the proprietors of Astley's. Messrs. Sanger are also reported to have bought the lease of the "Hall by the Sea," at Margate, from Messrs. Spiers and Pond. I hear that Miss. Ada Cavendish has taken the Holborn Ampitheatre. I wish her joy of her bargain. Mr. A. W. Young, of "little wee dog" celebrity, has arranged with Mr. Halliday for the provincial exploiting of "Heart's Delight." Mr. Young is now forming his company, and some important engagements are on the tapis. The latest theatrical on dit is to the effect that on the termination of "The Wandering Heir," season at the Queen's, the theatre will be re-opened by Messrs. Phelps and Charles Calvert, with Shakespeare's comedy of "Twelfth Night."

Opera House.

The Minstrels have returned, and will this evening inaugurate a season of performances at this house. They will present a very lively and attractive programme. It will commence with a first part by Billy Sweetnam, Billy Manning, J. C. Russell, W. F. Baker, B. Montague and others. This will be followed by Welch and Rice in their specialty of the "O'Shaughnessy Guards," Gen. S. Knight will appear in his Dutch specialities, Billy Sweetnam in "Bolivar Bell," and the performance will conclude with the comic sketch entitled "Fifty Wicks or a Mistake of a Night."

California Theatre.

To-night John McCullough will appear in the title role of Bulwer's great play of "Richelieu," with Barton Hill as Baradas, Lewis Morrison as DeMauprat, John Wilson as King Louis XIII., W. A. Messenger as DeBeringhen, W. Leman as Joseph, Miss Annie Graham as Julie de Mortimer, Miss Nellie Cummiskey as Marion DeLorme, and a generally strong cast. The play will be presented with new scenery and dresses. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings Mr. McCullough will appear in "Hamlet."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

There will be an extra matinee performance today, and many who keep holiday will visit this popular place of amusement. Señorita Tournour, Fred O'Brien, Miss Helen Cook and all the stars will appear on this occasion and also this evening. The fine weather has had a good effect on the business, and large and fashionable audiences are the rule.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross and Ed. Murray are popular stars at this house, Johnny Tuers appears nightly in popular acts, the local comic drama of "The Streets of San Francisco" is received nightly with roars of laughter, Cassim and Fritz appear in gymnastic feats, Moore and Bray in song and dance, and a very varied and attractive entertainment is given.

Buckley's Varieties.

Frank Mortimore in sketches, Miss Lizzie Harmon in comic songs, Miss Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, Geo. Foster, Hughey Morton, Walter Parks and others in "Captain Blowhard's Troubles'" and many other attractions will be offered at this house to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

Many thousands of people visited these gardens yesterday, and six ascensions were made by Prof. A. Leo's captive balloon. Ascensions will be made to-day and next Saturday and Sunday.

City Gardens.

These gardens were very successfully reopened for the summer season yesterday, and attracted many visitors. German vocalism and an instrumental concert were pleasing features of the entertainment given. Many improvements have been made, and the grounds have been put in perfect order by the new proprietors, Messrs. Sneider, Gramm & Co.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising models of beauty and beautiful nude models, is now on view to gentlemen only at 637 Montgomery, or Montgomery street. Open from 9 to 10 A.M. and 1 to 10 P.M.

Notes.

The California Theatre was crowded last night when the Opera of "Don Giovanni" was performed for the benefit of that estimable artist, Madame Bianchi. The large attendance was a well deserved tribute to one who is identified with the very beginning of Italian Opera in San Francisco, and who has never been found wanting whenever her talent could afford pleasure to the public.

Among the attractions at the City Gardens next Saturday and Sunday will be an exhibition of Professor Wilder's trained animals, including the performing goats. Pasha and mate, and the educated dwarf elephant Princess Mollie, the smallest animal of the kind in the United States. Professor Wilder is already here awaiting the arrival of his animals on the steamer Constitution, now due.

The balloon season has set in vigorously in San Francisco. Sam Gerose is already on his way here with a mammoth balloon, and Prof. Barbier is under engagement at the City Gardens to commence a series of ascensions in the course of three or four weeks.

The Siegrist troupe will leave by train direct for New York on Wednesday next.

The last entertainment at Pacific Hall prior to its transformation into the Alcazar will be a lecture on the 26th. After this the work will commence.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronounciable name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. C. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capitol. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

Glorious!

For health and pleasure, a hot or cold salt water "splash" at the Sanitarium Baths, foot of Powell St., North Beach—terminus of Kearny and Montgomery street car lines. Five tickets for $1. 1bi

THE NEW DIGGING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider and fine fruits can do so (at the Matinee Fruit Store) without endangering their corns. 1x

Not to the man of dollars,
Not to the man of deeds,
Not to the man of cunning,
Not to the man of creeds,
Not for the one whose passion
Is for the world's renown,
Not in form of fashion,
Cometh a blessing down,

Not to the folly-blinded,
Not to the steeped in shame,
Not to the carnal-minded,
Not to unholy fame;
Not in neglect of duty,
Not in the monarch's crown,
Not in the smile of beauty,
Cometh a blessing down.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies, for
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor J. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemanly treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine," Geo. Collis, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to be at the silver raffle every Saturday evening. 12bh

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $35. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $10. Cassimere pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. Call and examine our new and large stock, before purchasing elsewhere. 2x

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs G Idsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2o

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1a

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. E. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

How I Made $20.

By buying my bed-room set of furniture of J. A. Shabaker & Co., 707 Market street two doors from Third. They sell Furniture 20 per cent. cheaper than any other dealers. I tried them

"Richelieu" in London.

"Richelieu" enjoyed the unprecedented run of one hundred and thirteen consecutive nights at the London Lyceum, and was only taken off on Feb. 7 to make room for Mr. Bateman's new play, "Philip." That this play, with all its historic interest and dramatic merits, would ever have maintained for so long a period a fixed position on the boards of a theatre nobody would have ventured to predict at the time of its first production. The utterly unprecedented run of "Richelieu" at the Lyceum is not only noteworthy as a theatrical event, but must be referred to as a striking illustration of the interest taken by the London play-going public in the histrionic career of Mr. Henry Irving, whose embodiment of the astute Cardinal has further demonstrated the care and ability of this highly intelligent actor. The revival is, moreover, recommended by the artistic performance of Mr. John Clayton, who makes the comparatively small part of the vascillating monarch Louis XIII. stand prominently forth as a strongly-marked character, while the general support received from the other members of the company, more especially from Miss Isabel Bateman as Julie de Mortemer, and the scenic completeness, allied to so much propriety to archæological accuracy, which also distinguishes the representation, afford additional reasons for the favor with which the play has been received and the numerous audience it has attracted.

Dieting.

Muffington being unwell was advised by a vegetarian friend to put himself on hygienic diet. This friend made out a gorgeous bill of fare for him, it included among other luxuries, mush, samp, groats, and apple slump. Muffington looked at the bill of fare and then remarked "I think I should prefer to die, I will not support life by eating mush, samp and slump, life is not so dear to me as that."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Colville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Not Discouraged.

In spite of being discouraged by the long spell of storm weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Cabinets, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

DRS. Smith and Trifford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

MINE Host of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, has had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Athambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

A Red Bluff "Fiend"

The Colusa Independent has the following:

An individual by the name of Daniel Johnson attempted to murder his family in Red Bluff a few days since. He was about to drag his wife out of bed by the feet—she having been delivered of twins a few hours previously—but friends arrived in time to prevent the fiend from accomplishing his purpose. He was arrested and is now in jail. This is not the first time that he has abused his family in a similar manner, but it is to be hoped that he has taken advantage of his last opportunity.

This party by the name of Johnson is now aware that a woman in Red Bluff will be protected in her right to bear twins or even triplets as often as she pleases. Though he advances the pitiable plea that Mrs. Johnson is constantly in the habit of doing this kind of thing, there is not a single man in Red Bluff who sympathizes with him. (The married men are prejudiced, and their opinion is not to be taken on such a matter.)

New Music.

We have received from the publisher, H. Gray, the following new music: "When Shall I Meet Thee" ballad sung by John W. McKinzie, the young California baritone, words and music by F. G. Carnes; "Carnivalde San Francisco" composed by J. H. Dohrmann; "The Dream Love is O'er," ballad, sung by Con. T. Murphy, words and music by Professor O'Reardon; and "The Ivy Club Lancers" arranged by L. Bodecker. From Chas. T. Eaton we have "Father's at Sea," a waltz by James A. Kerr.

California's Reputation Kept Up.

The cloud cast upon the reputation of California by the disgracefully bad shooting which occured in San Francisco some weeks ago, is removed by a very pretty specimen of pistol practice by starlight in Watsonville. Two men met, pistol in hand, one was shot in the right breast, the other in the left breast. Both are dead. After all it is to the t wns of the interior and not to the metropolis that we must look to keep up the reputation of California for good shooting.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
What cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who goes there once will go again.

The Variety Business.

A reporter of The New York Spirit of the Times has interviewed Tony Pastor on the subject of the variety profession. We make the following extract:

Critic—How are the variety performers paid?

Tony—They are the best paid people in the world, getting larger salaries than even theatrical people. The serio-comic singers get at least $75 to $100 a week, and some few of them $200 a week. Star performers like Johnny Thompson and Gus Williams get $250 a week, and the worst in the business get $30 a week.

Critic—are they better paid in America than England?

Tony—You bet they are. Vance, Leybourn, Jolly Nash, Clifton and Fred Coyne, the best in England, never get more than £10 a week. They have, however, the privilege of appearing at more than one place each night.

Critic—How do the English performers compare with the American?

Tony—The American are in every way superior. All that have come over from England, with the exception of Lingard, Milburn, James Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ware, the Waite Family, and a few others failed. English performers get about £3 at home, and they have the face to ask $150 and $200 when they come to the United States.

Critic—Who are the best performers in the United States?

Tony—Harrigan and Hart, Bickey, Master Barney, Walters and Morton, the Fieldings, Delehanty and Hengler, Freeman Sisters, Foy Sisters, Weston Sisters, Ashcroft and Kittie Brooke, Geo. Ware and wife, Johnny Hart, Add Ryman, Schoolcraft, Bloodgood, Sam Sanford and McAndrews, are the most prominent in their line.

Critic—Who are the best female singers and general performers?

Tony—Ella Wesner, Blanche Selwyn, Jennie Engle, Jennie Hughes, Blanche Castle, Nully Pieris, Polly Daly, Iona Lang, and Viola Clifton.

Critic—Which of these is considered the best card?

Tony—Ella Wesner.

Critic—Is there any other comic singer in this country but yourself?

Tony—None. Absolutely none. I stand alone. It is not merit to be alone. It is an accident. The 75,000,000 people who speak the English language have not furnished me with a companion in the last thirty years. I think that Boucicault——

Critic—(interrupting)—Who writes your comic songs?

Tony—I get them from several sources. John F. Poole writes a good many for me, and so does Watts—I don't mean the hymn-book man—and some I get from England. you see, I sing four songs a night, and must have new ones every week. I generally pay $25 for a good song; so you see it costs me something. Why, would you believe that I receive on an average one hundred songs a week from different persons, and out of each thousand I'll get only ten good songs?

True Politeness.

When an Oxford student was under examination in the schools, he was asked to point out "which were the greater and which were the lesser prophets." This was a "stunner" to Hopeful for a moment. He, however, soon rallied, recovered his self-possession, and answered, with the most cucumberish and icebergish nonchalance, "I never like to make invidious distinctions."

An Exchange of Compliments.

"Paddy," says a joker, "why don't you have your ears cropped? they are entirely too long for a man." "And yours," replied Pat, "ought to be lengthened; they are too short for an ass."

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News.]

It was so warm Thursday that several prudent Danbury people muzzled their dogs.

The cemetery pond is the most popular in this vicinity. Here of a clear night, and amid the solemn memories which cluster about the spot, the amateur skater straps on the back of his head, and swears like a pirate.

An Ohio ruralist having amassed a little money, went to New York the other day to take sail for Europe. His friend whom he consulted suggested that he would take a cabin, of course. "Not by a blasted lot," he shouted, with unexpected vehemence. "I've cabined it all my life, and I'm bound to have the best now, by bokey!"

Mothers should not strike their children hastily. When your boy does wrong you should not lift your hand against him, but inform him you will tell his father of him, and that his father will give him a dressing down that he will remember the longest day he lives [which is Sunday, we believe]. That boy will never again disobey you.

One of the visiting committee of a local charitable organization, called on a destitute family on Pine street, Saturday. After administering what relief she could, she turned to go, when the woman of the house followed her to the door and asked her in a whisper if she thought polonaise would be fashionable in the Spring.

It is said that the smoke which constantly engulphs Pittsburg, penetrating every crevice, is not in any way injurious to health. The same amount of tobacco smoke tainting the atmosphere of a town would stupefy its entire population. It is a well-known fact that smoking cigars inclines to indolence. And it is equally well established, we presume, that smoking stoves makes one smart.

If you will watch a squad of men who are standing on a corner, or lounging about a public entrance, you will soon observe one of them carelessly put his hand in his pocket, keep it there a moment while he sweeps the horizon with an abstracted glance, and then drawing it forth wipe his mouth with the cuff. When his hand comes down again a chew of tobacco is in his mouth, and those about him who have no tobacco are none the wiser.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronounceable name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at so low a figure, and besides which his late style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the French capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

M. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11r

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-7

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There was a magnificent audience last night when the play of "Richelieu" was presented, with John McCullough in the role of the King Cardinal. Mr. McCullough's impersonation of the character on this occasion did not differ materially from that which he has many times presented on the California stage. There was, perhaps, a little more elaboration here and there, and a toning down of some portions for the purpose of throwing others into stronger relief. The first act was very quiet, but after that the acting deepened in intensity until it culminated in the great "awful circle" scene into positive grandeur. The accessories in this thrilling scene were remarkably well managed, and the central figure of the Cardinal, as represented by Mr. McCullough, was wonderfully impressive. In the portions of the play in which the Cardinal shows his really kind heart and his affection for his ward, Mr. McCullough was very happy. He received able support from Miss Annie Graham as Julie de Mortimers, Barton Hill as DeBaradas, and Walter M. Leman as Joseph. A. DeMaupras, Lewis Morrison seemed too boyish—he was an innocent sort of a fellow, not the reckless dare-devil the author intended. He was very effective in the love-making scenes, but was throughout more the lover than the soldier. E. J. Buckley played the character of Francois, and made more of it than is usual when the part is (as is generally the case) committed to an actress. He played it like a brave, manly young h. W. A. Mestayer as DeBeringhen was very pleasant, quite realizing the character of that epicurean philosopher. The play was well put on the stage and well acted throughout. It will of course draw another large house this evening. To-morrow evening Mr. McCullough will appear in "Hamlet." The last impersonation of the Danish Prince which he gave in this city was so excellent that it left little room for fault-finding. It was a Hamlet that would be accepted by any audience in the world as possessing more beauties and fewer blemishes than almost any other presented on the stage at the present day. Those who visit the California Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday evenings will enjoy a rare treat.

Opera House.

An immense audience greeted the minstrels on their making their reappearance in San Francisco at this house last night. Every part of the auditorium was crowded to suffocation. The bill was an excellent one, Billy Manning and Billy Sweetman in first part and in acts, Welch and Rice in song and dance, Geo. S. Knight in his original specialties, Billy Manning in ballads, and others in acts and songs drew great a please. The comic sketch entitled "Forty Winks," with which the evening's amusement concluded, caused shouts of laughter. The same bill will be performed tonight.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

Those who have not yet visited this admirably arranged place of amusement, can have no idea how comfortable, and commodious it is. The entertainment presented is one of the best ever seen in this city, comprising as it does, feats by such stars as Senorita Turnour, Fred O'Brien, Leon and Lalesalle, Wooda Cooke and others. As the fine weather may tempt manager Wilson out into the country before long, the public should enjoy the present season of horse opera, while it lasts. There were very large houses at the matinee yesterday and in the evening.

Bella Union Theatre.

"The Merry Clowns," by Cassius and Fritz, "Barney's Return," by Miss Alice Rees and Ed. Murray, "A Nice Hotel," by Johnny Thurs," "The Streets of San Francisco," by Miss Jennie Johnson, Ed. Murray, J. W. Summers, Charley Nickerson, and others, song and dance by Moore and Gray, and many other attractions are comprised in the bill for to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

A brilliant first part, amusing and varied olio and screaming afterpiece, constitute the entertainment at this popular music hall. Frank Mortimer, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Katie Zoe, Miss Mollie La Forrest, Mlle. Blanche and many others appear nightly in songs, acts and dances.

Woodward's Gardens.

The fine weather we are at present enjoying, has the effect of drawing many visitors to these delightful gardens. The flowers and shrubs look beautiful after the rain, and a thousand and one attractions are to be found here. There will be half-hourly balloon ascensions on Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be agreeably spent here.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The basis of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies' cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 213 Montgomery street, and have the increase attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Improved Milk Punch.

The best of beverages. Try it. Made and sold only by A. L. Waag man, at his sympathetic of fine Wines, Liquors and Segars, corner of Leidesdorff and Sellock streets. Superb Hot Lunch from 11 to 2. N. B.—Stock reports telegraphed directly from the Board especially for this saloon. 2x

THE NEW PLAZZOLA opposite the door of California. The tile is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider and fine fruits can do so (at the Hatmen Fruit Store) without spending their corns. 1-x

Very True.

The New York Dispatch, in answer to a correspondent, says: The expression 'star,' as applied to members of the theatrical profession, is very old. It originally meant a brilliant or distinguished actor; but now it is applied to those who, unconnected with any regular theatre, travel from place to place, playing brief engagements, in which they are thought to be the principal attraction. It will therefore be seen that an actor may be the veriest "duffer" imaginable and yet be a star.

Progress in Japan.

The Empress of Japan has been visiting the female schools in Yokohama, and personally examining the pupils. The Japanese will have women on their school committees before long.

Sweet Friendship.

Next to the sweetness of having a friend whom you can trust, is the convenience of possessing a friend who will occasionally trust you.

An Established Fact.

Yes, this is a fine climate, but it is not to this cause we can attribute the surpassing beauty of Bradley & Rulofson's satin-finished Photographs, but rather to their untiring efforts in producing new and beautiful processes, and their lavish expenditure in surrounding themselves with such exquisite artists as Kunath, whose Crayons and Water-colors have no equal; such an accomplished Photographer as Taylure, whose grace in posing leaves not a charm unnoticed; such adepts with children as Jones; and his numerous corps of polite, attentive and skilful assistants. Truly there is little left for the climax to do, with Rulofson to direct such a galaxy of talent. 2x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While lesped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemany treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine," Geo. Collin, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to be at the silver rush every Saturday evening. 12bh

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $45. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. Call and examine our new and large stock, before purchasing elsewhere. 2 x

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2s

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation Hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Dr. Doherty

Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practice, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office 619 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below What Cheer House. x

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "This" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1n

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. E. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 5 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

How I Made $20.

For the best confectionery, go to Cairo and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Sutter. x

Obeying Orders.

The Sacramento Bee of Monday has the following: "The pictures of the California Governors, to buy which there is now a proposition before the Legislature, are ranged in the hall of the State Capitol near the Governor's office. Yesterday they were visited and admired by a great number of people, and that no harm might come to them a watchman was detailed to prevent enthusiastic spectators from touching them. He discharged his duties without fear and without favor. Presently Mr.———, the painter and owner of the pictures, appeared with a lady on his arm, and pressing through the crowd he started to point out to his companion some details. He was promptly stopped by the watchman. "But," blandly explained Mr. ———, "I am Mr. ———, the owner of the pictures." "I don't care a —— if you are one of the originals. I have orders not to let no one touch them and I wont," and the disappointed artist had to retreat and view his productions from a respectful distance.

Owning Up.

"A distinguished member of the Kentucky Legislature" is reported in the Louisville Commercial as having candidly "acknowledged the corn." Reappearing, after an absence from his seat of three days, he said "he had been sick." "What has been the matter with you?" he was asked. "Well, some folks call it nervous chills; others pronounce it a kind of affection of the heart; but, to be candid about it, I call it a plain case of old-fashioned drunk."

Correct Enough.

An exchange says: A story is told of a Minnesota boy who, to save express charges, packed his father's dead body in an old dry goods box; labeled it "venison," and sent it East. We don't think he was far wrong in describing "the dear departed" as venison.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish bock."

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D. Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Far Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will shew that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1s

Drs. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

Miss Host of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, has had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

"FIGARO."

THE JOURNAL OF AMUSEMENTS.

Published every Day in the Year by

J. P BOGARDUS

AT

423 Merchant and 525 Washington Sts

Below Montgomery, San Francisco.

WEDNESDAY.....FEBRUARY 25, 1874

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

How It Affected Him.

The Rev. I. S. Kalloch has been installed pastor of the First Baptist Church of Leavenworth, Kansas. He is very happy, and says: "I can hardly refrain from running through the streets, and clapping my hands, and crying 'I'm a minister of Christ! I'm a minister of Christ!'" The Christian Register is, however, of the opinion that instead of indulging in such peripatetic performances, it will be better for Mr. Kalloch to keep reciting in his closet, with the door shut tight, "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."

A Cruel Father.

Tears of mortification and rage coursed down the cheeks of a newly-married lady in Illinois, recently, when she beheld the presents given her by her father. They consisted of a washtub, axe, three flatirons, and a collection of baking dishes and saucepans. It was not their value she despised, but the meaning they conveyed.

An Appropriate Text.

"Did I not give you a flogging the other day?" said a schoolmaster to a trembling boy. "Yes, sir," answered the boy. "Well, what does the Scriptures say upon the subject?" "I don't know, sir," said the other, "except it is in that passage which says," "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A Needed Reform.

An exchange says:

A good deal has been said about reforming the drama. It is time to say something about reforming the patrons of the drama, many of whom, just as the curtain is ready to fall at the close of the last act, seize their hats and rush for the door as frantically as if they had just received the startling intelligence that the only saloon in the city would be closed for the night in two minutes and a half.

Of course the majority of the people who are guilty of this breach of good manners, are mechanics, who have to rise at six o'clock in the morning, and are in a hurry to get home to bed, but we have seen persons whose dress would seem to betoken them ladies and gentlemen of cultivation, make a hurried break from the California Theatre, while the last words of the play were being spoken. For these there is no excuse.

A Difference of Opinion.

It will be remembered (we intend that it shall) that the critic of the Call when Miss Jennie Lee made her first appearance in this city, expressed his opinion that she was not pretty. The Sacramento Bee says: Miss Jennie Lee, the "charming queen of comedy," is one of the prettiest and most shapely ladies of the American stage—whose appearance in New York turned to herself the tide of admiration from all the other "footlight fays" of the New York stage.

Not Particular.

The following story is told in connection with one of the matrimonial agencies of Paris: One M. X. applied at an agency for an eligible spouse, and was offered, and accepted, a damsel of twenty-seven, whose name was on the books. The agent, writing to the lady, told her frankly that M. X. was not an Adonis, but that he possessed more sterling qualities than beauty. At the same time he sent her a carte-de-visite of the gentleman, as he supposed, but by mistake slipped into the envelope a vignette portrait of a favorite ape. Next morning he discovered the error; before he could rectify it, however, he received a note from the lady, saying, "I accept the husband you offer me. It is true that he is not precisely handsome, but then he has such a distinguished air."

Perfectly Honest.

In Cooperstown they tell about an English joker who dined with Fennimore Cooper before he died in 1851. Cooper was then the most conspicuous man in the little town which nestles at the foot of a high mountain and reposes on the shores of the Seneca Lake. One day, while Mr. Cooper was dining with the Englishman, he poured out some native wine—wine from the grapes raised in his own garden. Taking up a glass and looking through it with pride, Cooper remarked:

"Now, Mr. Stebbins, I call this good, honest wine."

"Yes," said Mr. Stebbins, "I agree with you; it is honest wine—poor but honest."

Mr. Cooper went on telling his Injun stories.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-T

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

A Chinaman in the Kitchen.

Of all household trials and tortures, we think those of Miss Moloney, as recited to her friend Annie Ryan—in Scribner for January—must have been the sorest. Miss Moloney, be it understood, had "five good characters from respectable places," and was well settled in her new situation, when a "rale haythen Chineser, a grinnin' as if he'd just come off a tay-box," was introduced into the family as a waiter:

"Well, the ways and the trials I had with that Chineser, Ann Ryan, I couldn't be tellin.' Not a blessed thing ould I do but he'd be lookin' on wid his eyes cocked up'ard like two poomp-handles, an' he widdot a speck or smitch o' whishkers on him, an' his finger-nails full a yard long. But it's dyin' you'd be to see the missus alarnin' him, an' he grinnin' an' waggin' his pig-tail (which was pieced out long wid some black stoof, the haythen chatel) an' gettin' in to her ways wonderful quick, I don't deny, imitatin' that sharp, you'd be shurprised, an' kitchin' an' copyin' things the best of us will do a hurried wid work, yer don't want comin' to the knowledge of the family—bad luck to him!

"Is it ate wid him? Arrah an' would I be sittin' wid a haythen an' he'a-atin' wid drumsticks—yes, an' atin' dogs an' cats unknownst to me, I warrant you, which it is the custom of them Chinesers, till the thought made me that sick I could die. But the worrest of all was the copyin' he'd be doin' till ye'd be distracted. It's yersel' knows the tender feet that's on me since ever I've bin in this country. Well, owin' to that, I fell into a way o' elippin' me shoes off when I'd be settin' down to pale the praities or likes o' that, an' do ye mind! that haythen would do the same thing after me whiniver the missus set him parin' apples or tomaterses. The saints in heaven couldn't have made him belave he could kape his shoes on him when he'd be paylin' anything.

"Did I lave for that? Faix an' I didn't. Didn't he get me into trouble with my missus, the haythen? Your'e aware yoursel' how the boondles comin' in from the grocery often contains more'n'll go into anything dacently. So for that matter, I'd now and then take out a sup o' sugar, or flour, or tay an' wrap it in paper an' put in me bit of a box tucked under the ironin' blanket the how it couldent be botherin' any one. Well, what shud it be, but this blessed Sathurday morn the missus was a spakin' pleasant and respectful wid me in the kitchen, when the grocer boy comes in an' stands forenest her wid his boondles, an' she motions like to Fling Wing (which I never would call him by that name nor any other just but haythen), she motiens to him, she does, for to take the boondles an' empty out the sugar an' what not where they belonga. If you'll belave me, Ann Ryan, what did that blasterin' Chineser do but take out a sup o'sugar, an' a handful o' tay, an' bit o' chaze, right afore the missus, wrap them into bits o' paper, an' I spacheless wid shurprize, an' be the next minute up wid the ironin'-blankit and pullin' out me box wid a show o' bein' sly to put them in. Och, the Lord forgive me, but I clutched it, and the missus sayin' "O Kitty! in a way that nd' cruddle your blood. 'He's a haythen nager,' says I. 'I've found you out,' says she, 'I'll arrist him,' says I. 'It's you ought to be arristed,' says she. 'You won't,' says. 'I will,' says she—and so it went till she gave me such sass as I cuddent take from no lady—an' I give her warnin' and left that instant, an' she a pointin' to the doore."

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to shew that he had a recent consignment from the french capitol. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The minstrels are quite at home in this pretty little theatre, and present an excellent entertainment. George N. Knight is particularly good in his original specialties. Billy Sweatnam is great in the first part and in acts, Welch and Rice receive a double encore night by for their screaming act, "The O'Shaughnessy Guards," the quartette, "Drowned with the Tempest," by Russell, Baker, Montague and Loomis, delights all lovers of vocal music, and the comic skaters entitled "Forty Winks" winds up one of the best bills of the season.

California Theatre.

Another large and fashionable audience was present at this theatre last night when Mr John McCullough made his second appearance in the character of Richelieu. To-night he will appear as Hamlet. The play will be presented with a strong cast which is given on our first page. Lovers of Shakespeare who attend the California Theatre to-night will enjoy a genuine treat in an earnest and scholarly interpretation of the greatest creation of the dramatist, an interpretation devoid of affectation, true and genuine. John McCullough's Hamlet is as near as can be the Hamlet of Shakespeare, and the desire to make it this and nothing more is so evident throughout, that all must honor the actor.

Platt's Hall.

To-morrow evening Madame Anna Bishop will make her final appearance in this city prior to leaving for Australia. A brilliant programme has been prepared for this occasion. It is published in full in another column. A very popular feature will be the "Bouquet Musical," songs of all nations, by Madame Anna Bishop. It comprises English, Irish, Scotch, French, German, Russian, Italian and Spanish songs, and terminates with the American "Hail Columbia."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

At the matinee to-day and again this evening, a great performance will be given by the star combination at this place of amusement. The pony hurdle act by Master Johnny Cooke is the delight of the children. Fred O'Brien's wonderful leaping is the theme of general conversation, and Wooda Cooke, Senorita Tournour, Eugene de Briscac, Miss Adelaide, and the other performers all gain much applause for their respective acts.

Bella Union Theatre.

"Do you know Green?" by Matt Kelly and Tommy Bree, "A Nice Hotel" by Johnny Thers, "The Merry Clowns" by Cassim and Fritz, "Barney's Return," by Miss Alice Ross and Ed Murray, and a great variety of other entertainments will be presented to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie Brewer, Geo. H. Foster, Frank Mortimore, Harry Devoy, Hughey Morton and a host of others, all favorites with the public, appear nightly in a very bright and varied programme.

Woodward's Gardens.

The fine weather we are at present enjoying, has the effect of drawing many visitors to these delightful gardens. The flowers and shrubs look beautiful after the rain, and a thousand and one attractions are to be found here. There will be half-hourly balloon ascensions on Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

On Monday next, Barton Hill, the very efficient acting manager of the California Theatre, an excellent actor, will take his benefit. John McCullough will on this occasion appear in "King Lear." Tickets are in great demand, and everything promises an immense house.

Prof. O'Reardon left for New York with his Tumbleronicon this morning. He is under engagement at the Olympic Theatre.

Miss May Howard returned to this city from Denver on Sunday. She will leave for Australia on the 28th.

Madame State's benefit, which was to have come off at Platt's Hall, on Friday next, has been postponed until March 12th.

The benefit of Con T. Murphy, the stage manager of the Opera House, will not come off on Friday next, as announced in the Call this morning, but on Friday week, March 6th.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 813 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies 2x

WEDDED.

Some quick and bitter words we said,
And then we parted. How the sun
Swam through a sullen mist of grey!
A chill fell on the Summer day,
Life's best and happiest hours were done;
Friendship was dead.

How proud we went our separate ways,
And spake no word and made no moan;
She braided up her floating hair,
That I had always called so fair,
As though she scorned my loving tone,
My word of praise.

And I? I matched her scorn with scorn,
I hated her with all my heart,
Until—we chanced to meet one day!
She turned her pretty head away,
I saw two pleading tear-drops start,
Lo! love was born.

Some fond, repentant words I said,
She answered only with a sigh;
But when I took her hands in mine
A radiant glory, half-divine,
Flooded the earth and filled the sky.
Now we are wed.

Love's Labor Lost.

A correspondent of the New York Herald says: Your valuable dramatic column refers to the production of "Love's Labor Lost" by Daly, and mentions that some years have elapsed since it was represented in this city. Pardon me for taking issue with you, but in an experience of forty years, and with much study of local dramatics, I cannot recall a single instance of its production. I am sure you are wrong, as is also Mr. Daly, who in his advertisements refers to the piece as played here twenty-five years ago. It never has been performed at all since the days of the Globe and Blackfriars, that I can find. I remember the late Mr. Burton meditating its production, but saying there were so many first-class characters in it and so much elaborate detail of scenery and adjuncts necessary that the expense could not be endured. And if one reads the beautiful play he will find that three first-class actresses, five first-class actors, who can play lovers, and four comedians of equal merit are absolutely essential, and that with the inexperience of a young writer "Love's Labor Lost" is full of good things, put with lavish liberality into the mouths of each character. I say young writer, because indubitably, as your article suggests, the play was a juvenile production and Shakespeare's very first. In it appears the germ of Dogberry—in Constable Dull; also in Costard, the clown, the seedling of all Shakespeare's clowns. In Rosalie is foreshadowed Beatrice; in Biron is suggested Mercutio; in Armado, the braggart Falstaff, and so forth.

Out of His Jurisdiction.

Biagio, master of the ceremonies to Paul III., offended Michael Angelo by imploring him to drape his figures. As a punishment for his want of taste, the artist painted him with the ears of an ass in the depths of hell. The master of the ceremonies ran to complain to Paul III., on the insult put on his respectable person. "I beseech your Holiness to take me out of that," he cried. "But where has he placed thee?" demanded the Pontiff. "In hell, your Holiness!" replied Biagio, sobbing. "If thou hadst been in purgatory," said the Pope, "I would have removed thee, but I have no authority whatever in hell."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1y

A Signal Failure.

Mr. Huggins, of Snyder county, is in trouble. He was a candidate for coroner, and he thought he might promote his interests by getting all the women on his side, so he went around visiting them and kissing their babies. He was unfortunate in two instances. Once he picked up a baby that was playing on the doorstep, and was about to kiss it, when the mother saw him. She imagined he was a kidnapper, and as she was a red-haired woman, with a hot temper, she darted at Huggins with a broom handle, and made things very sensational for him for a few moments, until he could explain himself. Subsequently he kissed Mrs. Jones' baby, which had the measles, and then he kissed fourteen other babies, every one of which was down with the measles before night, having caught the disease from Huggins. He lost fourteen votes by that operation, and six of the fathers have sued him for the amount of their doctor's bills. Huggins was not elected, and when he runs again he will conduct the campaign on a different basis.

Fulfilling the Law.

Last Sunday, a young man of our acquaintance accompanied the lady of his love to church. He isn't in the habit of attending church regularly. They took a seat near the pulpit. After the text had been given out, the minister commenced by saying: "It is your duty to love one another." The young man thought the minister pointed directly at him and his girl. As the minister paused, the young man supposed he was waiting for an answer, and he replied: "We are loving each other just as thick as we can. But I don't see what you want to let all these folks know for." The young man couldn't understand why the minister frowned on him so severely, nor why his girl whispered, "Hush up, Dick," nor why all the people in the house that didn't titter, laughed outright. He doesn't intend to go to church any more. Church folks are so ill-mannered.

Too Bad.

A young man in Kingston, N. H., was led into the water and baptized on a recent cold stormy Sunday, and in less than a week he sickened and died, after that we don't know what became of him.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
An dido below the Market
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to H. F. Bunker's 74 and 76 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bon," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Coffee.

There is really more mental force in a cup of coffee than the uninitiated dream. I have always had grounds for respecting the scientist who decided, after years of testing its efficacy, that coffee prevented the waste of the muscular tissue. Though I do think that Schiller, with all his philosophy, made a mistake in diluting it with old cognac. A united aroma of Java and Maracaibo is sufficient in itself, to say nothing of the fumes of luscious Mocha. The French manner of distilling coffee is a fine art, understood in its perfection only by a native or a Swiss expert who has served an apprenticeship in Parisian cafes. Those who resort to a boiling process should never use anything but an earthen vessel or porcelain-lined coffee pot. It should be carefully cleaned and kept closely covered to preserve the fragrance, which otherwise goes to waste with the steam. The rank expression which coffee oftentimes indulges comes from the tin in which it is boiled and left standing. If possible, the cups in which it is served should be heated to prevent stagnation of the delicate effervescence.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Smuggling the "Call" into School.

Prof. Williams, Principal of the Spring Valley School, suspecting that some of his pupils were smuggling newspapers and story-books into the school to read in stolen moments, contrary to orders, determined to spring a surprise on them yesterday morning. At the opening of the school he gave his pupils a little sermon on the enormity of the offence of bringing such publications to school, and wound up by saying:

"Now, if there is any one here who has secretly brought either a story-book or newspaper to school with them this morning, I want them to stand up."

One of the young lady pupils blushed, fidgeted about in her seat, and, as the pangs of conscience became unendurable, stood up.

"Have you brought a paper or book?" asked the Professor.

"A paper, sir; I thought——"

"Never mind about what you thought, you know the rules of the school; one is as bad as the other. What paper did you bring to school with you?"

"The Morning Call," answered the little culprit.

"The Morning Call! give it to me immediately," said the Professor.

The poor girl, much embarrassed, began clutching and fumbling at her overskirt, until the Professor, realizing from her movements that the interdicted paper was used as a harmless panier only, told her she might sit down. It was her first panier, and that is the way the Call got smuggled into School.

The Irrepressible Collamores.

Mr. Collamore's child was baptized at our church, the other day and when she came to the minister with it, the clergyman said to him, in a low voice:

"Tell me its name, I'm ready to begin."

"Twins!" exclaimed Mr. Collamore, who is as deaf as ever. "Twins! gracious! we haven't got twins. This is the only one, I assure you."

"No, no," said the pastor; "I say we ought to begin."

"Forty twins? I don't understand you," said Collamore. "I merely want you to baptize this child, you understand."

"I asked you what was its name," said the minister, in despair. "What do you call it."

"No, sir, it don't bawl a bit. It's the quietist baby you ever see."

"What—is—the—name—of—the—child?" asked the clergyman.

"Oh, never mind its dress," said Collamore, "we don't mind if it is spi'led. Spi'le it as much as you choose. The baby don't mind a little water."

"What do you call the child? What's its name?" shrieked the minister.

"No, we're not going to call her Mary Jane," said Collamore, promptly. "We did think of Louisa, but I believe Mrs. Collamore finally settled on Cleopatra."

Then the clergyman baptized the child "Cleopatra." And old Collamore, after answering the questions all in the wrong places, shuffled down the aisle after the baby, wondering what on earth the congregation were laughing at. He will ruin that church if he remains in it.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The Family Album.

The Danbury News contains the following: "There is a sort of a delirious joy in looking over a family album, especially if it is a very old album with a sprained back, which occasionally and unexpectedly drops through your fingers, leaving a couple of cousins in one hand, and three aunts in the other, the rest of the family under the chair. The first picture is of an old gentleman with an expression of wary cautiousness in his face as if he was engaged in dodging a wild bull, and was somewhat doubtful of the result. Opposite him is the grandmother, a patient-looking lady in a black dress, with a book in one hand and a pair of spectacles in the other. There is a feeble but well meaning effort to look safe in her face. On the next leaf is a middle-aged man looking as if he had been suddenly shot through the roof of a starch factory, and had landed in the middle of a strange country. Opposite is a picture of his wife, who, having heard a rumor of the catastrophe, has made up her mind to be prepared for the worst. Then follow the children—little girls looking so prim as to make you squirm, and little boys with their eyes turned on their noses, and with an expression on their face of unearthly solemnity. Then follow uncles, taken in their overcoats, with a spreading inclination in their clothes, hair and face, as if they were bound to get their money's worth; and aunts with warts on their noses, and varnish in their hair, and preposterous lace collars about their necks. Then there is the bashful young man penned opposite an aggressive young lady, whom Heaven and some married women have designed for each other. There is also a picture of Cousin Alek and his young wife, who stopped here on their tour, and no young man looks at him without retiring at once and registering a terrible vow never to get married. Besides these is the picture of the man who lived next door for eight years, at the end of which time his wife died, and he moved to Illinois with the children, and is now worth some fifty thousand dollars. He has been photographed in his hat, which is one size too large for him, and which gives him an appearance of having murdered his aunt and concealed the body. Then there are two or three fine looking corsairs of no particular identity, and several broken spirited women with babies in their arms—directly or indirectly related to the owner of the album; and the exhibition closes.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The basis of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

California Theatre.

"Hamlet" was performed last night to an excellent house. The last performance of the character of Hamlet given by John McCullough in this city was so excellent that we thought that he could scarcely improve on it. There were, however, some few changes in the reading and in the business of the part, all of which we must certainly confess made it more perfect. For instance, in the graveyard scene, in the colloquy with the gravedigger, Hamlet is not the gloomy being he was when at Court. He does not preach at the gravedigger and throw a wet blanket on that jovial being, but enters into his humor and bandies jests with him in a cheerful voice. It is not until his attention is called to the skull of Yorick that even a shade of melancholy tinges his voice, and even then he does not moan lugubriously, as if Yorick were the only friend he ever had on earth, but speaks in a quietly regretful manner of his old servant. As an instance of intelligent reading we give the following: When the King asks "How fares our cousin Hamlet?" every Hamlet except John McCullough replies: "Excellent i' faith; of the chameleon's dish; I eat the air." It is thus printed in all editions of Shakespeare, and thus spoken, as we observed before, by all actors. Some time ago we pointed out in "Figaro" this false reading, and suggested a better one. We were much pleased, last night, when Mr. McCullough read it: "Excellent faith; of the chameleon's dish I eat—the air." There were many other instances in which Mr. McCullough read more intelligently and conscientiously than any other actor who has ever played the part on the California stage. Throughout he succeeded in sinking his individuality and presented the Danish Prince—weak-minded, vascillating, eccentric, but no madman. Barton Hill gave the best reading of the part of the ghost ever heard on the California stage, and so vividly did he convey the idea of a supernatural visitant from the silent shores, that when on Hamlet saying: "It will not speak; then I will follow it," Horatio exclaimed: "Do not, my lord," a lady in the audience, carried away by the reality of the scene and fearing for Hamlet's safety, gave vent to her feelings in an audible "no! no!" which we are sorry to say, had the effect of causing a number of less appreciative auditors to laugh. The ghost business was excellently managed, the fading away of the figure into thin air and subsequent revelation of it in its former position by the lurid gleam of the lightning being very effective. Miss Ellie Wilton presented a charming impersonation of Ophelia, and acted splendidly in the mad scene, singing with exquisite pathos. E. J. Buckley's Horatio we have frequently commended as an admirable performance; it was lacking in nothing last night. Lewis Morrison as the fiery Laertes did some strong acting in the scene with Ophelia, and was generally good. John Wilson as the King, and Miss Annie Graham as the Queen, lacked dignity, and they seemed to be at Elsinore merely on sufferance. W. Barry as the gravedigger was absolutely perfect; a better realization of the character could not be desired, and J. S. Terrence played the second gravedigger very well. Miss Nellie Cummins did not make much of the character of Ophelia; we think she played it for the first time last night; she will probably display more confidence this evening. Miss Carrie Wyatt filled the role of the Player Queen very pleasingly and read her lines with good effect. Walter M. Leman made Polonius a more tedious old fool than was necessary. With these slight drawbacks the play as a whole was a perfect treat to all lovers of Shakespeare, and we hope that this class will be numerously represented at the California Theatre this evening, when "Hamlet" will be played for the last time. To-morrow "Julius Cæsar" will be produced for one night only.

Opera House.

Billy Sweatnam and Billy Welch cause much fun on the ends in the first part, George S. Knight in his original specialities, makes the audience roar with laughter, the quartette, "Crowned with the Tempest" by Russell, Baker, Montague and Loomis is delightfully sung, and the amusing acts of "Wanted a Nurse," and "Forty Winks" make up a great bill that cannot fail to please all who visit this theatre.

Platt's Hall.

This evening Madame Anna Bishop will make her final appearance in this city prior to leaving for Australia. A brilliant programme has been prepared for the occasion. It is published in full in another column. A very popular feature will be the "Bouquet Musical," songs of all nations, by Madame Anna Bishop. It comprises English, Irish, Scotch, French, German, Russian, Italian and Spanish songs, and terminates with the American "Hail Columbia."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

The fine weather will soon tempt John Wilson afield and those who wish to see the great combination of equestrian and gymnastic talent at this very pleasant place of amusement should not delay paying it a visit. Miss Helen Cooke, Miss Adelaide, Fred O'Brien, Senorita Tournour, Wooda Cooke, the comical clowns, and the wonderful horses will all appear in a great programme this evening.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross and Ed. Murray, appear every night in "Barney's Return," Moore and Bray in song and dance, Osborn and Fritz in gymnastic diversions, J. W. Summers, Miss Jennie Johnson, Charley Nickerson, Ed. Murray and others in "The Streets of San Francisco," and Johnny Tuers and many others in amusing acts.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Sleeping Under Difficulties," "Obeying Orders," "Dodging for a Wife," and "Engaging Talent," are the acts to be played at this house to-night in conjunction with a great variety bill of songs, dances and specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

The fine weather we are at present enjoying, has the effect of drawing many visitors to these delightful gardens. The flowers and shrubs look beautiful after the rain, and a thousand and one attractions are to be found here. There will be half-hourly balloon ascensions on Saturday and Sunday.

Arrivals.

The Constitution, which came in yesterday, brought Wilder's pets all safe and sound, under care of Jack Hudson. They comprise the wonderful Baby Elephant "Princess," two trained goats, and a magnificent specimen of the Lo tribe. On the same steamer came Capt. G. Barbier, the Parisian war correspondent and Sam Gerous with a [illegible] balloon. The people of San Fran-

THE PRIEST'S HEART.

BY CHARLES KINGSLEY.

It was Sir John, the fair young priest,
He strode up off the strand;
But seven fisher maidens he left behind
All dancing hand in hand.

He came into the wise-wife's house;
"Now, mother, to prove your art;
To charm May Carleton's merry blue eyes
Out of a young man's heart."

"My son, you went for a holy man,
Whose heart was set on high;
Go sing in your psalter, and read in your books;
Man's love fleets lightly by.

"I had liever to talk with May Carleton
Than with all the saints in heaven;
I had liever to sit by May Carleton
Than to climb the spheres seven.

"I have watched and fasted, early and late;
I have prayed to all above;
But I find no cure save churchyard mold
For the pain which men call love!"

"Now, heaven forfend that ill grow worse!
Enough that ill be ill.
I know of a spell to draw May Carleton,
And bend her to your will."

"If thou didst that, which thou canst not do,
Wise woman though thou be,
I would run and run until I buried myself
In the surge of yonder sea,

"Seatholes to rue are maid and wife,
And seatholes shall they abide;
Yet charm me May Carleton's eyes from the heart
That aches in my left side."

She charmed him with the white witchcraft;
She charmed him with the black;
But he turned his fair young face to the wall,
Till she heard his heart strings crack.

Reminiscences of Parepa.

The New York Tribune pays a merited tribute to the personal character of Madame Parepa-Rosa, the deceased prima donna. Her marriage with Mr. Rosa was one of love on both sides, and the mutual respect and frank affection which always existed between husband and wife were charming to witness. The most affectionate relations generally prevailed between her and the members of the company. Almost any of the subordinate singers of the opera troupe would work all day for the chance to be of service to "Madame," and the chorus singers often took a few dollars out of their earnings to buy flowers on special gala occasions for the prima donna who always had a kind word for them and a gracious smile. With the principal artists, also, despite the proverbial jealousies of the profession, her intercourse was unusually cordial and agreeable. Her best friends, however, were chosen from private life, and in their society she was always one of the most charming of companions. She was constantly doing little acts of kindness in unexpected ways—singing to the servants at the hotels in her travels, or helping some broken-down musician. On one occasion she attended a benefit performance at a theatre, when one of the principal attractions advertised did not appear. She promptly came forward from the audience, and relieved the beneficiary's distress by going upon the stage dressed as she was and volunteered a song. She owned a pleasant house in London, to which it was her purpose to retire some day for the enjoyment of that quiet, domestic life for which she always had a longing. Probably no opera singer who ever visited America was more universally respected by musicians.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Kookaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While reaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat,
The food is good, the prices low

Patient and Long Suffering.

One day Cucker, the poet, approached Pixtt on the piazza.

"Colonel," said he, "I wrote an address last Summer a year, on the occasion of the guests at the Old Sweet visiting in a body the guests at the Young Sweet.' Would you mind if I repeated it to you?"

The colonel took off his hat and wiped his head of rich brown hair—not a hair in the crown gray, though life is a little old with the wearer.

"My dear Cucker," he said, in a kind, passive way, "nothing would more please me."

The poor numbskull repeated two hundred lines of the weary drivel, and then the colonel said. "My dear Cucker, that is a remarkably graceful thing. Would you mind repeating it all to me again. I know that I am asking a great deal, but you would really oblige me."

The astonished and delighted Cucker repeated the whole lugubrious performance. The colonel sat in apparent ecstacy, not a twinkle in his face, and at the end he said: "Thanks, my dear Cucker! What pains you have been at to gratify me. Now won't you select some of the passages that strike you most in that poem, and repeat them to me? By that time I shall have a living memory of that extraordinary composition, for so I must call it."

The bewildered Cucker looked into the colonel's eyes, and met there the gentlest reverence and the sincerest interest. So he galloped through two-thirds of the stupidity a third time.

The colonel had a headache all that day, and could not sleep at night. I said to him:

"Great Heavens! what did you do that queer thing for?"

"Well," he said, "I thought the Almighty might put it to my credit to try and make that poor fellow happy."

Order in Court.

A Nevada judge, after a jury had been impanneled, and course, was ready to proceed, pulled out a revolver, and judicially remarked: "If any man goes to frolicking around in this court room during the trial of this case, I shall interrupt him in his career." The strictest decorum prevailed in that court room.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemany treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine," Geo. Collins, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to be at the silver raffle every Saturday evening. 12bh

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

Drs. "FIGARO."

THE JOURNAL OF AMUSEMENTS.

Published every Day in the Year by

J. P. BOGARDUS

—AT—

632 Merchant and 535 Washington Sts
Below Montgomery, San Francisco.

FRIDAY.....FEBRUARY 27, 1874

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Amusing.

The Chronicle finds that it does not enjoy the popularity with the newspapers of the interior which it fondly imagined it had. It is forced to this conclusion by the not remarkably genial notices of it which have been republished by the Call and Alta. Under these circumstances something must be done. It therefore, under the head of "Public Opinion," publishes every other day or so extracts from half a dozen interior papers, the proprietors of which it imagines will feel flattered by seeing the names of their bucolic publications in the columns of a metropolitan journal. Who dare say that the Chronicle is not smart?

Manly Talk.

The Sacramento Bee doesn't seem to be a bit afraid of giving women equal rights with men. We judge from the following:

It may not be many years before the "Lords of Creation" will be free to acknowledge the equal rights of the other sex.—[Bee.

When that time comes, if ever, the "Lords of Creation" will be "Lords of Creation" no longer. Don't you see, Mr. Bee?—[Mendocino Democrat.

And if they are afraid to award to others equal rights with themselves, they are very poor lords now.—[Bee.

Satisfactory.

Justice Haines, of Chicago, has decided that editors are professional men, and that their scissors, paste-pot, etc., cannot be seized for debt.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $45. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $10. Cassemere pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. A PITIABLE EXHIBITION.

All must regret that the Bulletin, a generally well edited paper, and an authority on many matters, displays in the dramatic criticisms published in its columns a gross ignorance which is positively disgraceful. The reason of this is, as we have before stated, that the Bulletin instead of employing an educated gentleman to write intelligent and just criticisms of the performances at the theatres, delegates this task to any one who may wish to do it. Thus it happens that the man who has spent the day in writing up reports of the number of the drunks brought before the Police Court, runaways, fires, fights, and other local events, goes in the evening for relaxation to the theatre, and is allowed on the following day to express his opinions of actors and plays in the columns of the Bulletin. Yesterday, the local who did this, whoever he was, took great pains to write himself down an ass. He said:

Those who have witnessed John McCullough's impersonations of "Spartacus" and "Cardinal Richelieu" must have been sorely disappointed with his Hamlet last night.

Those who witnessed the performance in question, who were capable of understanding the character, were delighted both with Mr. McCullough's conception of the character, and his manner of carrying it out. This ambitious critic says further:

The role is one in which he appears to the least advantage.

The role is, in fact, with the exception of Othello, that in which Mr. McCullough appears to the best advantage, and all who are capable of intelligent criticism are agreed on this point. Now for specific criticism:

His soliloquy in Scene 1., Act III., commencing with the words "To be or not to Be," was exceedingly tame; and such was the case also with his apostrophe to Yorick, in the graveyard scene.

No doubt Mr. McCullough's delivery of the soliloquy appeared exceedingly tame to the critic accustomed to hear it spouted at the audience. The reason of this was, that John McCullough came on the stage in deep thought, stood sideways towards the audience, seemingly utterly oblivious of their presence, and uttered the soliloquy in a calm (tame!) reflective tone. "To be or not to Be" was the question, a question for calm deliberation. Hamlet had a good mind to cut his throat just about that time, but he did not howl forth the result of his deliberations. Then again the apostrophe to Yorick; this was not delivered in a sepulchral tone: "Alaaas! poor Yaw——rick!" but, as we observed in our criticism yesterday, in a quietly regretful manner. We are glad this luminous critic found something to praise. He says:

Miss Ellie Wilton's enactment of the character of the crazed "Ophelia," was the finest and most touching piece of acting in the entire play.

This makes us think that it was not the Police Court reporter who wrote this criticism, but the bright genius to whom is delegated the dignified literary work of reporting the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors. The "enactment" seems to show this. Is it not a disgrace to one of the leading journals of San Francisco, a city noted for its appreciation and encouragement of the drama, that an actor like John McCullough, should be subjected to criticism such as this? This is worse than treating the drama with silent contempt—it is actually calculated to injure its progress—for what actor would like to come to a city where the leading evening journal employs the same man to write its Police Court reports, and its criticisms of the drama?

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-x

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Don't Do It.

Don't kill the fatted calf too often. Well fed prodigals seldom reform.

Don't poke fun at your wife's relations. Too much levity will disturb the quiet of your home.

Don't educate your children for Congressmen. Better let them "take things" easy.

Don't imagine that there is any honor in dabbling in printer's ink. Every counterfeiter "writes for the paper."

Don't chase an original idea. Too many of them are caught with another man's ammunition.

Don't commit suicide. There is no honor in taking the life of a fool.

Don't study devilment. It is a saving of time to learn it by intuition.

Don't punish too much bad whisky. It is wrong to injure yourself in your efforts to get your enemy down.

Don't ask the Lord to forgive your enemies. Practice charity a little while on your own account.

Don't spend another man's money too freely. Self-constituted almoners are rarely appreciated.

Don't steal an editor's thoughts. It is wrong to appropriate a man's entire stock in trade, be it ever so small.

Pleasant Fun.

A correspondent of the New York Mercury, writing from Troy, says, speaking of the performance at Acker's Varieties: On the 10th Lucy Adams, while singing "Apples for a Penny," threw seven or eight apples with all her strength at the audience, every one of which hit a spectator. One apple struck a man square in the teeth, hurting him severely. He picked the apple up and threw it back. It hit the lady at the side of her eye, and she went in the wing crying loudly, while Guy Linton, her husband, rushed out and denounced the perpetrator as a scoundrel who should be in jail. The lady can throw an apple with great accuracy 180 yards; but she has learned not to practice that accomplishment with the faces of Troy boys as targets.

Young ladies use powder, perhaps, because they think it will make them go off.

Cheap happiness—Going without one's dinner to be happy when supper-time comes.

What is that which, when it is thrown out, you may always catch without hands?—A hint.

There is one thing that is always taken from us before we get it, and that is our photograph.

"I will be down directly, sir," as the pill said to the patient.

A Telegraphic Error.

A country paper says that, in reply to a question from the lecture committee of the chief town of the district, as to the subject of a lecture to be given at the institution, the lecturer telegraphed, "A Taste of Naples and Rome." The telegraph read, "A Taste of Apples and Rum."

A Georgeous Description.

A New York dramatic critic recently said there were "acres of silk and pounds of diamonds" present in the house.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 613 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Amusing.

The Chronicle finds that it does not enjoy the popularity with the newspapers of the interior which it fondly imagined it had. It is forced to this conclusion by the not remarkably genial notices of it which have been republished by the Call and Alta. Under these circumstances something must be done. It therefore, under the head of "Public Opinion," publishes every other day or so extracts from half a dozen interior papers, the proprietors of which it imagines will feel flattered by seeing the names of their bucolic publications in the columns of a metropolitan journal. Who dare say that the Chronicle is not smart?

Manly Talk.

The Sacramento Bee doesn't seem to be a bit afraid of giving women equal rights with men. We judge from the following:

It may not be many years before the "Lords of Creation" will be free to acknowledge the equal rights of the other sex.—[Bee.

When that time comes, if ever, the "Lords of Creation" will be "Lords of Creation" no longer. Don't you see, Mr. Bee?—[Mendocino Democrat.

And if they are afraid to award to others equal rights with themselves, they are very poor lords now.—[Bee.

Satisfactory.

Justice Haines, of Chicago, has decided that editors are professional men, and that their scissors, paste-pot, etc., cannot be seized for debt.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $35. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $10. Cassemere pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. Call and examine our new and large stock, before purchasing elsewhere. 2-x

A PITIABLE EXHIBITION.

All must regret that the Bulletin, a generally well edited paper, and an authority on many matters, displays in the dramatic criticisms published in its columns a gross ignorance which is positively disgraceful. The reason of this is, as we have before stated, that the Bulletin instead of employing an educated gentleman to write intelligent and just criticisms of the performances at the theatres, delegates this task to any one who may wish to do it. Thus it happens that the man who has spent the day in writing up reports of the number of the drunks brought before the Police Court, runaways, fires, fights, and other local events, goes in the evening for relaxation to the theatre, and is allowed on the following day to express his opinions of actors and plays in the columns of the Bulletin. Yesterday, the local who did this, whoever he was, took great pains to write himself down an ass. He said:

Those who have witnessed John McCullough's impersonations of "Spartacus" and "Cardinal Richelieu" must have been sorely disappointed with his Hamlet last night.

Those who witnessed the performance in question, who were capable of understanding the character, were delighted both with Mr. McCullough's conception of the character, and his manner of carrying it out. This ambitious critic says further:

The role is one in which he appears to the least advantage.

The role is, in fact, with the exception of Othello, that in which Mr. McCullough appears to the best advantage, and all who are capable of intelligent criticism are agreed on this point. Now for specific criticism:

His soliloquy in Scene 1., Act III., commencing with the words "To be or not to Be," was exceedingly tame; and such was the case also with his apostrophe to Yorick, in the graveyard scene.

No doubt Mr. McCullough's delivery of the soliloquy appeared exceedingly tame to the critic accustomed to hear it spouted at the audience. The reason of this was, that John McCullough came on the stage in deep thought, stood sideways towards the audience, seemingly utterly oblivious of their presence, and uttered the soliloquy in a calm (tame!) reflective tone. "To be or not to Be" was the question, a question for calm deliberation. Hamlet had a good mind to cut his throat just about that time, but he did not howl forth the result of his deliberations. Then again the apostrophe to Yorick; this was not delivered in a sepulchral tone: "Alasas! poor Yaw——rick!" but, as we observed in our criticism yesterday, in a quietly regretful manner. We are glad this luminous critic found something to praise. He says:

Miss Ellie Wilton's enactment of the character of the crazed "Ophelia," was the finest and most touching piece of acting in the entire play.

This makes us think that it was not the Police Court reporter who wrote this criticism, but the bright genius to whom is delegated the dignified literary work of reporting the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors. The "enactment" seems to show this. Is it not a disgrace to one of the leading journals of San Francisco, a city noted for its appreciation and encouragement of the drama, that an actor like John McCullough, should be subjected to criticism such as this? This is worse than treating the drama with silent contempt—it is actually calculated to injure its progress—for what actor would like to come to a city where the leading evening journal employs the same man to write its Police Court reports, and its criticisms of the drama?

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that he enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

Don't Do It.

Don't kill the fatted calf too often. Well fed prodigals seldom reform.

Don't poke fun at your wife's relations. Too much levity will disturb the quiet of your home.

Don't educate your children for Congressmen. Better let them "take things" easy.

Don't imagine that there is any honor in dabbling in printer's ink. Every counterfeiter "writes for the paper."

Don't chase an original idea. Too many of them are caught with another man's ammunition.

Don't commit suicide. There is no honor in taking the life of a fool.

Don't study devilment. It is a saving of time to learn it by intuition.

Don't punish too much bad whisky. It is wrong to injure yourself in your efforts to get your enemy down.

Don't ask the Lord to forgive your enemies. Practice charity a little while on your own account.

Don't spend another man's money too freely. Self-constituted almoners are rarely appreciated.

Don't steal an editor's thoughts. It is wrong to appropriate a man's entire stock in trade, be it ever so small.

Pleasant Fun.

A correspondent of the New York Mercury, writing from Troy, says, speaking of the performance at Acker's Varieties: On the 10th Lucy Adams, while singing "Apples for a Penny," threw seven or eight apples with all her strength at the audience, every one of which hit a spectator. One apple struck a man square in the teeth, hurting him severely. He picked the apple up and threw it back. It hit the lady at the side of her eye, and she went in the wing crying loudly, while Guy Linton, her husband, rushed out and denounced the perpetrator as a scoundrel who should be in jail. The lady can throw an apple with great accuracy 180 yards: but she has learned not to practice that accomplishment with the faces of Troy boys as targets.

Young ladies use powder, perhaps, because they think it will make them go off.

Cheap happiness—Going without one's dinner to be happy when supper-time comes.

What is that which, when it is thrown out, you may always catch without hands?—A hint.

There is one thing that is always taken from us before we get it, and that is our photograph.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The comic sketch of "Forty Winks," with which the performance at this house terminates, is immensely funny, and Billy Sweatnam, Con T. Murphy, Billy Welch and others engaged in its representation gain much applause for their comic acting. "The O'Shaughnessy Guards," by Welch and Rice, is a popular feature of the performance. George S. Knight is great in his Dutch specialties, and altogether an admirable entertainment is presented. The full programme will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

California Theatre.

Another very large and thoroughly appreciative audience enjoyed John McCullough's admirable performance of "Hamlet" last night. To-night "Julius Cæsar" will be presented, with Mr. McCullough as Marcus Brutus, Barton Hill as Cassius, Henry Edwards as Marc Antony, John Wilson as Julius Cæsar, Miss Annie Graham as Portia, Miss Ellie Wilton as Calphurnia, and a generally strong cast, which is published in full on our first page. To-morrow evening the same play will be performed, with John McCullough as Marc Antony, and Henry Edwards as Brutus. At the matinee to-morrow "Richelieu" will be presented.

California Theatre—Opera Night.

On Sunday evening the grand opera of "Il Trovatore," always a favorite in this city, will be performed with Madame Inez Fabbri as Leonora, Madame Bianchi in her great character of Azucena, Signor Pietro Bacci as Manrico, Signor Orlandini as Count di Luna, Mrs. Junker as Ines, Mons. Charles as Ruiz, and Signor Roncovieri as Ferrando.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

There will be a matinee performance to-morrow for ladies and children, and all the stars will appear in the great programme which has delighted so many during the week. This evening Wood's Cooke, Miss Adelaide, Fred O'Brien, Omar Kingsley and his wonderful trained horse Napoleon I., Genorita Tournour, and many others will present an entertainment seldom equaled in this city.

Platt's Hall.

That wonderful artiste, Madame Anna Bishop, made her final appearance in San Francisco at the above named Hall last night. An immense audience assembled to bid farewell to the sweet singer, and all enjoyed a capital programme excellently well performed. The beneficiary delighted every one with her "Bouquet Musical", comprising songs of all nations, and the local artistes who volunteered for the occasion, with some exceptions, acquitted themselves most satisfactorily.

Farewell Benefit of the Girards.

These wonderful artistes, who have afforded the public of San Francisco so much amusement by their extraordinary performances, will take their farewell benefit at the Opera House on Monday next, when they will appear in conjunction with the combined troupes, the California Minstrels and the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee troupe. No one can deny that these popular performers have fairly earned a benefit, and we are sure that they will have a bumper to compensate them for the many bumps they endure to make the public laugh.

Bella Union Theatre.

A new programme will be performed at this popular theatre to-night, and Miss Fanny Hooker, dansense and specialty artiste, will make her first appearance. Miss Alice Ross and Ed Murray, who continue great favorites, will present the sketch entitled "Barney's Return," and Miss Jennie Johnson, John Woodard, Tommy Bree, Fred Richie, Matt Kelly, J. W. Summers, Miss Susie Robinson, Miss Maggie Kelly and others will appear in the thrilling play of "Satan in San Francisco." In addition to these attractions Johnny Tuers will sing his famous song "I Couldn't Stay Away," and other performances will be given.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Lizzie Harmon, Frank Mortimore, Miss Kodie Zelms, Mlle. Blanche Harry Devoy, Miss Maggie Brewer, and many others will appear in a great bill to-night. It comprises acts, songs, dances, and amusing specialties, as may be seen by referring to our first page.

Woodward's Gardens.

The fine weather we are at present enjoying, has the effect of drawing many visitors to these delightful gardens. The flowers and shrubs look beautiful after the rain, and a thousand and one attractions are to be found here. There will be half-hourly balloon ascensions on Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

"JOLLY GIANT'S" Illustrations in this number—Alemany and Jimmy McGinn, Dr. King and Citizens' Union, WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY, St. Patrick's Birthday and John Chinaman's New Years, Our Man About Town before the Editor of the Monitor. Out every Saturday. 2-x

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1y

FAR APART.

Beneath the quaint old bridge you hear
The waves make music as they pass;
And, winding to the elm tree near,
You see the pathway through the grass,
Where we were wont to walk, alas!

The river wanders as of old
Beneath the shade of willow trees;
The sunlit waters gleam like gold,
And ripple to the gentle breeze;
But I am far from thee and these!

The sky bends over, broad and blue,
And, in the soft and mellow light,
You tread the lane our footsteps knew
In former days, when days were bright;
Do these days bring such sweet delight?

And still that lane with grass is green;
With fragrant flowers the banks are fair;
In golden gloss and silver sheen,
The bees still haunt the balmy air;
But you will fail to find me there.

Again, perchance, I may not see
The rushing rows of willow-trees
(Which lent a leafy canopy
When we strolled underneath at ease);
For I am far from thee and these!

Our joys forsake us. Soon does Spring
Pass by and for the Summer call;
Soon do the birds lose heart to sing,
When fading leaves in autumn fall,
And Winter is the end of all.

Plain English.

Judge Brady, of New York, is entitled to the thanks of the people who are opposed to verbosity. Cross-examining a witness in his presence, an attorney asked: "Were you not on the night on which you say you were robbed in such a state of vinous excitement as to preclude the possibility of your comprehension of your situation with that accuracy and precision necessary to a delineation of truth?" In the interest of incisive English and to the relief of the witness, the judge demanded that the question be translated into the vernacular. Mark the result. Said the contrite attorney: "Were you not on the night you spoke of blind drunk?"

The Difference Between High and Low.

When a clergyman of the Church of England was about to give a dinner to some of his clerical brethren, his butler asked whether the expected guests were High Church or Low Church. His master said: "Why do you ask that question?" The butler answered, "Because if they be High Church we want more wine; but if they be Low Church we want more wittles."

A Higher Court.

An Indiana woman, whose suit for divorce had lingered along until she was completely out of patience, burst into her lawyer's office, her face radiant with joy, and exclaimed: 'Squire, the old man's dead.'

A Valuable Recipe.

An Irish editor, who speaks with the air of a man who has discovered a new fact by experience, says that the way to prevent bleeding at the nose is to keep your nose out of other people's business.

Playing Samson.

A prisoner in the Cowley county (Kansas) jail has been playing Samson. He lifted the door of his prison from its hinges and departed thence.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Step," said my friend, "let's go in here.
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Longevity of Things.

A Lie lives eternally.

"Live Forever Jones" is dead.

Two years is about the range of a hog's life.

An elephant lives to celebrate his centennial.

Oil is long-lived. Hence the expression, "Old oil."

The average life of a newspaper is about six months.

The average duration of a school-boy's love is three months.

The butterfly lives about four months. But he lives in clover.

The plant called Live Forever, dies at the end of the first season.

A horse never gets beyond his ninth year—if his owner wants to sell him.

Dogs, especially those that delight to bark and bite, live about three years.

Good resolutions, born on New Year, usually go to the infernal pavement on the 8th of January.

The oyster, if let alone, lives 200 years. But he is not let alone, and his living don't amount to much anyhow.

The average extent of woman's life is twenty-five years. Some, however, after they are married, reach the advanced age of thirty-five.

Count Cagliostro was thirty-five hundred years old, according to his own story. But they made it hot for him when he went down there.

True Enough.

The Oakland Daily Tribune, a small but bright paper just started on the other side of the bay, has the following: The Transcript asks Pickering to advertise for brains. Bro. P. hasn't any use for 'em. Besides, it has been demonstrated that the Call can run without them.

The Kearny Junction Money Market.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean lately asked, "What is a dollar?" The Kearny Junction Press innocently responds, "Six square drinks and ten cents change," and Chicago comprehends perfectly.

Beware of Poets!

A French editor was waylaid one evening, and stabbed in the back with a poinard by a lady whose poems he had criticised severely. All reviewers should take warning.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Colville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

And partake of the luxuries to be found there. The best of seasonable hot punches of all kinds, "wonderful" lunches every day and night. Private parlors, gentlemanly treatment by the proprietor of the "Woodbine." Geo. Collin, No. 1 Morton street, one door from the great thoroughfare—Kearny street. Do not fail to be at the silver raffle every Saturday evening. 12hh

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

MINS HOST of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

Not Discouraged.

In spite of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D. Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "far Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-x

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentlemen who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 20

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast.
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $35. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $10. Cassemere pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The Susan Galton & Jennie Lee Troupe opened at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Monday evening, in "The Old Story" and "Mons. Chouffi-ri," which bill was repeated on the following evening. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings the performance consisted of "B. B." and the operetta of "Widows Bewitched." The illness of Miss Jennie Lee somewhat interfered with the success of the engagement. It will close to-night. Reed's Panorama has been exhibited during the week at Congregational Lecture Room.

SAN JOSE.—On Wednesday evening last the second performance of the sacred cantata entitled "Esther, the Beautiful Queen," was given at the Opera House, under the direction of Prof. O. W. Parker. Mr. Brohaska has reassumed the management of this house. The Mercury has the following:—It is well known that the San Jose Opera House, as a place of amusement, is deficient in many respects. The stage lacks depth, the scenery needs replenishment, the gallery is poorly constructed and the parquette is inconveniently arranged. We understand that a project is on foot looking to the erection of a commodious and convenient theatre on First street. It is to be constructed of wood, so as to lessen the expense; otherwise it will be perfect in every particular. The projectors are awaiting propositions for a lengthy lease before consummating the same. We were informed, yesterday, that a citizen of this place will, in the erection of the proposed theatre, take a lease for five years and give any bonds required for the positive performance of his part of the contract.

SALINAS.—The Fay Templeton Troupe performed here on Tuesday evening.

LOS ANGELES.—The Fanny Morgan Phelps Troupe are performing at La Merced Theatre to good business. They will be succeeded by the Fay Templeton troupe, so the orange-growers will not lack amusement.

GRASS VALLEY.—A concert will be given by amateurs this evening, at Hamilton Hall, for the benefit of the Benevolent Society.

OROVILLE.—A correspondent writes as follows:

OROVILLE, February 25th, 1874.

FRIEND "FIGARO":—The celebration here on the 23d, in honor of Washington's birthday was a grand success in every particular, but the balloon ascension, which was a failure. The balloon only rose about one hundred feet, returning to the earth and landing Mr. Baisley very unceremoniously on the ground. The Amateurs gave a matinee to a good house, playing the "Rough Diamond" and "Turn Him Out." In the evening they appeared again in "Ten Nights in a Barroom," giving entire satisfaction to all. The house was literally packed with human beings, in fact it was a crusher. The day's festivities wound up with a grand ball. Mr. Badger deserves much credit for his management of the entertainment.

BUTTE.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The people of Virginia City were more highly favored than we were in San Francisco, for Miss Katharine Rogers chose for her first appearance at Piper's Opera House, on Monday last, the play of "Romeo and Juliet." On the following night "Leah" constituted the bill. On Wednesday "The Hunchback" was played, on Thursday "Romeo and Juliet" was repeated, and on Friday the bill consisted of "Hunted Down" and "Nine Points of the Law." These plays were to be followed by "Pygmalion and Galatea," Bouciault's "Led Astray" and "Mimi." The last play we don't envy the Virginia City people, but that they should see Miss Rogers in "Juliet" and enjoy "Led Astray" before we do, is rough on the Metropolis.

SALT LAKE CITY.—On Monday evening, Miss Maggie Moore and J. C. Williamson, who commenced their engagement on the 19th, appeared in a new drama in three acts, written especially for them by A. Maleam, (Amalgam) entitled "Struck Oil." Miss Maggie Moore appeared as Lizzie, and introduced her Dutch specialities, and J. C. Williamson as John Stofe), a shoemaker. The performance concluded with Clay M. Green's farce of "The Chinese Invasion." This bill was played on the following night. On Wednesday "Eileen Oge" was presented, with Miss Maggie Moore as Bridget Maguire, and J. C. Williamson as Brian O'Farrell. Last night Miss Maggie Moore took her benefit, and the play of "A California Girl" was produced for the first time on any stage. The engagement of these talented artistes who have met much success here, terminates to-night. On Monday the favorite comedian John T. Raymond will appear.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-z

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Tom Taylor has a new piece in rehearsal at the Olympic, London. The plot is laid in the time of William III., and is based on the story of Lord Clancarty, as narrated by Lord Macauley, in the last volume of the History of England.

The success of "The Wandering Heir," at the Queen's Theatre, London, has been so great as to induce the management to renew the lease of the house, and Mrs. John Wood will continue to appear in her great creation of Philippa, the heroine of the dramatic story—the part which she originated at Liverpool. "Kate Payton's Lovers," adapted from Mr. Charles Reade's great novel, Griffith Gaunt, is played as a first piece, every evening.

H. J. Byron's new burlesque of "Guy Fawkes," recently produced at the Gaiety, London, deals with the subject from a topical point of view, making the high price of coals the motive of the burlesque, and he has succeeded in giving everybody concerned an excellent part, and the public a laughable piece. Mr. Lionel Brough carries off the honors of the piece as a patent-leather-booted miner; and Mr. J. L. Toole, for a wonder, refrains from gags, the author having given him quite enough good things to say.

Mr. G W. Anson has made another great hit at the Olympic Theatre, London, this time as Toby Twinkle in "All That Glitters."

A new comic opera house, capable of containing nineteen hundred people, was opened at Vienna, January 18th. The opening opera was the "Barber of Seville," with Minnie Hauck as Rosina, and Herr Krl as Count Almaviva.

Madame Parepa-Rosa was buried at Highgate Cemetery, January 26th, in the presence of a very large assemblage of people, including many representatives of the musical profession. Among the most eminent of the attendants were Sir Michael Costa, Mr. Santley, Mr. W. S. Gilbert, and Mr. Randeggar. Among the less eminent was Mr. Nordblom, formerly of San Francisco.

P. T. Barnum has gone to Italy, in search of curiosities for his American Museum.

During the rehearsal or repetition of Ambrose Thomas' "Amletto," at the Grand Opera, Paris, Mr. Faure (Hamlet) lost his mother; M. Mechlaer (first graved ger) lost his father; M. Mermant (second gravedigger) and M. Hayet, who replaced M. Mermant, lost their mothers-in-law; M. Lamarche, secretary, and M. Colenille, regisseur, died. To crown all, the theatre was burnt on the morning of the day which would have witnessed the one hundredth performance of "Amletto." Yet Mr. Ambrose Thomas lives on, and so does his opera.

Opera-going Parisians are looking eagerly forward to the completion of the Grand Opera House, next July. One of the novelties is a vast rotunda in the basement, into which carriages may be driven to deliver and receive their passengers. There is also an immense drawing-room, capable of holding 5,000 persons, from which an elevator runs to the various galleries. The grand staircase is a marvel of colored marble and bronze, with a balustrade of onyx; the walls and ceilings are being painted by the most noted French artists; each box has a private saloon attached; there is a single plate mirror in one of the lobbies, 30 feet by 23, and the ballet green-room, to which all subscribers will have the right of admission, is a wonder in decoration.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Drs. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed new process, by a

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.

"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connect on with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE—There was a capital house last night to witness the performance of "Julius Cæsar." It is confessed that John McCullough in Roman characters has stood without an equal since the death of Forrest, and the public are familiar with his impersonation of Brutus. It was excellent as ever last night. Henry Edwards was very good as Mare Antony, and delivered the oration over the body of Cæsar with telling effect. Barton Hill made a most successful first appearance in the role of Cassius, acting and reading with much skill. His Cassius was not quite so dyspeptic, and unpleasant as the Cassius of Lawrence Barrett, who plays the character so well as to be absolutely without a rival in it, but it was nevertheless a capital representation of that lean and hungry conspirator. In the last act, his acting and elocution, left nothing to be desired. John Wilson as Julius Cæsar played the part well. Walter Leman was a good Casca, Miss Carrie Wyatt as Lucius, read and acted capitally, and won a round of applause for the charming pathos in which she delivered the lament over the body of Brutus in the final scene. Miss Annie Graham acted the role of Portia, with dignity and grace, and Miss Ellie Wilton as Calphurnia, was all that could be desired. "Julius Cæsar" will be played again this evening with John McCullough as Marc Antony, and Henry Edwards as Brutus. At the matinee to-day, "Richelieu" will be played.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—At the matinee to-day, this evening, and to-morrow evening the bright and varied performances, which have delighted so many during the week will be repeated. It comprises Billy Sweatnam, Billy Welch, Con T. Murphy, B. Montague, J. G. Russell, W. F. Baker, G. W. Hurley and others in the first part, George S. Knight in his specialties, Billy Sweatnam, Charles Reed, G. Richards and B. Montague in "Wanted, a Nurse." Welch and Rice in "The O'Shaughnessy Guards" a beautiful quartette by Russell, Baker, Montague and Loomis, and the sketch of "Fifty Winks" in which all the comic talent of the company is included.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—On Sunday evening the grand opera of "Il Trovatore," always a favorite in this city, will be performed with Madame Inez Fabbri as Leonora, Madame Bianchi in her great character of Azucena, Signor Pietro Bacci as Manrico, Signor Orlandini as Count di Luna, Mrs. Junker as Inez, Mons. Charles as Ruiz, and Signor Roncovieri as Ferrando.

THE NEW PALACE AMPHITHEATRE.—There will be a grand matinee performance to-day at this popular place of amusement, and this evening extraordinary attractions will be offered, including a contest for the championship between four athletes who will throw double somersaults. Fred O'Brien and Woods Cooke have hitherto borne off the palm in this specialty, but they are now challenged. This feature with the many other entertaining performances will have the effect of crowding the Amphitheatre. A fine programme will be presented to-morrow night.

OPERA HOUSE—BENEFIT OF THE GIRARDS.—These wonderful artistes, who have afforded the public of San Francisco so much amusement by their extraordinary performances, will take their farewell benefit at the Opera House on Monday next, when they will appear in conjunction with the combined troupes, the California Minstrels and the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee troupe. No one can deny that these popular performers have fairly earned a benefit, and we are sure that they will have a bumper to compensate them for the many bumps they endure to make the public laugh.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The production of "Satan in San Francisco" at this house last night drew a large audience. It will be presented to-night, and to-morrow night in conjunction with a great variety bill in which will appear Miss Alice Ross and Ed. Murray. Cassim and Fritz the famous gymnasts who are in the last week of their California engagement, Moore and Gray the clever song and dance men, Miss Fanny Hooker the popular dansense, Johnny Thers great in acts and darkey song, J. W. Summers, comedian, and many others.

NOTABLE ART SALE.—A very fine collection of paintings recently imported from the East and Europe, will be on view day and evening at H. M. Newhall & Co.'s rooms, until Wednesday morning when they will be offered at auction. In addition, all the fine works recently appertaining to the "Bank Exchange," including Elsset's "Samson and Delilah," will be sold at the same time. There is much speculation as to the price of this grand work, which has been considered one of the art treasures of San Francisco, will bring, and bidding will undoubtedly be lively.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The fine weather we are at present enjoying, has the effect of drawing many visitors to these delightful gardens. The flowers and shrubs look beautiful after the rain, and a thousand and one attractions are to be found here. There will be half-hourly balloon ascensions on Saturday and Sunday.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—A great Saturday night bill will be performed at this popular music hall. A brilliant first part will be given, and this will be followed by a rich olio of acts, songs and dances, in which a host of popular artistes will appear.

CITY GARDENS.—Great attractions will be offered at these beautiful gardens to-morrow: the baby elephant "Princess Mollie," the smallest elephant in the United States, and Prof. Wilder's band of trained animals, who arrived on the last steamer from New York, will be on exhibition. There will also be other performances in the Pavilion. Under the new management the public may be assured that the strictest order will be maintained.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangerberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—On Monday, that excellent actor Barton Hill, who has progressed in public favor since he first made his appearance at the California Theatre, until those whose perceptive faculties are not over brilliant have become aware that he is a representative of the best school of acting, will take his benefit. John McCullough, who thoroughly appreciates the sterling ability with which Mr. Hill has filled the position of acting manager of the California Theatre, will on this occasion appear in "King Lear." There was an immense audience when Mr. McCullough last appeared in this play, and we are sure that the merit of the beneficiary added to the attraction of the entertainment, will secure an overflowing house.

All will be glad to learn that during the coming week "Othello" will be produced at the California Theatre, with John McCullough in his great impersonation of the Moor, and Barton Hill as Iago.

The Susan Galton & Jennie Lee Troupe will return from Sacramento to-morrow, and will appear at the Opera House on Monday evening.

The steamer City of Melbourne, for Australia, which is to leave next Thursday, will take from these shores Madame Anna Bishop, Master John W. McKenzie the young baritone, and Miss May Howard, who is under engagement to Geo. Coppin. Stephen Marsh pianist and harpist, a pupil of Boscha, will arrive from Yokohama on the next steamer. Mr. Marsh, who has for the last ten years been a resident of Melbourne, Australia, intends to settle in San Francisco.

As will be seen by referring to our Pacific Coast news, John T. Raymond has arrived in Salt Lake, on his way to this city, where he will shortly commence an engagement at the California Theatre, and produce the play of "The Wicked World."

Mr. Con T. Murphy, the efficient stage manager of the Opera House, will take his first benefit on Friday evening next. A very strong bill will be presented which, in conjunction with the beneficiary's popularity, will insure an overflowing house for the occasion.

A season of Spanish dramatic performances will soon be inaugurated in this city. Sr. D. Mariano Lugue, who has played with success in Havana, and in the cities of Central America, will arrive by the next Panama steamer, and the Spanish company is being reorganized to support him.

Another "acknown" wrestler—a French McLaughlin, has arrived in town, who stands ready to wrestle any competitor in the Roman or French styles of wrestling, "catch as catch can," fair back throws, first two out of three, for $1,000. This will give Mr. Perrier "the strong man" another chance at his favorite style of wrestling, as the new arrival means business.

The next attraction at the California Theatre will be the celebrated Neilson, who will commence her engagement on Monday March 9th. Miss Neilson, claims the honor of playing Juliet over 700 times in England, and in this country. Her Juliet, Rosalind, and Julia in the "Hunchback" are acknowledged by the Eastern press to be the best on the stage.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, at the Academy of Music, Max Strakosch's Italian Opera troupe, with Nilsson, Capoul and others played "Il Trovatore" on the 25th, "Aida" on the 27th, and will present "Lucia" at to-day's matinee. The general admission is two dollars.....At Niblo's, George Fawcett Rowe's American play entitled "Leatherstocking," founded on Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans," was produced on the 16th, with Miss Fanny Cathcart as the heroine. The New York papers generally pronounce the play dull, but speak well of Miss Cathcart.....At Booth's Theatre, Madame Janauschek appeared on the 23d in "Chesney Wold".....At Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, "Love's Labor Lost" was presented on the 21st, for the first time in New York. This piece has been produced only once before in America.....The Grand Opera House is now a first-class variety theatre, with the Rigl Sisters in ballet, George L. Fox in pantomine. Harry Stanwood in banjo solos, and others in various specialities.....At Wallack's, "Money" was to be followed by "The Rivals," and "The Captain of the Watch." "Woodcock's Little Game" and "The Veteran" were shortly to be produced.....At the Olympic, the Holman Opera troupe and a strong variety company appeared nightly to good houses.....At the Union Square Theatre "Led Astray" still continues to draw large audiences, and will run for a long time.....At Wood's Museum, John A. Stevens appeared in "Daniel Boone" on the 16th .....Frank Hussey, Sam Rickey, George Ketchum and a strong company were at the Metropolitan Theatre.....At Bryant's Opera House, the last nights of "Cinderella" were announced..... At the Theatre Comique, Lisa Weber, George Atkins, Harry Gwynette and Jenny Engle were the star attractions.....At Tony Pastor's, Prof. Davis and his wonderful troupe of trained dogs formed the chief attraction.....Mr. Barnum's new and gigantic hippodrome is being rapidly proceeded with, and will be ready for opening early in April. The building will be as nearly fire-proof as possible, and taught by his previous experience, Mr. Barnum will endeavor to make it the safest place of amusement in the world.....At the Bowery Theatre, "Marked for Life" with S. C. France in the leading character, was revived.....The New York Mercury says: Managerial ambition and pecuniary success have been found incompatible in the recent experience of Owen Marlowe at Hooley's Brooklyn Opera House, consequently that gentleman gracefully retired and the old warhorse of the Brooklyn stage, G. W. H. Griffin resumed the managerial reins on the 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams have returned to their Long Island home. They will play an engagement at Mrs. F. B. Conway's Brooklyn Theatre in the latter part of March or the beginning of April.

Mr. Augustin Daly has purchased the American right in W. S. Gilbert's play of "Charity," which was a failure at the Haymarket Theatre, London.

Mr. H. S. Murdock will star in England this Spring in the play of "Davy Crockett," the right to play which has been given him by Frank Mayo.

Mr. C. W. Clipfico, of Philadelphia, is having a play written for him, by Mr. P. A. Fitzgerald, to be entitled "Edmund Kean, the Actor."

Mrs. F. B. Conway and Mr. Frank Roche have produced "Led Astray," at the Opera House Rochester.

Mr. J. H. Budworth will shortly appear in a romantic drama entitled "Ospa Yeda."

Canada is enjoying Mr. Wybert Reeves' impersonation of Count Fosco.

Miss Clara Morris returns to the Union Square Theatre early in March, to appear in a new piece by the author of "One Hundred Years Old."

The New York correspondent of the Danbury News, speaking of the recent marriage of Lily Vining Davenport, says of her husband: Mr. Thorne is one of the most aristocratic young gentlemen in pedigree, tastes, and associations about town, and is connected with the "Sixteenth-street Thornes," the Garners and other highly respectable families in this city. The bride is a most charming, pretty, and accomplished young lady, beloved and respected by all who know her, and one of the most talented comedy actresses of the day. It was the old, old story. Mr. Thorne loved her from the first, his love was reciprocated and they were married. She has been received at home and all who have met her in society this winter have been delighted with the graceful and unassuming little lady.

Carlotta LeClercq, Walnut, Philadelphia, 16th, two weeks.

The New York Courier of the 13th says: The entertainment that is to be given for the benefit of the poor, at the Grand Opera House, on Thursday, will be a most novel affair. Fox is to appear as Richard III. and Fred Vokes as Richmond. Not this alone—although, in all conscience, this should be a sufficient attraction—but Fox is to act as ticket-seller, Fred Vokes as doorkeeper, Rosina Vokes is to peddle bouquets, and Harkins, Lewis and other well-known actors will serve in the capacity of ushers. Here comes again the oft-repeated statement that, of all men and women, actors and actresses are the most truly charitable.

Frank B. Culley, the well-known agent, is now residing in Detroit.

The Clipper gives Miss May Howard the following first-rate notice. May Howard arrived in this city on the 12th inst., from San Francisco. She has been playing star engagements at the California Theatre, Sacramento, Salt Lake, Virginia City, and all through Colorado Territory. Just before leaving the "Pacific Slope" she made an engagement with George Coppin for Australia for three months. She hurriedly returned to this city to settle up some business, and visited San Francisco on the 14th inst., to set sail for Australia on the 28th. May Howard is young, handsome, and a brilliant actress. She lately returned from a six months' visit to Europe, where she purchased the right of several new plays of celebrated authors.

Ettie Henderson and Doud Byron played the two largest engagements of any stars this season at the Front-street Theatre, Baltimore.

The New York Spirit of the Times says: We are able to announce authoritatively that the rumor relative to the purchase of Booth's Theatre by Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer is true, and that negotiations for the sale of the theatre to these gentlemen are seriously pending, with every prospect of a speedy consummation. It is the intention of Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer to devote this magnificent theatre—should they succeed in making the purchase—to the highest order of legitimate drama, and thus carry out the original intention of Edwin Booth—to make the theatre the true home of art in New York.

The theatrical editor of the St Louis Sunday Times has been to see Salvini in "Othello," and this is the way it struck him: "It was the red-hot passion of the burning South, intensified with the hot blast of a terribly tragic nature; it was the awakened fury of the Hyrcian tiger disturbed at the feast of blood, or the distended tempest of a tropic land, laying all waste before it. The audience were horror-struck."

Old Dan Rice, the famous circus clown, is just now under his evil star. On the 2d he was sold out at Girard, Penn., at Sheriff's sale—horse, foot, and dragoon. His farm, and even his newspaper—the Cosmopolitan, a weekly edited by Chas. A. Stowe—did not escape the greedy maw of his creditors. What will become of the of the old man now is a question of some importance to Dan Rice.

The New York Courier says: Mlle. Aimee, who achieved a great success in Cuba and Mexico, will return to this city early in March, and begin a series of performances of opera bouffe at the Lyceum Theatre. Under the old Bateman regime this became the recognized home of opera bouffe, and there is no doubt that Mlle. Aimee, one of the cleverest of bouffe singers, will restore it to all its former prestige.

E. M. Hooley, of Hooley's Theatre, Chicago, has secured "Led Astray" for one year.

Mr Augustin Daly paid Alex. Dumas 6,500 francs for the right to play "Monsieur Alphonse" in New York.

Edwin Adams, Memphis, 23d, one week.

W. W. Fowler, agent of the Berger Family of Swiss Bellringers, was taken ill of rheumatic fever at Huntsville, Ala., on Feb. 1st, and at latest advices was not improving. Mrs. Berger remained to take care of him.

Ella Wesner opens at the Front-street Theatre, Baltimore, March 9th, for two weeks; Stetson's, Boston, 23d, for two weeks; and then joins Tony Pastor's traveling troupe for the season. In the Fall she goes to London, under engagement to three of the leading music halls.

At Carncross & Dixey's Minstrels, Philadelphia, Frank Moran commenced an engagement on February 9th.

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences.

BARTON HILL,
Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres.

T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signatures of the managers of the respective theatres.

The Bluff Game.

Regular readers of FIGARO will remember that a few weeks ago we drew attention to the fact that the New York Clipper had published the likenesses of Brambilla, Bianchi and others, and represented them as those of New York artistes. The last Clipper received tries to "bluff" us in the following editorial: Our burlesque engraving of opera-singers, which appeared in The Clipper a few weeks ago, is objected to by our little FIGARO contemporary, of San Francisco, who cannot recognize the likenesses of those whose "counterfeit presentment" we laid before our readers. FIGARO is unreasonable, and Jumps at conclusions too readily. Opera singers are never twice alike—they are as changeable as the chameleon; and portraits that to-day in New York might do for Kellogg, Maurel, Campanini, Torriani and Capoul, would answer equally well next year, in San Francisco, for Brambilla, Morelli, Bianchi, Mancusi and Madame Bianchi. Our friend must not be hypercritical—he should make due allowance for change of climate, etc. We "mildly but firmly" insist that as a burlesque our picture was all it was represented to be, and we have no hesitation in declaring that a man who would seek to rob our operatic characters of their identity is a translucent ichneumon, and of no earthly use.

Rather Rough.

The Oakland Tribune says:

It is said the women of San Francisco intend to organize a raid upon the saloons of that city in imitation of their Ohio sisters. They will find a fine field for operations; but we fear they will not be as successful as the eastern women in their efforts to discourage the liquor traffic.

We call that pretty rough talk for a paper that has seven advertisements of saloons in its columns which the editor takes out "in trade."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T,'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

MINE HOST of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, has had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

MISERABLE SACRAMENTO.

The Courrier de San Francisco of Sunday, published a letter from a Sacramento correspondent, of which we present the following translation:

"Do you know Sacramento. The dullest city in California. The air is charged with ennui, the trees seem to yawn with weariness, the houses now and then change their positions to get a change of air, and as to the inhabitants, oh, the inhabitants they pass their time in groaning and sighing in every tone of the gamut. Now it is too hot, now it is too cold; the city is too crowded, the city is empty—it is one continual moan. You may imagine, perhaps, that in this sad state of things the inhabitants would hail with rapture anything that would have the effect of rousing them from their torpid condition. Oh! yes, it distresses them terribly. Here comes a troupe composed of such excellent artistes as those forming the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe; charming actresses, lively pieces, too lively and certainly too good, and the people remain at home to gape and snore by their firesides. Economical people, these Sacramentans. But let a wretched, one-horse circus arrive and give performances in a ring the size of a soup-plate, and every one turns out to see it, men, women and children rush to the circus and eat a meal a day less to save money to pay for admission. Oh! Sacramento! May you never enjoy any better amusement than that afforded by muddle-headed clowns and limping horses! That is the only way to punish you, and it is a punishment which you have proved you justly merit."

We think we shall have to turn our attention to Sacramento a little. We woke San Jose up into an appreciation of dramatic performances, and then the theatrical manager made a mess of it and gave the people an excuse to stay away from the theatre for months to come. If the members of the Legislature could not appreciate the performance given by the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe, the sooner that body adjourns and leaves Sacramento to enjoy its dullness, the better we shall be pleased.

The Ruling Passion.

Johnny Matthews, "the oldest Utica fireman, died recently. At his request they put his fireman's shirt on, "for," said he, "when the foreman above calls through His trumpet for the boys, old Johnny wants to be on hand with his red shirt and fire hat."

We cannot always sometimes tell, perhaps poor Johnny's gone to some place where praticing his profession would be peremptorily forbidden.

Queer.

The Portland Oregonian says:

The fidelity of the faithful was manifested by the large concourse that thronged the Cathedral on Ash Wednesday.

We suppose that the faithlessness of the faithless was demonstrated by those who stayed away, and the infidelity of the infidels by those who didn't fast.

Well! Well!!

We received the other day from some one or other, a copy of the Patriot, a paper which, it seems, is still published in San Jose. We thought it was dead, but it turns out to be alive. We have read it and cannot discover any reason why it should be.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

J. FIGEL, at 211 Montgomery street, has an immense stock of Men's and Boy's ready-made suits, and a full line of Furnishing Goods which he will offer at exceedingly low terms for cash.

A Really Choice Cigar

Mistaken Identity.

The Sacramento Bee is responsible for the following: The very Reverend Bishop Peck, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America, has just been the victim of a curious case of mistaken identity. He had been announced to preach last Sunday in one of the largest of the valley cities. He was in the city; but, because of a temporary illness, was unable to keep the engagement, and by request of the citizens the pulpit was gladly accorded to Dr. Haskell, who delivered therefrom one of his tornadoes of eloquence against liquor drinking. But the announcement of the Bishop's illness and of the taking of his place by the Dr. had been short, and the enormous audience got things considerably mixed. The next day, at the hotel dinner table, the Bishop, a venerable looking man of about three hundred pounds avoirdupois, sat upon one side, and nearly opposite to him sat the trim-built lecturer, and immediately at the latter's right hand two business men of the city. Both of the business men had gone late to the lecture and neither had got in. That one of them who sat farthest from the Dr. had previously had the Bishop pointed out to him as the one who was to preach, and not having heard of the substitution of speakers, he remarked in an audible whisper to his companion, at the same time, by a slight motion, indicating the corpulent Bishop opposite, "That is the man that made the great temperance speech last night of which everybody is to-day talking." "What," asked the one nearest the Dr., and who had heard it was Haskell who had lectured, "Is that Dock Haskell? By George! I knew him years ago when he was the crack clown of Dan Rice's circus, and there was ne'er a man in the company could turn as clean a string of somersaults as he could. He has changed wonderfully. I would like to see him turn a somersault now." The idea of the venerable Bishop turning somersaults, or having ever done so, appeared so unique to the Dr. that he took the first opportunity of telling the conversation to the Bishop, and the latter laughed over the idea even more immoderately than the lecturer.

Rough on the Doctors.

They tell a queer story about the doctors in a certain Texas town, who were all away last summer to attend a medical convention. They were absent about two months, and, on their return, found that all their patients had recovered, the drug stores had closed, the nurses had opened dancing schools, the cemetery was cut up into building lots, the undertakers had gone into making fiddles, and the hearse had been painted and sold for a circus wagon.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Drs. Smith and Trafford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The basis of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 653 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-z

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

To-night, the combined companies, the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe, and Maguire's California Minstrels will appear in a grand entertainment for the benefit of the wonderful Girards, who will present their fantastic divertissement entitled "Leg Mania." Welch and Rice will appear in "Fat and Thin," George S. Knight in new Dutch specialties, and Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher and John Howson, in the ever-popular operetta of "Widows Bewitched." The beneficiaries are so popular with the public, and the attractions are so great that there cannot fail to be an overflowing house on this occasion.

California Theatre.

To-night, the popular acting manager of the California Theatre, Barton Hill, will take his benefit, and an extraordinarily attractive bill will be presented. "King Lear" will be performed with John McCullough, (who will appear during this week only) as the unfortunate King of Britain, and the beneficiary as Edgar. Miss Annie Graham will appear as Cordelia, Miss Ellie Wilton as Goneril, Henry Edwards as Earl of Kent, E. J. Buckley as Duke of Cornwall, Walter M. Leman as Earl of Gloster, and John Wilson as Edmund. The rest of this very strong cast will be found on our first page. After the play, Frank Gilder the favorite pianist, will perform his piano forte transcription "Il Trovatore," and the evening's entertainment will conclude with the grand overture to "Semiramis" by the orchestra. There should be an audience to-night limited only by the capacity of the theatre, and we doubt not there will be.

California Theatre—Opera Night.

"Il Trovatore" was admirably performed last night. Madame Inez Fabbri sang and acted the role of Leonora charmingly, Signor Pietro Bacci was excellent as Manrico, and Madame Bianchi roused the audience to positive enthusiasm by her wonderfully vivid realization of the character of Azucena. Signor Orlandini as Count di Luna, Mrs. Junker, as Ines Mons. Charles as Ruiz, and A. Bonocvieri as Ferrando, performed their respective roles with much ability, and many of the choruses were better rendered than usual. Manager Schutz will be the recipient of a benefit next Sunday evening, when Donizetti's opera of "Belisario" will be produced.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

If the fine weather continues is certain that John Wilson will not remain very long in San Francisco, but will start on his campaign through the interior. Therefore the public should enjoy the entertainment given nightly at the Palace Amphitheatre while they have the opportunity of doing so. A great bill will be presented this evening. All the feats to be performed by the bright stars of the arena engaged at this house are specified on our first page, and give promise of an entertainment which cannot fail to please both young and old.

NOTABLE ART SALE.—A very fine collection of paintings recently imported from the East and Europe, will be on view day and evening at H. M. Newhall & Co.'s rooms, until Wednesday morning, when they will be offered at auction. In addition, all the fine works recently appertaining to the "Bank Exchange," including Jacob's "Samson and Delilah," will be sold at the same time. There is much speculation as to the price of this grand work, which has been considered one of the art treasures of San Francisco, will bring, and bidding will undoubtedly be lively.

Bella Union Theatre.

The exciting play of "Satan in San Francisco," in which Miss Jennie Johnson appears in four characters, has made a hit at this house. Ed. Murray appears nightly in his budget of fun, Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic gems, Miss Fanny Hooker in fancy dances, Miss Susie Robinson in songs and dances, and others in a great variety of performances.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Hard Cheek," "The Wigmakers," "Funny Sam," and "The Siamese Twins" are among the acts to be presented at this house to-night. Mortimore will appear in sketches, Lizzie Harmon in comic songs, Hughey Morton in local hits, and others in various specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

There were no ascensions here Sunday: The storm on Saturday night drove the balloon against a post, stove a hole in it and let the gas escape. It will be repaired, and will make half-hourly ascensions on Saturday and Sunday next, weather permitting.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

City Gardens.

The performances were postponed here yesterday on account of the bad weather; but "Princess Mollie," who is not a baby elephant, but a great curiosity, a dwarf elephant, only 40 inches high, will appear on Saturday and Sunday next.

Notes.

Cassim and Fritz, the young gymnasts who have been performing at the Bella Union for some time back, will leave for St. Louis to-morrow.

They are the two best and most versatile comic and specialty gymnasts that ever appeared in this city, and are sure to become favorites at the East.

They talk of building another theatre in San Jose. The Mercury says Brohaska's Opera House isn't good enough for them. O'ye people of modern Athens take FIGARO'S advice, and remain happy—don't you do it!

Con T. Murphy has got out a big bill for his benefit on Friday night, the performance will consist of the comic opera of "Cox and Box" in which Miss Susan Galton and Mr. Alfred Kelleher will appear, Mr. Lewis Morrison in a recitation of Mr. Murphy's own production, Billy Manning and the Minstrels. Con will have a bumper.

THE WIFE'S LAMENT.

He thinks I am silly for wanting a kiss
When he leaves me at morning to go to the store;
That the notion is weak in a gay world like this.
And the process to him is a "hindering bore."

So I watch him go humming away down the street,
And a tear fills my eye, though 'tis hard to confess;
And I can not but think how delightful and sweet
Would the whole day have been with that little caress.

I go to my work; it seems heavy and long—
When that one little kiss would have made it so light;
And I try to grow lively by singing a song,
But it dies in a sigh for that one little slight.

I'll love him, I'll cling to him unto the end,
And make him as happy as love has the power,
And who knows but an eye-glass some angel will send
To show how I long for one lover-like hour?

Liberal Old Cabbage Head!

"I can't jine the grange," said an Oregon farmer. "I am sorry," was the reply; "we had counted on you." "No, I can't jine," said the farmer, "because they've let the women in, and they'll work round so as to get to vote d'reo'ly, and I won't have nuthin to do with it. The women is gettin above their privileges, any way. They don't stay at home enough now, as St. Paul commanded, and I tell you I won't have nuthin to do with granges."

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3-3

M. FREUND, at 36 Second St., has just received 5,000 pieces of Embroidered Edging and Insertings, which he offers at 7 cents a yard and upwards. 3-3

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronounciable name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2o

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11r

American Prima Donne Abroad.

Mrs. Laura Curtis Bullard gives in the Golden Age a pleasant account of Miss Jennie Van Zandt's operatic success abroad. She first sang in Denmark and Poland, and was extremely popular in both countries. Then she sang at the famous La Scala in Milan for one hundred and sixty nights, leaving it with such a wide European reputation that she was engaged straightway at Covent Garden, with Adelina Patti, Fame, etc. There she made a great hit as Marguerite in "Faust;" and so popular was she that on the home-coming of the Duke of Edinburgh from Australia, when England welcomed the return of that royal prodigal son by a monster concert at the Crystal Palace, Adelina Patti and she were the only singers deemed worthy of the occasion. The two prima donnas sung in the presence of a vast audience of 27,000 gathered in the central transcept of that giant palace of glass, and as Mrs. Van Zandt came off the stage amid the plaudits of the multitude she was caught in the arms of that other American prima donna, Patti, who, with a freedom from jealousy characteristic of a truly great artist, embraced and congratulated her, saying, "You little darling! How like an angel you sing!"

Keeping House.

A young man who was married in Detroit six months ago, has joined in the discussion of the question of family economy, but his little contribution is far from satisfactory: "I do not," he says, "understand how it is. I used to figure it out, as I sat with my arm around her waist on Sunday nights, and all it would then cost to live would be $2 75 a week, and now I spend $15 and am hungry half the time." Brute!

Law to Romance.

An unromantic Iowa lover, whose affianced was locked up by her obdurate father, instead of resorting to a rope ladder and a midnight elopement, sued out a matter-of-fact writ of habeas corpus, and married her according to law.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410. below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 100½ Market street. 12-1

"FIGARO."

THE JOURNAL OF AMUSEMENTS.

TUESDAY..... .....MARCH 3, 1874

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences. BARTON HILL,

Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres. T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements duly attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Standard Writers.

Hector A. Stuart, who, all must confess, writes very good rhyme, whatever difference of opinion there may be about his poetry, has nearly three columns of verses in last Sunday's Golden Era, entitled "Quill Drivers, a poem in which the standard writers of the Metropolis are portrayed in an impartial manner." The list comprises such world-renowned litterateurs as Gale, Schuck, Nealey, Addie, Higgins, Howe and Murphy. Some of lesser note, such as Bret Harte, Charles Warren Stoddard, Mark Twain and Ina Coolbrith are also immortalized in Stuart's "pome." We present the following sample brick:

A female scribe, half mad on writing,
Weak letters from abroad inditing;
Oh, Death! can'st thou not send her kiting?

OLIVE HARPER.

The Blundering "Bulletin."

The Bulletin yesterday, in its notice of the performance to be given in the evening at the Opera House, had no mention of the appearance of the Girards, and wound up by saying: "To-morrow night benefit of the Girard Brothers." The benefit took place last night, as all readers of FIGARO are aware.

Glad You Think So.

The St. Louis Globe says:

Josh Billings is going to California to lecture. Most anybody can lecture in California.

We don't think many lecturers have become wealthy here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here!
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

We Can't Believe It.

An exchange tells the following improbable story:

The Young Men's Christian Association of Baltimore had a special meeting on the evening of February 5th, to decide whether money donated by Colonel Sinn, a well known gambler, should be returned to him. One member said the money came accompanied by the tears of women who were worse than widows, and of children who were worse than orphans. Another thought that taking money from gamblers was bringing them a step nearer Christ! Mr. J. D. Johnson argued that gambling was not forbidden in the Bible! The Association voted, after a lengthy discussion, to return the money to Sinn.

This is evidently a made-up yarn. "Col. Sinn" is our old friend Ah Sinn, with a commission in the army. As to the Y. M. C. A. of Baltimore, or any other city, returning money they once get into their clutches, the idea is too preposterous. The Christian young man who thought that "taking money from gamblers was bringing them a step nearer Christ," had probably at one period of his existence tried to break a faro bank, with this holy idea in his head.

Worse Still.

An exchange tells a story of a German nobleman who led a foolish and dissipated life, and gambled, drank, and swore, being troubled by a dream. He saw a figure holding a dial, the hands pointing to IV. He thought it meant he was to die in four days, so he sent for a priest, confessed his sins and received absolution. He didn't die in four days, nor in four weeks, nor in four months, but at the end of four years he was elected Emperor of Germany. This reminds us of a similiar dream a friend of ours had. He saw the clock in his dream with the hands pointing to four, and he didn't reform his life, and he didn't send for a priest, and he didn't die in four days, or weeks, or months, but at the end of four years he was elected to Congress, and is now on the road to ruin.

Enterprise.

There was a picnic excursion and dog-fight on Sunday, and the Call was the only paper that had the enterprise to send a reporter and publish an account of the conflict. The Call reporter says: The crowd comprised some of the most forbidding-looking countenances that the metropolis harbors, rounders from Bull Run, hoodlums from the Valley, and bruisers from the Barbary Coast. It was just such a crowd as might be expected to congregate at a prize fight or a "chicken soiree."

The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.

The latest specimen of the artful dodger is said to be a Brooklyn married man, who points with pride to the shattered wall opposite his seat at the breakfast table, where the tea-cups, salt-cellars, and slop-bowls that she heaved at him struck.

A Persistent Poetess.

For pure grit and long continued patience you want to go to Toledo. A young lady in that town has sent 116 pieces of poetry to a newspaper, and though all have been rejected, she is struggling with another.

Singing by Rule.

A writer in the New England Chronicle, in 1723, thus observes: "Truly I have a great jealousy that if we once begin to sing by rule, the next thing will be to pray by rule; and then comes Popery."

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

A Wife's Commandments.

1. I am thy wife. Thou shall have no other woman but me, whom thou didst promise to protect and nourish; for I, even I, look after thy hose, and thy buttons, and thy numberless shortcomings.

2. Thou shalt have no doings with strange women, and thou shalt refrain from following after them; for I thy wife am a watchful wife, and will appeal to the divorce court to redress thy iniquities.

3. Thou shall clothe thy wife suitably and elegantly, that thy well-doing be exalted, and she be not ashamed. And thou shalt not find fault with her, or complain of her extravagance to thy relations or friends, lest they tell her, and thy marital privileges be mightily curtailed.

4. Remember the seventh day, that thou hast a home and a wife, and keep thou with them. Six days shalt thou labor in thine office, and the seventh thou shalt stay with the wife thou hast taken. There shall be no loafing on street corners, no blacking of boots in the office, nor walking, or riding out alone, on that day.

5. Honor thy mother-in-law, and thy wife's father. They nourished thy better-half in her infancy, therefore see to it, that thou callest them not "meddlesome old hunks."

6. Thou shalt love the children the Lord thy God giveth thee. Thou shalt clothe them in seemly apparel, and help thy wife care for them, for they are thine as well as hers. Thou shalt be cleanly in thine own habits, and shalt bathe thy person and brush thy clothes, lest thou offend thy wife, before whom dirt is an abomination.

7. Thou shalt not kiss the maid-servant who abideth in thine house, nor wink at her, nor be unduly solicitous about her welfare, and shalt not flatter, or give gifts, or whisper love to any but thy wife, who esteemest fidelity a husband's chiefest virtue.

8. Thou shalt not ask thy wife for money to buy thy tobacco and cigars, and present to her thy wine bills or billiard scores for settlement. It is thy duty to replenish her purse, and provide for the house, and the larder, and her duty to see that there is no waste therein.

9. Thou shalt speak the truth to thy wife at all times. Thou shalt not dissemble or equivocate when she findeth fair women in company with thee, nor when thou goest alone on an excursion, or visitest the house of Belial shalt thou pretend that business called thee.

10. Thou shalt not speak of thy neighbor's wife or her children, or anything she doeth, to hold them up as examples to thine own wife, lest she hate them, and strife be engendered, to the severe depletion of thy pocket-book, and the detriment of thy peace and good report, in the land where thou sojournest.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Drs. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-l

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

A very large and fashionable audience assembled at this theatre last night to do honor to Barton Hill, the acting manager, who on this occasion took his benefit, and to enjoy the performance of "King Lear." John McCullough presented a very even and conscientious rendition of the title role, and in the latter scenes of the play exhibited much power. His acting in the mad scene with Edgar, disguised as Poor Tom, was superb. The audience showed their appreciation of Mr. McCullough's acting by calling him before the curtain at the end of the first, second, third and fourth acts. Barton Hill played the character of Edgar far better than any other actor who has assumed it on the California stage. It is a part with which he is thoroughly familiar, having frequently played it with Edwin Forrest. His costumes were correct, his elocution was admirable, and his attitudes were graceful and striking. Mr. Hill was twice called before the curtain, and was presented with a beautiful floral basket. At the conclusion of the play he made a little speech, in which he thanked the public for their attendance, John McCullough for appearing, and Frank Gilder for volunteering a piano forte solo. Miss Annie Graham played the part of Cordelia with characteristic vigor, Miss Ellie Wilton succeeded wonderfully in impersonating the stony-hearted Goneril, and Miss Nellie Cummins was very good as Regan. With the excellence of Henry Edwards' acting in the character of the bluff, outspoken Earl of Kent, the public are well acquainted. It was lacking in nothing last night. John Wilson in Edmund, had a part which is plain villiany from beginning to end, and was very successful in it. J. N. Long, in the part of Oswald, had a chance to distinguish himself, and fully availed himself of it. He played it very well, and did not show any nervousness. Walter M. Leman was rather "pressby," as Gloster. The play, as a whole, was excellently acted, and should draw another large house to-night. Frank Gilder won much applause and a recall for his performance of an original piano forte transcription of "Il Trovatore," and the grand overture to "Semiramis," well performed by the orchestra, terminated the evening's entertainment. "King Lear" will be performed once more to-night. To-morrow night, John McCullough will appear in his really grand impersonation of Othello, in which we cannot believe he can be equalled by any actor, with the sole exception of Salvini. The popular manager will take his benefit, and make his last appearance but one on Friday evening, when "Virginius" will be performed.

Opera House.

Not only was every available inch of room occupied last night, when the wonderful Girards took their farewell benefit, but money was turned away from the door. Such an audience was a deserved tribute to the popularity of these admirable artistes, and to the immense attraction of the combined troupes, the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee Troupe and Maguire's California Minstrels. The combination will appear again this evening, in a great bill, comprising a capital first part, new Dutch fannisms by George S. Knight, the laughable burlesque of "Big-mak-lion and Gal-ate-her," Welch and Rice in "Fat and Thin," and Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher and John Howson in the delicious operetta of "Widows Bewitched." Such a bill must please all tastes, and should crowd the Opera House every night this week.

The Palace Amphitheatre.

Among the novelties at this ne plus ultra of horse opera houses are the lilliputian clowns, the two French gladiators, a whole troupe of tumblers, and the extraordinary feats of the beautiful spotted horse. Omar Kingsley, the talented ring-master and trainer, makes his pupils accomplish wonders, and all are delighted with the sagacity displayed by the handsome and intelligent animals. To-morrow there will be a grand matinee performance.

NOTABLE ART SALE.—A very fine collection of paintings recently imported from the East and Europe, will be on view day and evening at H. M. Newhall & Co.'s rooms, until Wednesday morning, when they will be offered at auction. In addition, all the fine works recently appertaining to the "Bank Exchange," including Stocb's "Samson and Delilah," will be sold at the same time. There is much speculation as to the price of this grand work, which has been considered one of the art treasures of San Francisco, will bring, and bidding will undoubtedly be lively.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Fanny Hooker in dances, Ed Murray in his Budget of Fun, Miss Maggie Kelly in comic songs, Johnny Ewers in "Couldn't Stay Away," Miss Alice Ross and Ed Murray in "Barney's Return," Miss Jennie Johnson, J. W. Summers, John Woodard and others in "Satan in San Francisco," and others in songs, acts, and dances will make up a great entertainment for those who visit this house to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

Hughey Morton and W. Parks in "Handy Andy," Parks, Foster, and Morton in "Wig Makers," Mlle. Blanche and Miss Fanny Webster in comic songs, Miss Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, and many others in favorite specialties will appear to-night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The seal pond, the aquarium, the art gallery, the skating pavilion, the menagerie, and thousands of attractions make these gardens a popular place of resort. On Saturday and Sunday next the ascensions by the captive balloon will be resumed.

City Gardens.

The performances were postponed here yesterday on account of the bad weather; but "Princess Nadia," who is not a baby elephant, but a great curiosity, a dwarf elephant, only 40 inches high, will appear on Saturday and Sunday next.

Glorious!

FEATHERS Cleaned, Curled and Dyed, at

THE QUIET LIFE.

My life is with the dead; the dying years
Hold naught for me of wonder, joy, or woe;
Their darts are vain to reach me in the glow
Of long-dead summers; vain, where fevered fears
And stricken hopes are silent; where the tears
And thorn-crowned face of sorrow do but show
A surer kingship; and the sweet full flow
Of godlike speech is heard, as when one hears

The brown bird in the pauses of the night
Thrill the ecstatic stillness—and the bird
We love for sheer soul's sake. So in the light
Of those still days soul speaks to soul; half heard
Dante and Homer through the dim land fare,
Or Shakespeare's voice breaks on the quiet air.

Requisites for the Stage.

Commenting upon the death of Miss Laura Alexander, late of Wallack's, the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle (in which city she made her debut) indulges in the following sensible remarks: "The profession of an actor is the most difficult in the world for man or woman. A woman especially must bring to it everything in the way of intellectual development and physical beauty. To succeed, she must have a fine mind, excellent memory, quick perception, good voice, handsome face, graceful manners. These are the prime requisites. She must be willing to commence at the bottom and gradually work her way up. She must take unpalatable criticism without a murmur. She must face a thousand temptations which would never assail a woman in any other sphere of life. And then, after all her struggles and disappointments, the chances are a thousand to one that she fails. Those who think that because they read with spirit and just emphasis, because they have displayed a taste for acting in some amateur entertainments at home, they were destined for the stage, will find themselves wofully mistaken. When they go upon it they choose at once the hardest and most unremunerative of lots. If they succeed it is by a miracle. If they fail their whole life is a failure, and they are rarely able to turn into other fields, in which, if sought at first, they would have assuredly attained success."

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter beiter be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-x

Falsehoods.

If persons could only stop telling falsehoods! It seems a very little thing to tell a "bit of a fib;" but were people truthful, all truth in speech and action, the millenium would be here. We should then know our friends as we can never know them now. Women would not kiss other women with lips through which words of slander have just dropped. Men would not vow to "love forever," when they only mean, "I will amuse myself for a little while." People would not utter sentiments they do not feel, nor repeat sectarian or party cant, because it sounds well and is applauded. Dishonesty would be at an end. All the wheels of the world would be greased. Everything would go smoothly. Not that it will ever be done. Each one will wait for the other to stop lying first, because a truthful person seems so defenseless in a world of falsehood.

Why He Abandoned His Wife.

Ed. McCaffrey, about twenty-five years of age, was arraigned before Justice Walsh in Brooklyn, on charge of abandoning his wife, Margaret McCaffrey, of 358 Gold street. "Edward, are you guilty of this charge?" "I am." "Why did you abandon your wife?" "I married her last summer, your Honor, when I was intoxicated." "That don't excuse you. Do you deny the charge?" "No, sir. I admit it. I cannot live with this woman. She has a son fifteen years old, and he and the old woman wallop me, and have forced me to leave the house." "Under these circumstances," said the Judge, "I will enter a plea of not guilty, and hold you in $300 bonds."

A Member of the Bar.

An ex-judge of Maine, who has again taken up the practice of the law, has a habit of taking his spectacles from his nose and twirling them in his hand. One day last week, while arguing a case, he became so deeply absorbed in the point he was making, that, instead of taking his spectacles, he took a large corkscrew from his pocket and flourished it about for some time to the infinite amusement of those who were present.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET;
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 518 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

TO THE PUBLIC.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" and the CALIFORNIA THEATRE PROGRAMME are the only programmes used in this Theatre, and that there is no intention of allowing any other programme to be circulated among its audiences.

BARTON HILL,
Acting Manager California Theatre.

February 18th, 1874.

I hereby certify that "FIGARO" has been the only programme used in my theatres for years, and that I have no intention of permitting any other publication to be circulated in either the Opera House or Alhambra Theatres.

T. MAGUIRE.

February 18th, 1874.

In consequence of certain parties annoying the business men of this city by soliciting advertisements for a sheet which they represent as about to be used as a programme in the above-named theatres, we publish the above statements daily attested by the signature of the managers of the respective theatres.

Late News.

For the latest news commend us to the Day's Doings of New York. In the issue of January 31, 1874, we find the following:

In San Francisco, recently, Miss Rosa Celeste, attempted to wheel a man named Kennovan on a tight-rope stretched from a high platform to the top of a pavilion. Kennovan was drunk, having screwed up his courage with liquor, and upset the wheelbarrow by moving. He was severely hurt, but Celeste, by striking the ground with her pole first, escaped with only a broken shoulder.

What the Day's Doings idea on the significance of the word "recently" is, we don't know, but we do know that the accident which it chronicles and makes the subject of an illustration, happened nearly eight years ago!

A Sensible Delay.

An exchange says:

There is a concerted plan on the part of the women of Sacramento to inaugurate the present fashionable war against the liquor traffic. Operations will not be commenced until after the adjournment of the Legislature.

Perhaps this delay until the Legislature is adjourned is a sensible one. If the women tried anything of the kind while it was still in session, as likely as not some one would introduce, and get passed a special act for the protection of saloon keepers.

Encouraging.

The great painting of "Samson and Delilah," which was so long in the Bank Exchange, brought $10,250 at the auction sale this morning. Mr. Duncan was the purchaser for Milton S Latham.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T,'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapin!!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "much nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A CRITIC CRITICISED.

DEAR "FIGARO":—The Call critic objects to Mr. McCullough in several characters because of the untractableness of his voice. The gentleman, in common with all, is entitled to his opinion. As a critic, however, he is expected to furnish intelligent reasons for his opinion, and sustain it by logical illustration. To show, for amusement, how inconsistent the Call critic is, and how he is hoisted by his own petard, the dogmatic judgment that Spartacus is the best effort Mr. McCullough has made, will serve tolerably well on this occasion. The effort may have been the best, but it certainly ought to have been the worst, according to this critic's catechism—untractableness of voice. Spartacus exerts a tremendous strain upon the organs of speech, depending for a successful representation upon what may be termed a vocal cannonade, yet we are told that Mr. McCullough was better in it than in Brutus, and the latter character, excepting one or two speeches, is level reading, consequently tends to repress that untractableness of voice to which the critic so pointedly objects.

Granted, that Mr. McCullough's voice by nature is peculiar, should the fact prevent recognition of the art he shows in using it? Is it often found that his emphasis is wrong, his inflections false or that he makes an inordinate use of the circumflex, like Mr. Barrett, for instance? Does the Call critic know anything about elocution? If untractableness or—what the critic really means to say—harshness of voice, is the greatest fault that can be charged against Mr. McCullough, then it is indeed fortunate for John Kemble and Edmund Kean that they are dead, or else in spite of their elocutionary powers, the now silenced asthmatic voice of the one and the hoarse voice of the other would have damned them in this critic's eyes—or ears, to speak precisely. In conclusion, it is deferentially repeated, the gentleman is entitled to his opinion, but there are opinions and opinions!

FREE LANCE.

An Important Discovery.

We have long been of the opinion that the rats of San Francisco should be utilized. New York is ahead of us in making the discovery that these little animals are delicious eating when nicely cooked. A correspondent of the Sun says:

"I would not ask a better dinner than two or three rats, well-cooked, for a finer dish was never set before a man. For making soup, rats are far superior to young chickens. It may surprise many to know that there is at present a restaurant in the vicinity of Wall street where they substitute rats altogether in place of chickens to make soup. This saloon has the name of giving the best bowl of soup in the city. It is patronized by the bankers down town, who think they have a hack for making good soup which no other restaurant in the city has. I hope that you will help to bring this article of food before the public in your valuable paper."

We have not the slightest doubt that "mice and rats and such small deer" would make excellent food for people in better circumstances than "Poor Tom."

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1y

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor O. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed new process, by a at SNOW'S, 25 Post street. 6s

In Desperate Straits.

The Chronicle, which used to be so "spicy," is now as tame and stupid a paper as was ever published. Its "personal department" which used to be such interesting reading when it contained notices like this:

BULLY BOY WITH THE GLASS EYE.—The old man will be out to-night. Call.

STOCKTON STREET.

Is now filled up with advertisements of Manning's famous pan roast, and other innocent and unexciting business notices. The Chronicle cannot, however, though now-a-days, it never by any chance publishes anything sensational, get over its old habit of sticking in sensational headings. In Monday's issue the following innocuous letter, and equally harmless answer was published:

SAN FRANCISCO, February 26, 1874.

To the Editor of the Chronicle—SIR: Please inform us through your paper, of the receipt for making French gloss, used in laundries, and oblige A SUBSCRIBER.

[Answer: A piece of spermaceti the size of a hickory nut, or a piece of mutton tallow, mixed with the starch, is what the laundries use.]

No harm in this. Rather tame and uninteresting, save to those who have their shirts washed at home. The Chronicle people evidently appreciated this, so, to call attention to it, and warm it up a little they headed it "The Laundry Fiend." We suppose the Chronicle has a lot of Fiends and Monsters and demons stereotyped, and can't get out of the habit of using them. This, which we have commented on, is positively the only thing in Monday's Chronicle which even, in the slightest degree, savours of "sensation."

Pleasing Recognition.

In this selfish age it is refreshing to notice the bestowal of gifts which are the tokens of loving hearts. There is Patti, who recently received in Russia from her admirers a canary bird of solid gold, with pearl bill and diamond eyes. It was life size. And also comes the able editor of the San Antonia Herald, to acknowledge the receipt of two fresh and beautiful Indian scalps.

The Best Way.

It conduces much to our content if we pass by those things which happen to our trouble and consider what is pleasing and prosperous, that by the representation of the better the worse may be blotted out.

Some people are positive just in proportion to their ignorance.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the French capital. Had not the matter better be clove digated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

Drs. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

For Photo-crayons.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1s

REMOVAL.—Madame Clara Antonia, the Clairvoyant Physician and Independent Trance Medium, 20 Geary street, near Kearny. Consultations in English, French and Germain. 1d

Dr. Aborn.

Artist. Catarrh, throat and lung physician,

Thoughts at Thirty.

Under the above heading F. W. A., a correspondent of the New York Mercury, expresses himself as follows:

At fifteen years I thought a man of twenty was rather advanced in years. At twenty-five I looked on eighteen as a boy. To-day, it seems to me that forty is not so very old.

I have learned that the best friend of man—is a woman.

To satisfy yourself of the friendship of a man, put it to the test; to safely count on the love of a woman, do not test it.

I have never been able to decide which of two lovers is the happiest—the one who deceives or the one who is deceived. It would never do to be both.

As we grow old the more young girls attract us. At eighteen all ages please us; at twenty-four we are often in love with a woman of thirty-six; but at thirty we prefer them of twenty-three or four. Probably as we get gray we shall love only the young girls.

Formerly I was affected by a pathetic tragedy or by certain singing. Age has come. I weep no longer, but I amuse myself less.

In friendship, I like resemblances—in love, contrasts.

When we fall in love we believe we shall never fall out. When we have fallen out we wonder how we can fall in.

As life advances, we acquire experience but we lose illusions. Experience renders us mistrustful—illusions make us happy. I fear we lose more than we gain.

When I recall my follies of eighteen years, for objects which deserved them so little—I am sometimes regretful. When I think of the pleasure I found in committing them, I wish I was as foolish again, so that I might recommence them.

I understand how one can become tired of balls and society, I cannot comprehend how we can ever lose the taste for love, music and reading.

At the age of twenty, I thought gray hairs made a person appear quite old. I don't think so now—I don't see that it changes the physiognomy—for several months past. I have found several.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

Extraordinary attractions are presented at this popular theatre, the combined companies, the Susan Galton and Jennie Lee troupe and Maguire's California Minstrels appearing every evening in a great bill. The extravaganza of "Big-Male-Lies and Gal-at-ant-ee" is one of the funniest things ever put upon the stage, and caused roars of laughter last night. The operetta of "Widows Bewitched" is as popular as ever, and Billy Sweetman, Gen. T. Murphy, Welch and Rice George S. Knight and others cause much amusement.

California Theatre.

"King Lear" was repeated last night, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. To-night "Othello" will be presented with John McCullough as the Moor, Barton Hill as Iago, and a generally strong cast, which is sufficient to fill our first page. As this is the only occasion on which Mr McCullough will appear in a character which is pronounced by competent judges one in which he has no rival save the Italian Salvini, who by the by, plays it very much as Mr. McCullough does, there will certainly be a crowded house. To-morrow night, by very general request, "Richelieu" will be repeated, and on Friday night John McCullough will take his benefit and appear in "Virginius."

The Palace Amphitheatre.

This handsome and commodious place of amusement continues as popular as ever. The wonderful feats of strength by Mons Perrier the French Hercules, are much admired, all are delighted with the intelligence of the trained horses President and Napoleon 1st, and Senorita Tournour the Aerial Queen, Fred O'Brien the champion leaper, and a great number of others, all stars in their respective specialties, make up an excellent entertainment. There will be both a matinee and evening performance to-day.

Buckley's Varieties.

Frank Mortimore, Mollie LaForrest, Miss Maggie Brewer, George Foster, Hughey Morton, and the other artistes forming the great variety combination at this house give an excellent entertainment. The programme for to-night is published on our first page.

Bella Union Theatre.

"Satan in San Francisco," with Jennie Johnson in four characters, "Barney's Return," by Miss Alice Ross and Ed. Murray, dances by Miss Fanny Meeker, song and dance by Moore and Bray, comicacts by Johnny Thers, Matt Kelly and others, and a great variety of other entertainments are presented at this house.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The seal pond, the aquarium, the art gallery, the shooting pavilion, the menagerie, and thousands of attractions make these gardens a popular place of resort. On Saturday and Sunday next the ascensions by the captive balloon will be resumed.

Notes.

Gen. T. Murphy takes his benefit at the Opera House on Friday.

The Girards have received an offer of a two month's engagement in New York at their own terms—$500 a week. They cannot accept, being under engagement to George Coppin, of Melbourne, Australia.

There is to be something extraordinary in the way of entertainments at the Opera House on the Friday after next. We shall see what we shall see.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge. Not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they to k their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard. How often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye, there is hardly a calling in which the flowers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of coziness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of more showy embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 68 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is we were assured by the genial Mr. B that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one decsnot wish to purchase, Mr Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an ex-

UNSAID.

For days and weeks upon the lip has hung
A precious something for an absent ear—
Some tender confidence half fully sprung,
Some dear confession that but one must hear.

The heart repeats it over day by day,
And fancies how and when the words will fall—
What answering smile upon the face will play,
What tender light will linger over all.

But eager eyes that watch for one alone
May grow reluctant; for the open gate
Lets in, with him, perchance a guest unknown,
On whom slow words of courtesy must wait.

Or when the presence we had for has come,
It may be dull or cold, too sad or light;
A look that shows the heart away from home
Can often put the dearest words to flight.

Perhaps the time of meeting, or the form,
May chill or wither what we've longed to say;
What if the sunshine will not fit the storm;
What blends with twilight jars the noon of day.

Again, when all things seem our wish to serve,
Full opportunity may strike us dumb—
May sink our precious thought in deep reserve,
And to the surface bid the lightest come.

And often ere our friend is out of sight
We start; the thing can scarce be credited—
We have been silent, or our words been trite,
And here's the dearest thing of all unsaid!

—Lippincott's Magazine.

Small Cause for Sorrow.

Never be sorry for any generous thing you ever did, even if it was betrayed. Never be sorry that you were magnanimous, if the man was mean afterward. Never be sorry that you gave. It was right for you to give, even if you were imposed upon. You can not afford to keep on the safe side by being mean. You had better, many times in your life, for the sake of keeping yourself in the practice of benevolence, do things that are questionable, rather than judge so narrowly that you will be on the safe side of cold calculation. Give your heart some headway, and in the long run it will be safer for you.

For a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once and you will be satisfied. 2-c

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. M yhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lucin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3-n

Not Discouraged.

In spite of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Absent-Minded.

Max Adeler thus describes a friend of his: The most absent-minded man we ever knew was General Mumm. He lost one of his legs in the late war, and he always wore an artificial leg full of springs and joints. Sometimes, when he started out in the morning he would get his leg on hind part foremost, and then he would go straddling down the street with one set of toes pointing east and the other pointing west. His right knee would point in another direction, and the old man would bob up and down like a jumping-jack pulled with a string. Presently he would meet us, and come jolting up to say that he wished we would pitch into the highway department for leaving the pavement in such a rascally condition that a man couldn't walk straight. Previous to the war, while he was down at Cape May one summer, he took a buff bath early in the morning, and while in the water he got meditating upon some abtruse subject, and forgetting himself, he came walking out upon the beach and up the street to the hotel, dressed in nothing but a sad, sweet smile, just as the people were coming down to breakfast.

Only a short time ago he hitched his horse to a sulky, with the animal's nose pushed close up against the dasher, and started off backward without noticing the direction. At the end of the first half-mile the vehicle jammed up against a tree, and the General shot out over the horse's tail. If he doesn't get out of his coffin at his own funeral, and insist on going as a pall-bearer, it will be singular.

The Cincinnati Difficulty.

It is said that the greatest difficulty the Cincinnati papers have in properly following up the praying women's movement, is to secure reporters who can do without liquor. As no blade of grass was left where the host of Alaric passed, so not one smell of the "ruby" or the "ardent" remains in the towns those praying bands of mothers and maidens have taken possession of, and the average Cincinnati reporter finds himself, like the ancient Mariner, with "water, water everywhere, and not a drop to drink." This unaccustomed situation proves too much for him and after standing it as long as he can, he leaves the region of enforced total abstinence, and flies to some neighboring town, where the familiar red light of the saloon wocs his enraptured gaze, leaving the "Dio Lewis movement" to take care of itself. If this difficulty continues the Cincinnati papers will soon be forced to import a few total-abstinence reporters for the campaign.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 25 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-i

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaint incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the vain methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once at the Marsh Truss Co., 5B Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-r

A Helping Hand!

When we see a man trying to reform, we always give him a helping hand. Why should we not do so to a newspaper. The Chronicle is not a sensation paper nowa-days. Tuesday's issue contained nearly half a column of paragraphs like the following:

All pickled, smoked, salted and high-seasoned food is unwholesome.

For study us persons, about eight ounces of animal and twelve of vegetable food in twenty-four hours is sufficient.

Sick headache is mostly caused by too much acidity in the stomach. A pretty good remedy consists in merely eating a little burnt or very brown bread-crust.

No one can say that there is any harm in this kind of thing. We repeat: the Chronicle is not a sensation paper, and the man who says it is "spicy" is a malicious prevaricator.

Oh! Certainly!

The Call observes in an editorial:

The well-educated mechanic is perhaps a better critic of form than the painter, who embodies his creation on canvas.

And then proceeds to make some remarks on the shape of the scissors in the painting of Samson and Delilah. We have no objection to this, if, as we suspect, the writer is a tailor, but would suggest that as the criticising cobbler of old was advised to confine his strictures to the sandals represented in a painting, so the Call critic should restrict his to the scissors.

Street Car Etiquette.

A Boston exchange tells this street-car story: An old gentleman traveling homeward in a South Boston horse car, packed as only South Boston conductors know how to pack human cattle, had his foot trod on by a neighbor, who apologized, and received the following crushing reply: "You should never apologize in a horse car, sir. If everyone apologized when he trod on his neighbor, or expected an apology when trod on, there would be such a gabbling that you couldn't hear yourself think."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen:
White mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here!
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News.]

When the snow is moist enough to pack good nothing escapes the observation of a boy with a boil on his neck.

"What is Heaven's best gift to man?" asked a young lady on Essex street, Sunday night, smiling sweetly on a pleasant-looking clerk, "A hoss," replied the young man, with great prudence.

We have found that a sure way to circumvent the man who goes through the exchanges, and rattles them when you want to think, is to keep them in the basket, and to throw worn-out pens into the same receptacle. We made this discovery in an accidental way, the other afternoon (having thrown a Gillott there instead of out of the window), when one of our numerous squires, who was going through the basket, came up to the surface screaming like a choir, with a rusty pen driven under one of his nails, and his face distorted by unholy passion. We have caught three more in the same way since then, and every one of them lost his presence of mind.

We are inclined to think Danbury has made a stride in the matter of woman's rights that will astonish everybody and edify many. We have a woman who butchers. We might have worked around to this declaration in an elaborate and interesting introduction, but the fact is so amazing that we could not write with any calmness, or think with any precision, with it staring at us. This young lady is about to marry. That is she is engaged, and a woman in Redding is weaving her a rag carpet. As nothing more confirmatory than this can be produced, we feel safe in affirming that she is about to marry. The object of her choice is a farmer. The farmer does his own killing, as all well-informed farmers do. The young lady is aware of this fact, and in her strong devotion to the farmer she is learning to butcher. Every Friday afternoon she accompanies one of her butchers, a personal friends to the slaughter. Here, with her dress pinned up, her sleeves rolled, and her hat very much on one side of her head, she flits about in the midst of the thrilling gore, and unimpassioned tallow, and so forth. She has already killed four lambs, cutting their throats so artistically as to charm the burly butcher beyond all description, and to fill every well-balanced mind with reverential admiration. Next Friday she tries her maiden hand on a small calf, and expects to extract the vital spark from its body in a way that will win its eternal gratitude. In dressing bullocks—or rather in undressing them—she is becoming quite an adept, and already excels the butcher's boy, who has been in the business nearly a year. But she particularly shines when the animal's throat is cut, and with the tail in her hand, and her neatly gaitered foot on the animal's side pumping the life current out of the dying body. The butcher says she looks like an angel then, and we can readily understand how she does. In a week or two she will try her hand at knocking down a bullock, and will be successful without doubt. But we hope, and we are unselfish in the expression of it, that the laurels she is winning will not turn her head, and fill her with aspirations above her station. It will be a sad day for the farmer if success thus affects her—it will be a worse day for her. Better that she had never known the delicious sensations of prodding a lamb's throat, or the wondrous power of pumping gore. But we envy the young farmer the mellow Sunday evenings in her society, the beaming of her slaughter-house eyes, and her tender discourse upon hides, leaf-lard, tripe, plucks, and other bits of scenery. To press the lips which have caressed a gory knife, and to clasp the delicate fingers which have plowed through the steaming contents of a defunct animal is an ecstacy that no one can calmly contemplate—on a full stomach.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig pork shop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's, 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1s

Getting Religion.

A gentleman of Pendleton, Indiana, got religion very heavily last week. To show its chastening effects, and the change in his heart which it had wrought, he drove his family from the house by the sweet persuasion of a hatchet, then set fire to the house and burned himself to a heap of ashes in it. We hope he is now entirely happy.

She Would be Free.

When Mrs. Free, of Indiana, married, she was under the impression that Mr. Free was in bad health and had his life insured, but, now she has found out that his health is first-rate, and that his life is not insured, she applies for a divorce. The incompatibility is probably sufficient for a court of good discernment.

Uncharitable.

The Denver Times says: A blushing young man of twenty-five summers has been found in that city who has a wife only seventy-five years of age. The lady is rich. We judge that this, on the young man's part, is a case of unadulterated true love—for the old gal's stamps.

Piggish.

The gentleman who cleans his knife in his mouth and digs it into the butter in the restaurants, isn't entirely barbarian, but is very much of a hog. Were he to die by swallowing that knife, the only fit Christian burial for him would be as sausages in the stomachs of the godly.

Spreading the Gospel.

It is pleasant to know that the Texas missionaries have established Sunday schools in Black Jack, Lazy Cove, Bat Skin, Coon Hollow, Wolf Creek, Sleepy Hollow, Bull Mountain, Smoky Hollow, and Goose Creek.

True Enough.

An old gentleman advised his daughter: "Be sure, my dear, and never marry a poor man. But remember, the poorest man in the world is one with money and nothing else."

A Warning to Postmasters.

An Iowa Postmaster refused to "lick on" a stamp for one of his neighbor's wives, and the act of discourtesy resulted in his being shot in the hip. Postmasters can't be too accommodating.

An Indiana paper thus politely expresses an opinion of a judge: "He knows just about as much of law as a mule does of mineralogy—the chances being in favor of the mule."

Rather Good.

A wag thinks that the novel "Her Face was her Fortune" ought to be followed by "His Cheek was what Made Him."

A New York State doctor gave a woman scents to cure her deafness, and since her funeral they can't find him.

There is nothing that will change a man so much as a great grief, unless it is shaving off his moustache.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique styles of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of cosiness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 653 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realise without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr. Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No. 17 Post street. 3d

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There was a splendid house last night when John McCullough appeared in his great character of Othello. Good as his impersonation of this character has always been, his performance last night eclipsed all former efforts. We do not believe that there was one person among the audience who could honestly say that he had ever seen the character so well performed on any stage. Of late years, actors in this role have been in the habit of representing Othello as a sunburnt rather than black, notwithstanding that the text imperatively calls for a "sooty" complexion. Mr. McCullough last night was not afraid to sacrifice his good looks to the requirements of the part, and represented Othello as he was, a decidedly dark visaged individual. His dresses were historically correct, and altogether a perfect realization of the Moor of Venice was presented. His acting in the scene where Othello maddened with jealousy vents his rage on Iago, Desdemonia and Emelia was positively superb, and in the final scene of the play he was grandly impressive. Mr McCullough had such a perfect conception of the character of Othello before he saw Salvini in the part, that he cannot be supposed to have learned much from that tragedian, though he may have been encouraged to still further elaborate his exhibition of jealous fury, knowing that to "over-act" in the scenes where they occur is simply impossible. Barton Hill presented the most natural impersonation of Iago we have seen. Iago is no heavier a part than that of Sir Francis Levison in "Lost Lynne." He is the model on which many gentlemanly villians have been founded. As played by Mr. Hill last night, Iago was not a sullen, beetle-browed villain who stalked the stage ill at ease and labored at his evil work. He knows it is no great task he has in hand: to play the confidence game on the miserable Roderigo, and work upon the jealousy of the simple-minded Moor. It is work which comes natural to him, and he delights in it. Barton Hill conveyed this idea most skillfully, never missing a single point, and acting and reading the part with grace and intelligence from beginning to end. A more charming Desdemonia than Miss Ellie Wilton, no audience could desire; she was perfectly successful. Miss Annie Graham read and acted the role of Emilia capitally, and of course won a round of applause for the great speech of the part. E. J. Buckley has frequently played Cassio, and has always presented a pleasing performance of the character; he did well as ever last night. W. A. Mestayer in the character of Roderigo, took delightfully to innocent, and gave a good representation of that weak-minded young man. The performance was one of the best ever given in the California Theatre, and we regret that it cannot be repeated. To-night "Richelieu" will by general request be repeated, and to-morrow night Mr. McCullough will make his benefit, and appear in the tragedy of "Virginius."

Opera House.

The double company at this house present an entertainment such as is seldom seen except on the occasion of the benefit of some popular favorite. Billy Sweetnam, Billy Welch and Geo. T. Murphy appear in the first part, George S. Knight in new Dutch jokes and songs, Geo. T. Murphy, Billy Sweetnam, Charles Reed and G. Richards in "Big-Mals-Lio. and Gal-at-eat-her," Welch and Rice in "Fat and Thin," and Miss Susan Galton, Mrs. Julia Melville, Alfred Kelleher and John Howson in "Widows Bewitched." To-morrow night the favorite interlocutor, Geo. T. Murphy, will take his benefit, and will present a great bill, the chief features of which are set forth on our first page.

California Theatre—Opera Night.

On Sunday night Donizetti's grand opera of "Bellisario" will be given for the benefit tendered by the members of the troupe to Mr. Chas. Schutz, their business manager, who can proudly say that he has achieved the unusual feat of carrying an opera season through successfully. Inez Fabbri, Anna Kiser, Pietro Saccri and Carlo Orlandini will appear in the leading roles. An overflowing house may be looked for.

Palace Amphitheatre.

The programme of equestrian and gymnastic performances at this place of amusement is a very full one. It comprises a wonderful somersault act by Woods Cooke, triple horizontal bar act by Leon and Lancelle, great feats of strength by Mons. Perrin, wonderful leaps by Fred O'Brien and others, balloon act by Miss Helen Cooke, trapeze act by Rezenia Tourneur, exhibition of intelligence by trained horses introduced by Omar Kingsley, and other performances for which we refer our readers to our bills page.

Buckley's Varieties.

Constant changes are made in the programme presented at this house. A number of new acts, songs, and dances will be enjoyed by those who drop in this evening. "Boring for Treasure," by Frank Mortimore, George H. Foster and Walter Parks will conclude the entertainment.

Bella Union Theatre.

"Satan in San Francisco," "School," "Barney's Return," "Hotel Runners," "Stocks Declined," and "The Boot-blacks" are only a few of the performances to be presented to-night by Miss Alice Ross, Ed. Murray, Johnny Tuers, J. W. Summers, Matt Kelly and others whose names appear on our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The seal pond, the aquarium, the art gallery, the skating pavilion, the menagerie, and thousands of attractions make these gardens a popular place of resort. On Saturday and Sunday next the ascensions by the captive balloon will be resumed.

Notes.

J. C. Williamson and Miss Maggie Moore returned from Salt Lake City last night. Their engagement was a most successful one. Miss Maggie Moore brings with her a gold brick and also a silver brick, presented to her by the theatre company and friends during her visit to Salt Lake.

Madame Anna Bishop will not proceed to Australia by the steamer which leaves to-day, business in the country requiring her presence here.

A dramatic and musical entertainment is to be given this evening at Platt's Hall, for the benefit of the O'Farrell street new Church. Miss Stockton will appear as Julia in "the Honeymoon."

By some unaccountable oversight the advertisement has not been sent to FIGARO, but FIGARO, always willing to assist the church as an instructor equally with the stage, gives this notice gratis.

WHERE?

A minute gone. She lingered here, and then Passed, with her face backward turned, through yonder door;
The free fold of her garments' damask grain
Fashioned a hieroglyph upon the floor.
Then straightened as it reached the corridor.

Down the long passages, I heard her feet
Moving—a crepitating music slow—
And next her voice, an echo exquisite,
But modulated in its tender flow—
A harp through which the evening breezes blow.

Upon the table, there were books and flowers,
And Indian trifles; a Mahratta blade
Whose ivory hilt sustained a cirque of towers
Wedded by the inexplicable braid
On Vishnu's shrine at harvest full moon laid.

The curtains shook; a scarlet glamour crossed
The stained wood and the white walls of the room—
Wavered, retreated, trembled, and was lost
Between the statue's plinth, the console's gloom,
And yon tall urn of yellow-blossomed broom.

I see her face look backward at me yet,
Just as she glided by the cypress chair,
Her happy eyes with happy tears are wet,
And, over bust and shoulders, cool and fair,
Stream the black locks of her abundant hair.

In what far past—in what abysm of time
Have I beheld that self-same look before?
There was no difference of hour or clime;
A garment made a figure on the floor,
Which straightened sweeping toward a corridor.

Rare trifles were around me, curtains blew,
And worked their restless phantasms on a cell;
A sidelong bird across a casement flew,
Upon the table glittered graven steel,
And a low voice thrilled me with soft appeal.

All things were there, as all things are, to-day,
But where? I half remember, as a dream,
Such accidents, in epochs, long grown gray—
Such glory, but with ever-narrowing beam.
From which I'm severed by some shoreless stream.

Have I forgotten—in this flash of light,
Which make the brain and pulse together start,
Some ray reflected from the Infinite
Worlds, where I may hap have left a heart—
The Infinite of which I am a part?

Who shall unriddle it? Return, sweet wife,
And with thy presence sanctify this pain;
Cling to my side, O faithful help of life!
Lest, in the hour when night is on the wane,
The destinies divide us two again.

JOHN C. BELL will offer for sale, and if he can't sell will literally give away, (Friday at 11 A. M.) the magnificent furniture of a private residence, at his warerooms on Market street, nearly opposite the Grand Hotel. 3-x

REMOVAL.—We would call attention to the notice of removal of Dr. Danberry, to be found in another column. 3x

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "ar Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

G. ABRAHAM, 33 and 35 Second street, makes clothing to order 25 per cent less than any other establishment in the city. Business suits made to order, $25. Beaver suits made to order, $35. Dress suits made to order, $50. Beaver pants made to order, $10. Cassimere pants made to order, $7. Silk velvet vests made to order $9. Silk cashmere vests made to order, $8. Call and examine our new and large stock, before purchasing elsewhere. 2 x

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street.

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11r

Imperial Milk Punch.

The best of beverages. Try it. Made and sold only by A. & L. Waugh man, at this sumptuous of fine Wines, Liquors and Segars, corner of Leidesdorff and Halleck streets. Superb Hot Lunch from 11 to 2. N. B.—Stock reports telegraphed directly from the Board especially for this saloon. 2x

FOR a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once, and you will be satisfied. 2-o

Glorious!

For health and pleasure, a hot or cold salt water "splash" at the Sanitarium Baths, foot of Powell st., North Beach—terminus of Kearny and Montgomery street car lines. Five tickets for $1. 1bi

THE NEW FLAGGING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider and fine fruits can do so (at the Matinee Fruit Store) without endangering their corns. 1-x

An Outrage.

One of the greatest outrages we have ever read of has recently been perpetrated in Indiana. A citizen of Indianapolis has been locked up on the charge of "stealing an umbrella." For what did the patriots of '76 fight, the veterans of 1812 receive a pension, and the heroes of 1861 invade the South, if an American citizen can be imprisoned for stealing an umbrella?

Very Exact

The Alta, speaking of Con. T. Murphy's benefit, which is to come off at the Opera House Friday evening, and which is bound to be a bumper, says: "An interesting dialect poem by the beneficiary, written by himself, will be read at his benefit." It would be queer if a poem by the beneficiary were written by anyone else.

Explained.

A statistician is astonished that New York, with its population of one million, uses as much water as London does, which has a population of nearly four millions. The explanation is easy: The Londoner takes his "neat," while the New Yorker takes water in his'n.

A Good Name.

Ann Eliza, ex-wife of Brigham Young, has arrived in Boston, where she expects to make money by coming out on the lecture platform as an "analyser" of the character of the Prophet.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at so low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capitol. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study. To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 29 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1
ED. KREHMER, Proprietor.

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3-b

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The basis of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

FRIDAY.....MARCH 6, 1874

"Dod Grile's" Start.

A writer in the New York Arcadian, who signs the initial "M." tells how Ambrose Bierce, who is now in London, writing for Fun over the signature of "Dod Grile," and for Figaro as "Town Crier" and the "Passing Showman," started in literature. He says:

There is a bright, saucy little Ishmael of a sheet published in San Francisco under the title of FIGARO. It is distributed gratuitously in various parts of the city, but derives its chief importance and utility from the fact that it is used as the house programme of the leading theatres and places of amusement. A majority, at least, of the San Francisco Bohemians have taken a turn at editing FIGARO; the splendid irresponsibility of the little paper, to say nothing of the easily-earned salary, being an irresistible attraction. In 1867 or 1868, I forget which, it contained every now and then queer, or requirr paragraphs, each pungent and striking in its way, and all pervaded by a new and puzzling flavor that was a combination of eccentric wit and utterly unconventional form. These were read with avidity and their authorship was eagerly enquired after. All that could be ascertained was, that a clerk in the San Francisco Mint—what his name was, or anything definite about him, nobody seemed to know—was the writer, and that he "threw them off" just for the fun of the thing.

"Splendid irresponsibility" is all well enough. It is a charm. But "easily-earned salary" isn't at all the sort of thing to put in print. How can "M." know what Bierce's salary was? We know and can aver that Bierce did a good deal of work for the money. So do we.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, fresh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

Important to Smokers.

Canvassing for the Directory.

The work of canvassing the city of San Francisco for Langley's Directory is now nearly complete. It is a greater work than taking the census, for the reason, that so much of the work has to be done two and three times in order to give the residence of each person correctly. One of the canvassers told us, the other day, that no one who had not tried the work could have any idea of the difficulties attending it. He said: "I go to one of the large lodging houses where rooms are let by the day, week and month. I interview the landlady and ask her to give me the names of her lodgers. She will, in most cases, reply: 'I don't know their names; they pay their rent and that's all I care about.' I impress upon her the importance of having a work like the Directory as correct and full as possible, and ask her to allow me to look in the rooms and find out by names on boxes, letters, or other means, the names of the respective occupants. She turns me over to the Chinaman, who goes round with me. I try to extract what information I can from him. 'Who live here, John?' I ask. The Chinaman replies: 'Oh him number 9.' 'How you call him?' I ask. 'Allee time number 9; no shabbe anything else.' Perhaps by this time the mistress, seeing that I am really in earnest in endeavoring to get the information I am letailed to procure, softens a little and comes to my assistance, and tells me number 9 is John Smith, who intends to give up his room next week; and number 10 is called Charley, she doesn't know his other name; number 11 only came in this morning and she can't tell his name, and so on. I go into a workshop and am at once supposed by the men to be the Poll Tax Collector. I am asked: 'What do you want my name for?' 'For the Directory,' I reply. 'I don't want my name in the Directory,' is the answer. 'It's nobody's business where I live.' Another man will tell me he 'doesn't live anywhere in particular.' Ladies, who would like to see their names in print in the newspapers as attending a fashionable ball, often seem to have an insuperable objection to seeing them in the Directory. Some say they don't know when they may change their names, and it isn't worth while giving them; others won't give them anyhow, and any number are just going to move and don't want to have their names in wrong.' One would think that the public generally were interested in giving the fullest possible information to be used in compiling a work which is for the benefit of all, but this is not so. Many, of whom one would expect better things, look upon the publication of their names in the Directory as an impertinence, and instead of assisting the canvasser throw every obstacle in his way. I can tell you," said the canvasser, "a man who undertakes this work must have the patience of Job and the skill of a lawyer in cross examination."

The work is, as we observed before, nearly done, but we hope that those who are called upon for information as to changes of residence and other matters, will not make the not very pleasant task of the canvassers more disagreeable and wearisome than it must necessarily be.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Persecuting the Policemen.

San Francisco is not the only city where the comforts of the policemen are restricted by the Police Commissioners, as may be seen by the following extract from a New York paper: O'Riley, of the Thirteenth Precinct, was charged with being off his post thirty minutes. The roundsman went over his post once, and, going the second time, met him. His excuse was, that he went to call a milkman up.

"That is true," answered O'Riley; "I generally go to call him. The man asked me to call him at three. He asked me in, and I took two cups of coffee; it was a very nice thing that night."

"It may be very nice for you, but if the whole platoon had gone off for their coffee, what protection would the precinct have had?" After a pause, the Commissioner added: "Two days' fine won't be so nice as the coffee."

An Obliging Parson.

In the early stages of his ministry, the celebrated Dr. Strong, of Hartford, Connecticut, preached some time in a neighboring village. One day a committee called upon him to settle with him for his services and, after stammering awhile, signified to him that his further services were not desired.

"What does this mean, gentlemen?" asked the Doctor.

"Why," replied the spokesman, with some hesitation, "the people have got the impression that you are inclined to universal salvation."

"Gentlemen," answered the Doctor, "I never preached that doctrine; but, if I ever should, I promise to make the people of this town an exception!"

Street Car Etiquette.

A Boston exchange tells this street-car story: An old gentleman traveling homeward in a South Boston horse car, packed as only South Boston conductors know how to pack human cattle, had his foot trod on by a neighbor, who apologized, and received the following crushing reply: "You should never apologize in a horse car, sir. If everyone apologized when he trod on his neighbor, or expected an apology when trod on, there would be such a gabbling that you couldn't hear yourself think."

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of coziness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 6 8 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is, we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr. Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store as No. 17 Post street. 3d

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

AN OPEN LETTER.

MARYSVILLE, March 1st, 1874

DR. ABORN—DEAR SIR: The last time I was in your city, a year ago February, you treated me for Catarrh. I had been troubled with the above for about THIRTEEN YEARS, and was skeptical about your being able to relieve me. The last time I called on you prior to my return home, I promised to inform you whether you had effected a permanent or temporary cure. I HAVE NOT THE SLIGHTEST TRACE OF CATARRH, and as it is over a year since I was under your treatment, I think I feel safe in saying, that you have effected a permanent cure in my case. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit.

Yours Respectfully,
MRS. ELIZBETH SEAFORTH.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

To-night the popular interlocutor and clever Ethiopian comedian, Con. T. Murphy, will take his benefit. By referring to our first page it will be seen that an extraordinary programme has been prepared for this occasion. It comprises a new first part, terminating with "the Animal Show," by Billy Manning, Billy Sweetnam and Con. T. Murphy. After this, Lewis Morrison will, by permission of the management of the California Theatre, recite a new poem written for him by the beneficiary, and entitled "A Letter of Death." This will be followed by an exhibition of feats of legerdemain by Carl Bosco, the magician, Welch and Rice will appear in "Fat and Thin" George S. Knight in his Specialties, and the charming operetta of "Widows Bewitched" will terminate this glorious evening's amusement. At the matinee to-morrow the combined companies will appear in the great bill which has given such general satisfaction during the present week.

California Theatre.

Last night, "Richelieu," which we noticed at some length on the occasion of its recent representation at this theatre, was repeated, and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large and fashionable audience. To-night John McCullough will take his benefit. This announcement is sufficient to crowd the California Theatre to its utmost capacity. He will appear in the title role of Sheridan Knowles' great tragic play of "Virginius," in which he to-day stands almost without a rival, there being scarcely an actor living who dare attempt to play the part. The support will be all that could be desired. Miss Annie Graham will play Virginia; Barton Hill, Julius; W. A. Mestayer, Appius Claudius; Henry Edwards, Dentatus; E. J. Buckley, Lucius; and Mrs C. R. Saunders Servia. The cast is published in full on our first page. "Virginius" will be played at the matinee to-morrow, and to morrow night John McCullough will make his last appearance. "Jack Cade" will be the play.

California Theatre—Opera Night.

On Sunday night Donizetti's grand opera of "Belisario" will be given for the benefit tendered by the members of the troupe to Mr. Chas. Schutz, their business manager, who can proudly say that he has achieved the unusual feat of carrying an opera season through successfully. Inez Fabbri, Anna Eizer, Pietro Bacci and Carlo Orlandini will appear in the leading roles. An overflowing house may be looked for.

Palace Amphitheatre.

Those who have not yet had an evening of thorough enjoyment at this place of amusement have only themselves to blame. We warned them that John Wilson and his wonderful combination of equestrian and gymnastic artistes could not stay here long, as the country people must have their annual circus. Now, but a few more occasions remain on which the public of San Francisco can enjoy this delightful and exciting entertainment. The programme performed is one which can scarcely be excelled by any troupe in the United States, not excepting that of the redoubtable Barnum himself. Fred O'Brien, the leaper, is confessedly without a rival in the world, no one can equal the wonderful and graceful performance of the beautiful Senorita Tournour on the trapeze, the horses are the finest ever seen in the Circus ring, Miss Helen Cooke is one of the prettiest and most daring equestriennes in the profession, the clowns are fellows of infinite jest, Wooda Cooke is the most daring and artistic of somersault performers, Leon and Laiscalle, have no equal in their peculiar acts, and altogether the company is a splendid one. As to the Amphitheatre it is the most georgeous Horse Ope a House ever seen, and is as comfortable as the California Theatre. Now the public know that the season is soon to close there will of course be a rush. There is no extra charge for reserved seats so that all can, by applying at the box office in the day time, provide themselves with private boxes or dress circle chairs for either of these last occasions on which this brilliant troupe will appear before the public of San Francisco.

Bella Union Theatre.

A new programme will be produced at this theatre to-night. Among other attractive features it will comprise the screaming burlesque of "The R. C.'s Daughter," in which Miss Jennie Johnson will appear as the rat-exterminator's progeny. Miss Alice Ross and Ed. Murray will present "Barney's Courtship," comic songs and other specialties, Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly, John Woodard, Fred Ritchie and others in amusing sketches, and the laughable sketch entitled "On the War-Path" concludes the evening's entertainment.

Buckley's Varieties.

Ned Buckley and Miss Ida May have made their reappearance at this house, and the consequence is that there is more fun than ever. A great programme has been prepared for to-night. It comprises many favorite acts, and an olio of songs and dances which will be found specified on our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The seal pond, the aquarium, the art gallery, the skating pavilion, the menagerie, and thousands of attractions make these gardens a popular place of resort. On Saturday and Sunday the half-hourly ascensions by the captive balloon will be resumed, the "Flying Elephant will appear, the trained dogs, and performance in the pavilion.

CITY GARDENS.—The dwarf elephant, "Princess Mollie," the smallest ever known, only 40 inches in height, is now on exhibition here. Performances in the Pavilion and instrumental concert on Sunday.

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11x

MAN'S BEST FRIENDS.

Two friends has man in every clime,
Two faithful friends and true,
Whose heart is warm in summer time,
And in the winter, too.

Like angel-guards, thro' all his life,
Whate'er its changes be,
In peace and calm, in storm and strife,
They bear him company.

When debts have long been left unpaid,
And creditors grow stern,
They lend pecuniary aid,
And look for no return.

When daily in misfortune's sea
We struggle 'gainst the tide,
These friends, without reward or fee,
Stick closely by his side.

At night, when resting on his bed,
Forgetful of his foes,
They take their station near his head,
And watch o'er his repose.

But woman never, never can
Possess such friends in life,
Except, indeed, when silly man
Takes her to be his wife.

She may have gold to buy her (bah!)
Rings, brooches, chains, and lockets!
She may have other friends, but, an!
She has no—breeches-pockets!

Josh Billings on the Bully.

The bully haz 2 legs, and walks on end like a man.

He has not the kurrage ov the ruffian, nor the suavity ov the pikpoket.

He iz meaner, if possible, than the common thief, and haz all the instinkts ov a fourth-rate bull terrier.

Yu will find him amung all klasses ov society, and the more respektable he iz, from hiz associashuns, the more disgusting hiz presence bekums.

Hiz impudence iz only equalled bi hiz kowardice, and even hiz associates dispize him.

By shrewdly selekting his viktims from amung the non-combatants, he assumes the pretenshuns of the hero, and quite often manages to maintain hiz horror for a long time with suckcess.

But the bully, like all other outrages, haz hiz day ov petty importanse, and when hiz defeat kums, it iz az crushing az it iz agreeable to all decent people.

The knight errant who brings this prating monster to hiz knees, at last, iz generally some modest man ov true principle and kurrage, whom the bully insults, and gits the long-merited thrashing.

There iz only one kure that haz ever been diskovered yet for the bully, and that iz, to knok him into decency, and pummel him well after yu git him thare.

Very nervous and refined people kan take the bax seats while this is going on.

One dose oa this kind ov medisin will kure the biggest bully on earth; it never was known to fail from the days ov David and Goliah all the way down to yesterday.

Uncivilized Germany.

A writer in the Victoria Magazine, of which Miss Emily Fathfull is the editor, says: Germany, in spite of her military successes, and the splendor of its triumphs in the realms of science, stands lower in the scale of civilization than any other European country, except Turkey; for in no other country does woman occupy so ignoble and servile a position. In England women are treated with respect. In France and America, so long as they are young and pretty, are worshipped. In Germany they are utilized."

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

McDowell, Show Card Writer

A Startling Proposition.

An Episcopal clergyman in Philadelphia said, at a meeting the other day, where ritualism was being discussed:

"If there is much more fuss about the kind of garments ministers shall wear in the pulpit, some of us will perform the services with none at all."

Of course, as this is a free country, every man may do as he pleases, but we must say that while a minister who comes into church with nothing at all on him but his hair, and whiskers, and toe-nails, may mean well, his conduct would seem to us to be somewhat wrong. We would not go to a church where the clergyman behaved so, even if it was the only church in the country. We approve of simplicity in dress, especially in the pulpit, but this is hardly rich enough. Even the most evangelical and unritualistic pastor might at least wear an umbrella and a pair of wrist-bands into the sanctuary.

A Tremendous Sell.

Fidgety Old Bachelor (who hates juvenile parties, and has come two hours later than he was asked, so as to avoid the children)—"So sorry to be late—I'm dreadfully afraid I've missed all the darling little ones!"

Lively Hostess—"Oh, dear, no! Our supper has been put off two hours. The darling little ones are having tea, but they'll be down directly for 'Sir Roger de Coverley;' so you're just in time to help us clear the room and join in a regular romp!"

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronounciable name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 23 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

The Lucky Number

Fortunis, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3-b

"FIGARO."

THE JOURNAL OF AMUSEMENTS.

Published every Day in the Year by

J. P. BOGARDUS

—AT—

535 Merchant and 535 Washington Sts

Below Montgomery, San Francisco.

SATURDAY.....MARCH 7, 1874

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programme in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute "FIGARO" thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Mr. Towl has been exhibiting Reed's Panorama of Oregon, at the Metropolitan Theatre every evening during the week He will proceed to the East with it next week. On Thursday and Friday evenings Miss Mary E. Wadsworth, Signor Mancusi, and Lucbeck the pianist, gave promenade concerts at Turner Hall.

SAN JOSE.—The Mercury of Thursday says: Mr. Brobaska returned from San Francisco last evening whither he went a few days since to procure dramatic talent for his Opera House. He informs us that no troupe will be down during the Lenten season, but that immediately thereafter there will be a succession of dramatic and operatic novelties at the Opera House. He has engaged the Galton-Lee Operatic and Burlesque troupe which has been performing for the last six months in San Francisco; the Bianchi Opera Troupe, with Madame States as the prima donna, Madame Duret and J. H. Leroy, and lastly John McCullough, the eminent tragedian and San Jose favorite. Particulars will be given in due season. Mr. Brobaska deserves great credit for his efforts.

YUBA CITY.—Miss Mary Wadsworth gave a concert at Schuessler's Hall on the 2d, assisted by the following local talent: Miss Florence Krause, Mrs. F. Jackson, Miss Eno Wadsworth, Mr. O. A. Stratton, Mr. L. Kuhn and Mr. Shaw.

PORTLAND O.—Charles Vivian was the recipient of a complimentary benefit, tendered him by leading citizens, at Masonic Hall on the 3rd instant.

SALT LAKE.—John T. Raymond, the popular comedian, made his first appearance on Tuesday evening as Asa Trenchard, in "Our American Cousin." This was followed by a Tumblerodicon performance by Prof O'Reardon, who commenced a five nights engagement on the same evening, and the entertainment concluded with "A Regular Fix," in which Mr. Raymond appeared as Hugh de Bras. Mr. Raymond's engagement is for two weeks.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Miss Katharine Rogers had a splendid benefit on Tuesday night, when she appeared in "Pygmalion and Galatea." The same play was performed on Wednesday evening. On Thursday evening "Mimi" was produced. At the matinee to-day "Pygmalion and Galatea" will be played. "Lad Astray" will probably be put on the stage next week. Miss Rogers' engagement at Piper's Opera House has, up to this time been brilliantly successful.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cozy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the prices he is offering his goods.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc, will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

J. FISH, at 211 Montgomery street, has an immense stock of Men's and Boy's ready-made suits, and a full line of Furnishing Goods which he will offer at exceedingly low terms for cash.

Special to Ladies.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Lucky Number

Fortunis, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and to be exact as her symbol. W. E. Mahew believes in the number. An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of coziness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 618 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view: There is also an entrance to their store as No. 17 Post street. 3d

For a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. AN OPEN LETTER.

MARYSVILLE, March 1st, 1874.

DR. ABORN—DEAR SIR: The last time I was in your city, a year ago February, you treated me for Catarrh. I had been troubled with the above for about THIRTEEN YEARS, and was skeptical about your being able to relieve me. The last time I called on you prior to my return home, I promised to inform you whether you had effected a permanent or temporary cure. I HAVE NOT YET SLIGHTEST TRACE OF CATARRH, and as it is over a year since I was under your treatment, I think I can safe in saying, that you have effected a permanent cure in my case. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit.

Yours Respectfully,

MRS. ELIZABETH SEAFORTH.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE—The regular patrons of the California Theatre mustered in full force last night when John McCullough took his farewell benefit, and the crowded condition of the upper portion of the house attested his popularity with all portions of the public. "Virginius" was excellently performed throughout. Mr. McCullough in the title role did some splendid acting, and was repeatedly called before the curtain. When we saw Forrest in the part he was old; the rendition of the leading character last night was in every respect equal to that of the great actor whose loss America deplores. Barton Hill as Icilius acted splendidly; Miss Annie Graham as the tender Virginia played the part in characteristic style; W. A. Mestayer did some capital acting as Appius Claudius; Henry Edwards was extremely good as Dentatus, and fairly brought down the house by the spirited manner in which he delivered the famous address to the citizens. Mrs. C. R. Saunders, as Servia, was all that could be desired. The play was splendidly put on the stage and the costumes were historically correct. This play will be presented at the matinee to-day. To-night Mr. McCullough will make his last appearance, and will play Jack Cade in Judge Conrad's drama of that name. He will be supported by Barton Hill as Judge Clifford, W. A. Mestayer as Lord Say, John Wilson as Walt Worthy, Miss Annie Graham as Miriamne, Mrs. C. R. Saunders as Widow Cade, Miss Nellie Cummings as Kate Worthy, and others whose names are given in the cast published on our first page. On Monday Miss Neilson, the celebrated English actress, will commence an engagement and appear as Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet."

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Con. T. Murphy, the sprightly interlocutor and clever comedian, had a splendid benefit last night and presented a splendid entertainment. Among the introduced features we may mention a very clever dialect poem entitled "A Letter of Death," written by Mr. Murphy, and read with much feeling and expression by Lewis Morrison, of the California Theatre. Carl Bosco, who is a first-class prestidigitateur, performed some feats of magic in excellent style and won much applause. Billy Manning, Billy Sweatnam and Con. T. Murphy caused much laughter by their performance of the lively first part and finale of the "Overland Train." The sparkling operetta of "Widows Bewitched" terminated the evening's entertainment. This evening the bill which has proved so popular during the week, and which is printed on our first page, will be presented. It comprises a good first part, George S. Knight in his specialties, Welch and Rice in "Fat and Thin," the operetta of "Widows Bewitched," and an amusing act.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—On Sunday night Donizetti's grand opera of "Belisario" will be given for the benefit tendered by the members of the troupe to Mr. Chas. Schutz, their business manager, who can proudly say that he has achieved the unusual feat of carrying an opera season through successfully. Inez Fabbri Anna Elzer, Pietro Baccei and Carlo Orlandini will appear in the leading roles. An overflowing house may be looked for.

THE NEW PALACE AMPHITHEATRE.—Manager Wilson's star company can stay here but a few nights longer. Every one should see Fred O'Brien in his unrivaled double somersaults and leaps, Wooda Cooke in his daring back-somersaults on horseback, Millie Tournour in her wonderful trapeze act, Mons. Perrier, the French Hercules in his great feats of strength, and the unrivaled gymnasts, Leon and Laiselle, before they return East. Regular performances to-night and to-morrow night.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The new bill produced at this house last night proved an immense success, and will certainly crowd the theatre to overflowing to-night and to-morrow night. It comprises the screaming burlesque of "The R. C.'s Daughter," with Miss Jennie Johnson as the sprat-vendor, and Matt Kelly as the R. C. serio-comic gems by Miss Alice Rose, a budget of fun by Ed. Murray, fancy dances by Miss Fanny Hooker, songs and dances by Moore and Bray, acts by Johnny Tuers, Tommy Barton, Fred Hitchie and others, and other features specified on our first page.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—In addition to other attractions, Miss Lotta Gray will make her first appearance at this house to-night. Ned Buckley will appear in his comicalities, George Foster in "Uncle Jeff," Miss Ida May in serio-comic songs, Mortimore in songs and acts, and other features will be presented which may be found in the programme.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The seal pond, the aquarium, the art gallery, the skating pavilion, the menagerie, and thousands of attractions make these gardens a popular place of resort. On Saturday and Sunday the half-hourly ascensions by the captive balloon will be resumed, the "Flying Elephant will appear, the trained dogs, and performance in the pavilion.

CITY GARDENS.—The dwarf elephant, "Princess Mollie," the smallest ever known, only 40 inches in height, is now on exhibition here. Performances in the Pavilion and instrumental concert on Sunday.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—George Darrell reports from New York as follows, under date of February 23d:

DEAR FIGARO: Just a line to tell you that Mrs. Darrell opened at Niblo's on Monday last in Sardou's play entitled "Fedora," and made a most decided success. The Herald condemns everything and everyone, whilst the Tribune glorifies all concerned. Anent these two very opposite criticisms the daily Graphic perpetrated a very good joke. It published the two criticisms side by side with the pertinent caption "You pays your money and you takes your choice." Not bad. With the audience, the best of critics, as they pay, the piece is an immense success—double calls, amidst great enthusiasm, at end of each act. It will run about eight weeks. GEORGE DARRELL.

We are glad to perceive that the Bulletin, smarting under the castigation of FIGARO, has had the decency to choke off the young men it has of late detailed to do dramatic criticisms, (heaven save the mark!) for its columns. There was not a word in Thursday's issue about the magnificent performance of "Othello" at the California Theatre, to which had it taken place in New York, the Herald, Tribune and Post would have devoted from a column to two columns of space, but simply the following announcement:

To-night, "Richelieu." To-morrow night benefit of Mr. McCullough, with "Virginius for the attraction. Monday evening Miss Neilson.

Until the Bulletin has some one on its staff capable of writing an intelligent criticism, this will be the best course for it to pursue. It is far better than letting some reporter, who never saw a play acted outside of San Francisco and never opened a Shakspeare, attempt to teach men who have devoted years to the study of their art how Shakspeare should be played. It is pitiable, of course to see a paper like the Bulletin ignore the drama, but it is better thus than to actually injure it by allowing such absurd competitions to appear in its columns as have on one or two occasions disgraced them.

John McCullough will leave on Sunday for St. Louis, where he will open on the 16th in "The Gladiator" and play a two weeks' engagement. This is a true test of his success in that city. He played one week there on his last tour, and now returns after a brief absence to play another of double length. On April 13th, he will appear in Chicago.

During the season of the legitimate at the California Theatre, Barton Hill has had many opportunities of convincing the public how excellent an actor he is. His Phararius in "The Gladiator," and Edgar in "King Lear," entitle him to rank among the best actors of the day.

Miss Billie Wilton is engaged for juvenile parts at the California Theatre next season. The public will be glad to learn that she will remain here as she is a general favorite.

John McCullough's season of three weeks at the California Theatre, which will close to-night, has proved a most successful one. When the money taken at the matinee to-day, and the performance this evening is counted, the gross receipts for the season will not fall far short of $25,000.

Miss Neilson, the lovely and accomplished English actress who is to commence an engagement at the California Theatre on Monday evening, was present at the performance of "Virginius" last night, occupying one of the stage boxes. She will make her first appearance as Juliet, in "Romeo and Juliet," and the following night she will play Rosalind in "As You Like It." These two plays will be presented on alternate nights through the week.

W. A. Mestayer will close his engagement at the California Theatre, and start on his starring tour late in May. He is busily preparing for the campaign, and has secured several promising openings.

The orchestra floor, and the frame timbers of the new dress circle and balcony of the Alhambra Theatre are laid, and the work of reconstructing it into a beautiful theatre is being pushed rapidly forward.

The charming Miss May Howard will leave for Australia on the City of Melbourne to-day under engagement to George Coppin. She expects it will be two years before she again appears before the public of San Francisco. She is sure of a hearty welcome whenever she does so.

The operetta of "Cox and Box," founded on the popular farce of "Box and Cox" will be one of the attractions at the Opera House next week. It will be preceded by a varied performance by Maguire's California Minstrels.

The great event which is to take place at the Opera House next Friday evening is the benefit of the popular treasurer Sam Wetherill. There is already a rush for tickets, and a good portion of the house is taken. Sam is determined that the public shall enjoy an entertainment worthy of the occasion, and has many novelties in preparation. Among them will be a grand balloon ascension in front of the Opera House at half-past seven o'clock.

Con. T. Murphy was presented, by his professional friends, with a handsome gold watch and chain at his benefit last night.

The work of transforming Pacific Hall into a theatre—the Alcazar, was commenced on Tuesday last. Since then a stage 35 feet in depth, the whole width of the Hall, has been built, and twelve proscenium boxes partially completed. The Alcazar is to have two galleries; the lower will be divided into 68 open boxes, after the style of those at Platt's Hall, and the upper is to be the gallery proper. The improvements have been most artistically and commodiously designed, and the theatre when finished will comfortably accommodate 1,500 persons.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, George Fawcett Rowe's American drama entitled "Leatherstocking" is, in spite of adverse criticism, likely to have a run at Niblo's.... At Union Square Theatre "Led Astray" still holds the boards. Manager Palmer, when asked recently how long it would run, replied, in his usual quiet manner, "Perhaps a couple of years or so." It has reached its one hundredth representation, with seats secured far into the present month..... "Money" still draws well at Wallack's....."Love's Labor's Lost," which was produced at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre on the 21st ult., is, as all who have read it are aware, not a brilliant play. It did not draw well, though produced with splendid costumes and with a good cast. On the 28th, Gilbert's play entitled "Charity" was presented.....Janauschek was playing at Booth's Theatre..... At the Olympic Theatre, the variety company comprised Sheridan and Mack, George Reynolds, Marie Bonfanti, the Rigl Sisters and many other favorite performers.....At the Metropolitan Theatre, the latest addition to the company was Miss Lizzie Kelsey.....Lucca was to appear at the Stadt Theatre, on March 2d. Manager Fred Ullman returned from Havana recently with the Lucca contract in his pocket, after depositing $8,000 gold with Belmont, to Lucca's credit, for the entire series. The repertoire will include the "Huguenots," "Le Nozze de Figaro," "Merry Wives of Windsor," "Il Trovatore," "Fra Diavolo," "Faust," and "La Juive." Ullman has secured a fine German company, a large and well-disciplined chorus and orchestra, and will present his operas in the most complete manner, without increasing the theatre prices of admission..... Edwin Eddy is to appear at the Bowery Theatre on the 15th in a new play by Stanley McKenna, entitled "Revenge; or the Midnight Mask"..... Bob Hart, Bryant Seymour, Brockway and others continued to give a satisfactory entertainment at Bryant's Opera House..... At Tony Pastor's Andy Burke, Jennie Lee, Lizzie Derious, Lizzie Wilson, Lizzie Coleman, Lizzie Conway, Lizzie Mayo, Lizzie Wilkes, Lizzie Mayo, Lizzie Wilkes, Lizzie Mayo, Lizzie Wilkes

"FIGARO."

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programme in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute 'FIGARO' thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The list of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call or send to the Marsh Truss Co., 713 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipmans Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1y

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street.

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11x

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kuhn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1x

FOREIGN NOTES.

Foreign news to the 7th ult., gives little news at the London theatres, beyond that "School" was to reach its five hundredth night at the Prince of Wales' Theatre on that evening; that "Richelieu" was withdrawn from the Lyceum on the 16th, after a run of one hundred and fourteen nights, to be replaced on the 7th by Hamilton Aide's new play of "Philip." A little inconsequential farce by Alfred Maltby, intended as a political squib, and called "Your Vote and Interest," was produced at the Court Theatre on the 4th; and the pantomimes at the Alexandra and Pavilion were to be replaced on the 9th by novelties.

Howard Paul and Troupe were doing well at Glasgow.

Late advices from England say that Mr. Carl Rosa, after the death of his distinguished wife, concluded to abandon all his plans for the carrying on of English opera in London and the British provinces. The company was to be disbanded in a few days; but, according to a Liverpool paper, "a new impressario will, it is believed, be found in Mr. William Castle, who hopes to re-engage the entire corps in about a fortnight, and carry on, no doubt with the success the enterprise merits, the schemes Carl Rosa elaborated for the restoration of English opera."

Once more is the theatrical fund indebted to what we may call the princely liberality of Mr. E. A. Sothern for an important addition to its resources, and once more has he shown how disinterested is his love of his profession and his concern for the welfare of those who follow it. The Committee of the Fund at the end of the year required the sum of £279 to meet the demands made upon them. Before the money could be realized from the invested capital it was necessary to have the sanction of the trustees, of whom Mr. Sothern is one. The "sanction" of the eminent comedian was asked, and was telegraphed in this welcome fashion:—"Draw on me for the amount." Two years ago Mr. Sothern journeyed from America in order to play for the benefit of the Fund. Last year, through Mr. Frederic Ledger, he made a contribution of £100, and now he makes a further levy upon his purse to the tune of £279 in furtherance of the good cause.

It is reported that the Viceroy of Egypt having been so managerially successful with one Egyptian opera, viz: Verdi's "Aïside," is desirous of producing another, and has made tempting offers to Maestro Wagner to write an opera for the Cairo Italian Opera House on an Egyptian subject, the libretto of which is to be inspired by a theme taken from the Old Testament. It is a good idea, and much curiosity will be manifested if the arrangement is consummated, as to how the great composer of "the music of the future" will endeavor to treat that of the past.

At the Porte St. Martin, Paris, "Les Deux Orphelines," (The Two Orphans) by Dennery and Cormam, had been produced in five acts and eight tableaux, and had made a big hit.

Besides the Swedish Quartet and the Viennese Lady Orchestra, a trio of ladies have established themselves successfully in Vienna, and a new feminine orchestra, conducted by Frau Messerschmidt-Gruner, was doing well, at last accounts, in Berlin.

Mrs. Gunther Baohmann, the leading actress of Leipsic, died in that city on the 17th of January. She had been attached to one theatre during a period of forty years.

Not Discouraged.

In piece of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Cabinets, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-r

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pigpork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

The best of beverages. Try it. Made and sold only by A. & L. Wang man, at his symposium of fine Wines, Liquors and Segars, corner of Leidesdorff and Halleck streets. Superb Hot Lunch from 11 to 2. N. B.—Stock reports telegraphed directly from the Board especially for this saloon. 2x

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

J. FIGEL, at 211 Montgomery street, has an immense stock of Men's and Boy's ready-made suits, and a full line of Furnishing Goods which he will offer at exceedingly low terms for cash.

Smiley In a Bad Fix.

Max Adeler tells how his friend Smiley recently got into trouble: When Smiley, of Pittsburg, started for Philadelphia the other day, a woman occupied the seat in front of him with twin infants. Just before the train moved off the woman asked Smiley to hold the babies for a moment while she went to the drug store across the street after a new bottle top. He took the little ones, and before the woman returned the train started. Smiley was in agony, and when the babies began to cry no words can describe his misery. All the passengers were looking at him, and as he dandled the children up and down, one on each knee, the perspiration streamed from every pore. This kind of thing continued until dark, and then as the conductor refused to have anything to do with the infants, poor old Smiley put them into his own berth and tried to soothe them. But the more he tried the more they howled, and he sat up alongside of them the whole night utterly wretched, while the other passengers swore at him and threw boots at his head, and called him hard names because he wouldn't keep the youngsters quiet. By the time morning came, Smiley was pretty near crazy, and the twins were almost starved to death. He had nothing to give them but plug tobacco and bay rum, which he carried for his hair, and he knew those were not healthy. The first time the train stopped he bolted out and bought a pie. When he returned one of the twins had tumbled off the seat and had a broken nose; but he stuffed them both with the pie until they were deathly sick, and began to disgorge. Then Smiley was in a worse case than ever. When he reached Philadelphia he was on the very verge of insanity, and his reason was all but dethroned when a policeman entered the car and seized him on the authority of a telegram from Pittsburg, on a charge of kidnapping. He spent the night in jail, and was then released on bail. He wants to find the father of those twins. He yearns to tell him something and to fumble among his hair.

Misunderstood.

A young lad fell into a mud-puddle off a curbstone in Detroit, the other day, and he was howling and wailing, when another boy came along, and remarked: "'Humph! guess I wouldn't howl just because I fell in the mud." "That hain't what I'm howling about," blubbered the boy. "I'm crying 'cause my brother's sick."

He'd Play It.

A lugubrious-looking individual, approaching a musician, asked him in earnest and melancholy tones, "Friend, do you know man's chief end?" The innocent fiddler cheerfully replied, "No, sir; but if you'll whistle it I'll play it."

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of cosiness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 638 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No. 17 Post street. 3d

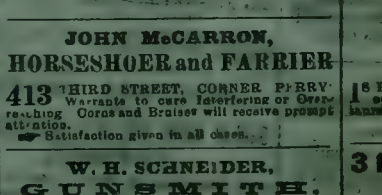
Miss Neilson's acting in the Balcony Scene is alone worth a visit to the theatre. . . . Miss Neilson is the greatest living representative of Juliet.—New York Herald.



It is justice to say she far excels any interpretation of the character given here for years.—New York Times.

Her passion in the glorious Balcony Scene was wholehearted and devouring . . . Her tragic passion in the soliloquy, before taking the drug was precisely such as an imaginative woman, half crazed by sorrow, danger and apprehension, might feel under such circumstances, and it was not overdone for the sake of showing force.—New York Tribune.

Miss Neilson has made Juliet her own.—The London Times.

It is universally admitted that Miss Neilson is the only Juliet on the stage—London Standard.

Juliet is Miss Neilson's masterpiece. . . . It is a ripe and sustained performance, ascending in the latter acts of the play to a tragic exhibition of a [illegible] seldom less or than inspiration. . . . The various stages of fright and horror, too, in the Chamber Scene, were assembly presented, and at one point at least of this scene the face and figure of the actress were charged with an amount of tragic intensity exhibited in these days by no other actress on the stage.—London Athenæum.

AN OPEN LETTE

MARYSVILLE, March 1st,

DR. ABORN—DEAR SIR: The last time I was in your city, a year ago February, you treated me for Catarrh. I had been troubled with the above about THIRTEEN YEARS, and was skeptical as to your being able to relieve me. The last time I called on you prior to my return home, I promised to inform you whether you had effected a permanent or temporary cure. I HAVE NOT THE SLIGHTEST TRACE OF CATARRH, and as it is a year since I was under your treatment, I think I am safe in saying, that you have effected a permanent cure in my case. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit.

Yours Respectfully,

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

A brilliant and diversified entertainment will be given at this house to-night. After a first-part performance in which Billy Sweetnam, Billy Welch, Con. T. Murphy and others will appear, George S. Knight will present new songs and recitations, Con T. Murphy, Billy Sweetnam, Charles Read and P. Loomis will appear in "Pigmalion and Galatea-et-her" and Welch and Rice in a double jig. After this Arthur Sullivan's comic opera entitled "Cox and Box" founded on the favorite farce of "Box and Cox" will be performed with Miss Susan Galton as Mrs. Sergeant Bouncer with the ballad "Forget me Not" John Howson as James Joh Cox the hatter, and Alfred Kelcher as John James Box the printer. Such a bill as this should crowd the house.

California Theatre.

Miss Neilson has ever since her arrival in this city, been suffering from hoarseness contracted on the journey through the snow to this State. In consequence of this, in order to allow her voice time to recover its normal clearness, Miss Neilson's first appearance has been postponed until to-morrow evening, when she will present her renowned impersonation of Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet." To-night "Pygmalion and Galatea" will be performed, with Miss Annie Graham as Galatea, and the cast otherwise the same as when the comedy was presented during the engagement of Miss Katharine Rogers.

Madame Agatha States.

Madame Agatha States will give her farewell concert in this city at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening. She will be assisted by Signor Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Signor Rigo, Signor Spadina and Frank Gilder. Gems from the opera of "The Sicilian Vespers" will form a portion of the programme.

Palace Amphitheatre.

At Saturday's matinee and evening performance there was a perfect jam. The last week of the circus is announced, and all are anxious to enjoy the excellent entertainment offered, while there is yet an opportunity of doing so. To-night, among other novelties there will be a grand contest in feats of strength between Mons. Vincor, who claims to be the strongest man in the world, and Mons. Perrier, the French Hercules. On Wednesday evening the charming Seneri a Tournour will take a benefit.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic gems, Ed. Murray in his Budget of Fun, Moore and Bray in song and dance, Miss Fanny Hooker in dances, Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly, and others in acts, Miss Susie Robinson in comic songs, and Miss Jennie Johnson, John Woodard, Tommy Bree and others in the extravaganza of "The R. C.'s Daughter," are some of the attractions to be offered at this house to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

Ned Buckley, Harry Davey, Frank Mortimers and others in comic acts, Miss Lotta Gray in vocal gems, Miss Ida May in serio-comic songs, Miss Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, and many others in popular specialties, present a good entertainment at this house.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Ascensions will be made by the captive balloon every day this week. There will also be a daily exhibition of trained animals and hundreds of other attractions. There will be an extra entertainment on Saturday and Sunday, and also St. Patrick's Day.

CITY GARDENS.—The dwarf elephant, "Princess Mollie," the smallest ever known, only 40 inches in height, is now on exhibition here. Performances in the Pavilion and instrumental concert on Sunday.

Notes.

Little Mac and Jake Wallace returned yesterday from a professional tour through the Southern countries.

Manager Maguire went East yesterday morning for the purpose of securing fresh talent for the Alhambra Theatre and Opera House.

Fanny Morgan Phelps and company, returned from Los Angeles on Saturday.

The friends of Charles Schutz mustered in large numbers at the California Theatre last night when the operas of "Belisario" was performed for his benefit. Mrs. Schutz has managed a season of opera most successfully and deserved this compliment.

Sam Wetherill's box sheet for his benefit on Friday night is filling up already. Sam is going to give a big bill—"way up!"

Mrs. Rowena Granice Steele, of the San Joaquin Valley Argus, one of the leading lights of the temperance movement in Merced City, will deliver a lecture to-night at Dashaway Hall. The title is "Women and Girls." The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to furthering the temperance cause in Merced City.

Madame Camilla Urso will arrive here in May for the purpose of giving a series of grand orchestral concerts.

It is universally acknowledged that the Steinway Piano and the Burdett Organ are the best instruments in the world. M. Gray, Music Publisher, 623 Clay street, is the sole Agent. Brass and String Instruments of the best make only. 3-1

MY FIELD.

I will not wrong thee, O To-day,
With idle longing for To-morrow;
But patient plough my field, and sow
The seed of faith in every furrow.

Enough for me the loving light
That melts the cloud's repellent edges;
The still unfolding, bud by bud,
Of God's most sweet and holy pledges.

I breathe His breath; my life is His;
The hand He nerves knows no defrauding;
The Lord will make this joyless waste
Wave with the wheat of His rewarding.

Of His rewarding! Yes; and yet
Not mine a single blade or kernel;
The seed is His; the quickening His;
The care unchanging and eternal.

His, too, the harvest song shall be,
When He who blest the barren furrow
Shall thrust His shining sickle in,
And reap my little field to-morrow.

High Hats in Theatres.

It is pleasant to visit the theatre now-a-days, especially when a young lady sits immediately in front of you. Her head-dress is of such altitude that, by standing upon your tiptoes on your seat, you can catch a glimpse of the stage. Even when you manage to fix yourself so that you can get a bird-eye's view of the performances between her and the young man who had the pleasure of paying for her admission, your enjoyment is short-lived. She is sure to bend over to inform him that "Mr. Blank looks perfectly lovable," or that "Miss Soandso is delicious in her croquet silk," or that the low comedian is "too funny—he'll make me die of laughing." Men who go to the theatres will have to carry high stools with them. By perching themselves on them, they can get an uninterrupted view of the stage. Perhaps it would be a better way for the managers to arrange that the women should all take one side of the theatre, and the men the other. That would probably be agreeable to both parties. While the men would criticize the acting, the women would have a chance to inspect the style of their neighbors' dress. We know one man who enjoys going to the theatre. He says he can always sleep in peace when there. His wife is so interested in examining head-gear, laces and such things, that she hasn't time to talk any. He's about the only man that we know who enjoys theatres since the Peak of Teneriffe style of hair came in vogue.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Cerville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study. To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 23 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3 B

DRS. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

FOR a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once and you will be satisfied. 2-G

Precocity and Pretension.

A few evenings since Mrs. Frimper was unfortunate enough, in her self-assuring mood, to consult Dr. Sprowle in public. It was at a party given by Mrs. Badger, and the elite were all there. Mrs. Frimper and Mrs. Badger and Mrs. Wopple and Mrs. Todgers had been talking about their children, and Mrs. Frimper had endeavored to impress it on the minds of the others that her children were the especial paragons. Dr. Sprowle came up while they were talking, and Mrs. Frimper appealed to him:

"Dear doctor, you have often noticed a peculiarity in my children—especially in my little Benny?"

The doctor nodded and grunted.

"So different from most other children?" said the lady.

"Yes, entirely different," assented the doctor.

"Do you not think my Benny needs great care, doctor?"

"Yes, madam; great care."

"He is so far in advance of his years—so very precocious," pursued the doating mother. "I must restrain him. You have observed his head, doctor?"

"Yes, often."

"What can I do, Doctor, to restrain the ambition so far in advance of his boyish years, and to prevent that large head from overbalancing itself?"

"Well, madam," answered old Sprowle, with another grunt, "I would advise first a good sound whipping, with assurance that the dose will be repeated until he can restrain himself. Then, when you have got him under sufficient control. I would wash his face and comb his hair. That might do for a beginning!"

Mrs. Frimper went home early from that party.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.

"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

A Clue to a Remarkable Robbery.

The daily papers have been giving an account of an adroit robbery by a Parisian thief of over 4,000,000 francs worth of Diamonds belonging to the wife of a Russian magnate of unpronouncible name, who was sojourning in Paris. The Chief of the Bureau of Police in Paris gives it as his opinion that the diamonds were shipped to America. Col. Andrews at 221 Montgomery street has a remarkably large stock of Precious stones which he is trying to close out as soon as possible, for cash, at too low a figure, and besides which his latest style of Parisian ornaments go to show that he had a recent consignment from the french capital. Had not the matter better be investigated before he closes out his large stock, which he will certainly do before long at the price he is offering his goods.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

MINE Host of the Morton House (on Post street, near Kearny), finding that first-class accommodations, at reasonable rates, has had a tendency to fill his Hotel to overflowing, has determined to enlarge his present accommodations so that families visiting the city will be enabled to find a home in its literal sense. 2w

MRS. M. C. WHITE, at 652 Market street, room 11, is one of the most successful teachers of Music that we have. For beginners on Piano, Organ or Guitar, she is unrivalled, and those that are already advanced will be greatly benefitted by her new method of harmony. 3-G

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programme in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute "FIGARO" thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 613 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11v

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in their establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-x

Highly Important.

A PRAYING BAND.

Muffington has long suffered in silence. He thinks the time for action is now come. He believes that what is ruining this country is the indulgence in fine dress persisted in by the ladies. He has begged the pastors of the various churches to preach against it, but has met with but little success. The millinery and dry goods bills of his wife and daughters threaten to reduce him to bankruptcy. Muffington, knowing that he was not alone in this predicament, but was only one of a large class, determined to call a meeting of men who feels as he feels. The meeting took place last Saturday evening, in one of the halls in this city. The reason nothing has been heard of it is, that no woman was admitted. It was determined at this meeting, which comprised some three hundred of our best citizens, that the only way in which this dreadful evil of indulgence in expensive dress could be checked was to strike at its headquarters. It is the proprietors of the dry goods stores and their dapper and insinuating clerks who are responsible for woman's extravagance in the matter of dress. The result of the meeting will be then to-morrow afternoon at half-past three o'clock, when a band of earnest men will meet at the White House, and will, by their prayers, try to turn the proprietors from the error of their ways, and lead them to give up their unholy traffic in frivolities, which turn the heads and ruin the souls of so many women. The prayer will be led by an experienced practitioner in that line, who is engaged at a salary of fifteen dollars a day. It is hoped, by persistent effort, that in the course of three weeks every dry goods house and millinery establishment in the city will be closed up. Earnest Christians (of the male persuasion), who wish to join in this holy war against the pomps and vanities of this wicked world, can leave their names at the "FIGARO" office.

Something to Think About.

Addison has left on record the following important sentence: Two persons who have chosen each other out of all the species, with the design to be each other's mutual comfort and entertainment, have, in that very action, bound themselves to be good humored, affable, joyful, forgiving and patient, with respect to each other's frailties and imperfections, to the end of their lives."

A man would reflect some time before he entered into a contract to keep house with a male friend for the rest of his life, but he will often marry a wife with really less knowledge of her character than he would demand of a man whom he accepted as a temporary room-mate. As for the women; they start in life with the idea that they must get married, (society has settled that) and often accept the first offer they receive. The girl thinks, perhaps, the man who offers is not exactly the man she would choose, but accepts him with the idea that he will "give her a home and be kind to her." Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the state of matrimony is not an absolutely perfect state, but has its little drawbacks.

The "Live" Paper.

The Chronicle is certainly not a sensation paper now-a-days, but we believe it still wishes to be considered a "live" paper. Very "live" are the news paragraphs in the Chronicle now-a-days! In yesterday's issue we find the following genial paragraph.

Elder Knapo, the famous revivalist, is ill at Rockford, Ill., and not likely to recover. He has been a religious wide-awake in his time, and must be ready to take his last nap.

As the poor Elder died last week, and the fact was published among the telegraphic dispatches in all the daily papers, this notice shows enterprise, and also kindly feeling on the part of the "live" paper.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D. Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-x

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bun," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

The Whirligig of Time.

Claude de Haven is one of those who has waited until the whirligig of Time brings round its revenge. Claude is the editor of the New York Critic "an illustrated literary and dramatic paper." Claude has been receiving some flattering notices from the Hazleton Daily News, the El Paso Journal, the Lockport Daily Union, and other influential papers. He says:

We trust our readers will pardon the seeming egotism we display by publishing them in our columns, but they are kind words and cheer us on to greater endeavors. We have great reason to thank the press of America for the interest always taken in our behalf, and now as we sit in our office looking over exchanges and reading from their columns good words for us, our mind goes back to the wretched past, when a boy, alone, and struggling with the world, combatting with jealous opposition and the cruel tongue of sarcasm. Benefitted by the lashing waves, ever surging on the broad ocean of cold humanity, we think of the resolve made years ago on our bended knees to outlive all petty spite, and see the traducers crushed by their own vile meanness. Thank God that day has arrived. It has been our sad misfortune to witness the complete downfall of those who years ago occupied high positions and enjoyed the pleasures of surrounding happiness, fall flat to the ground. We joyed not in their reverse, but pitied their misfortunes. They are at the present time arrayed in a linen duster and walking on their uppers.

We cannot believe that Claude considers the downfall of his enemies a "sad misfortune." We believe that as he sees them pass him, with only one miserable duster to cover them all and "walking on their uppers" he laughs a fiendish laugh, and cries ha, ha. That is the sort of thing King David did, and we don't believe that Claude de Haven is a better man than David, though he bears a prettier name.

Recommended for Pardon.

In California we find murder made easy. If a man does not get acquitted on the ground of insanity, he is pretty sure to find a jury to find him guilty of murder, only in the second or third degree! The result of this sentence is that he goes to the State Prison and, if he has money and friends, is employed in some easy work. Here he may stay one or two years, or months, and his friends work to get him pardoned out by the Governor. The State Prison Committee have just recommended a precious lot of murderous rascals for pardon. Among them is Henry McCausland, who was sentenced in April, 1873, to two years imprisonment for shooting Noah Mullendore in the back, while running away, and killing him. Two years imprisonment does not seem a very harsh sentence for such a deed as this.

Not a Good Place.

An exchange speaking of the supposed escape to Mexico of the murderous Vasquez, says:

A short time ago the outlaw was pointed out to the Sheriff of Fresno County at a fandango, but the situation was deemed unfavorable to effect an arrest.

That Sheriff is altogether too particular. We suppose he thought it would be bad taste to arrest Vasquez while mingling in the mazes of the dance.

The Oakland Homestead.

We have received a copy of a paper with the above title described as "a literary journal for women." It is edited by Dora Darmore. The only thing in it that we find worthy of republishing is article No. 4, of Dora's belief.

I believe in Women. So far as I am informed, they constitute about one half of the population of each country, land and clime under the sun. We are an integral part of mankind, and by no means myths. I believe we ought to be permitted to do just as we please, as men do, and not just as men permit us to do. If this be treason, make the most of it. Codes, customs and constitutions are as powerful to control us as they are to control men. We are as religious. We are as moral. Then I believe we ought to enjoy every blessing of life which men enjoy. The curses of life—such as rum-guzzling, tobacco-chewing, prize-fighting, cock-fighting, horse-racing, slang-whanging, etc., we don't want to "enjoy." And when we perform our work as well as men, I believe that we ought to receive the same remuneration as men. Equal pay for equal work, is a good motto.

Every honest man will subscribe to this article of belief. If Dora Darmore will do a little strong talk on this side of the question, the Homestead may be of some use. It is rather a tame sort of paper at present.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.

Miss Neilson's acting in the Balcony Scene is alone worth a visit to the theatre. * * * Miss Neilson is the greatest living representative of Juliet.—New York Herald.

It is injustice to say she far excels any interpretation of the character given here for years.—New York Times.

Her passion in the glorious Balcony Scene was whole hearted and devouring * * * Her tragic passion in the soliloquy before taking the drug was precisely such as an imaginative woman, half crazed by sorrow, danger and apprehension, might feel under such circumstances, and it was not overdone for the sake of showing force.—New York Tribune.

Miss Neilson has made Juliet her own.—The London Times.

It is universally admitted that Miss Neilson is the only Juliet on the stage—London Standard.

Juliet is Miss Neilson's masterpiece. * * * It is a ripe and sustained performance, ascending in the latter acts of the play to a tragic elevation and fire than seemeless art than inspiration. * * * Various stages of fright and horror, too, in the Chamber Scene, were superbly presented, and at one point at least of this scene the face and figure of the actress were charged with an amount of tragic intensity exhibited in these days by no other actress on the stage.—London Athenæum.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The very enjoyable mythological comedy of "Pygmalion and Galatea" was performed last night, with Miss Annie Graham as the statue bride, Lewis Morrison as Pygmalion, Miss Ellie Wilton as Cynisca, J. C. Williamson as Chrysos, Mrs. Judah as Daphne, Miss Nellie Cummins as Myrine, W. A. Mestayer as Leucippe, E. N. Thayer as Agesimos, and Henry Osed as Mimos. To-night Miss Neilson will appear in the character of Juliet, in "Romeo and Juliet," in which she made such a success in London and New York, being pronounced by the press of both cities the best representative of the character in the profession. Miss Neilson will be supported by Lewis Morrison as Romeo, Barton Hill as Mercutio, Mrs. Judah as the Nurse, and a generally strong cast. To-morrow night Miss Neilson will appear as Rosalind in "As You Like It."

Opera House.

The operetta of 'Cox and Box" which was produced here last night, preserves all the fun of the farce on which it is founded, and contains some pleasing airs. Miss Susan Galton did some excellent acting as Mrs. Sergeant Bouncer, and sang "Forget me Not" in a style which delighted everyone. John Howson as Cox the hatter was extremely funny, and Alfred Kelleher was quite successful as Box the printer. This very amusing musical performance will be given this evening preceeded by an excellent first part, a burlesque on "Pygmalion and Galatea" sketches by Geo. S. Knight, dances by Welch and Rice, and other entertainments specified on our first page. Sam Wetherill's benefit comes off on Friday night.

Madame Agatha States.

Madame Agatha Sirtes will give her farewell concert in this city at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening. She will be assisted by Signor Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Signor Rigo, Signor Spadina and Frank Gilder: Gems from the opera of "The Sicilian Vespers" will form a portion of the programme.

Palace Amphitheatre.

The public are making the most of the few remaining nights of the circus season, and every one is going to the Palace Amphitheatre to witness the wonderful feats of strength of MM. Vincent and Perrier, the extraordinary performances of the trained horses and other attractive entertainments set forth in the programme on our first page. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow.

Bella Union Theatre.

"The R. O.'s Daughter," in which Miss Jennie Johnson, John Woodard, Tommy Barton, Matt Kelly and others appear, is an extravagantly funny production. The programme for to-night comprises performances by Miss Alice Ross, Ed. Murray, Moore and Bray, Johnny Tuers, and many other popular artistes.

Buckley's Varieties.

Geo. Foster appears at this house in his very clever impersonation of 'Uncle Jeff' in the sketch of that name, Ned Buckley takes part in amusing acts, Miss Ida May sings comic songs. Miss Maggie Brewer performs fancy dances and altogether a very attractive and varied entertainment is given. Geo. C. Thompson will make his reappearance on Thursday evening.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Ascensions will be made by the captive balloon every day this week. There will also be a daily exhibition of trained animals and hundreds of other attractions. There will be an extra entertainment on Saturday and Sunday, and also St. Patrick's Day.

CITY GARDENS.—The dwarf elephant, "Princess Mollie," the smallest ever known, only 40 inches in height, is now on exhibition here. Performances in the Pavilion and instrumental concert on Sunday.

Amusements for the Interior.

There is every prospect of an immense harvest, and the people of the interior feel easy in their minds and won't be afraid to spend a little money on amusements. The Girards, Harry Clark, Mlle. Laura, and Carl Bosco have combined for the purpose of giving a series of entertainments in the interior of the State. They will start in a few days to Colusa, thence they will go to Princeton, Knight's Landing, and other places. This is a good enough show for San Francisco, and should be appreciated by the country people. Jake Wallace and Little Mac are also in the field, and will give an entertainment at San Rafael on Thursday evening.

Sir Walter Raleigh created a consternation when he appeared before his servants smoking a pipe of Tobacco. The sight was a new one to them, and they, as well as the public in general were slow to learn the use of the Weed. Had they had Tobacco of the quality and perfect flavor which the Perique and Golden Thread Smoking Tobacco of to-day have, smoking would much sooner become almost universal. The Gilroy Tobacco Company (office 304 Pine street), are offering the above-named Tobaccos to the public, and we advise those in want of a good article to give them a trial. 3-J

Chinamen Below Par.

The Consolidated Tobacco Company of California not only employ white labor but are putting upon the market the finest flavored and best made Cigars ever offered on this coast. Mr. Briggs, the genial Manager of the Company, at the office, 304 Pine street, will be pleased to have the public generally call and examine the Cigars, and learn the low prices which they furnish a really good cigar for. 3-J

MR. L. JALLSWITH, No. 240 Kearny street,

Getting Used To It.

The funniest incident connected with the temperance imbroglio occurred with Charley Crothers, a saloon keeper in Greenfield, Ohio, the other day. The ladies all thronged to Charley's saloon, and commenced singing and praying. Charley welcomed them, offered them chairs, and seemed delighted to see them. He even joined in the singing. The praying and singing were kept up for several days, Charley never losing his temper. The more they sang and prayed the happier Charley looked. One day a gentleman came to Charley and broke out: "I say, Charley, ain't you getting 'most tired?" "No, sir," said Charley, "If I get tired of the little singing and praying they do in my saloon here, what in the d—l would I do when I go to heaven among the angels, where they sing and pray all the time?" Then Charley winked and took a chew of cavendish.

Stimulating Too Much.

The man who takes his bitters on getting out of bed in the morning, sips whisky at 11 o'clock lunch, guzzles his brandy appetizer before dinner, dines on wines, tapers off on brandy and coffee, and retires on a smasher, ought not to complain if the mixture of the poison reddens his nose, bloats his face, distends his eyes, diseases his body, weakens his mind, prostrates his business and ends in bankruptcy and ruin. There are plenty of just such men in every community.

A [illegible]y of the Toilette.

One of the editorial fiends of the St. Louis Journal has recently indulged in matrimony, and here is a scrap of his philosophy growing out of one of the results: The first really startling experience of a newly-married man is probably as a rule when he sees his bride combing her hair, one end of the hair being held in her hand and the other end attached to a hook on the bureau.

An Unpleasant Surprise.

A pious old lady, near Athens, Georgia, rather surprised a lot of young folks who had captured her mansion for a party by furnishing entertainment in the shape of a sermon of two hours length from one of the most solemn of parsons. It was a surprise party inverted.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our minds (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 23 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3 B

Drs. Smith and Tufford are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

For a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once and you will be satisfied. 2-O

Bound to Lap Over.

"Landlord," said a transient guest at a cross-roads tavern, as he drew near the end of his dinner, "won't you give me a little more pork to eat with this potato?" A little later he said: "There was more pork than he wanted; let me trouble you for a little more potato to eat with the pork." A short time after: "Well, I declare, I've got some more potato left, and it seems a pity to leave it—just a small piece of pork, if you please." It ran on so for some time. At length the landlord stopped short in front of his guest and remarked: "Look here, stranger, 'tain't no use. I'm willing to do anything in reason to make that pork and potato come out even, but I've made up my mind, the way you eat, it can't be did. You're bound to lap over on one or the other every time. Now, just make up your mind which you'd rather leave, and leave it and quit. I've got enough pork and potatoes, but if you keep on you'll burst."

He Should Be Murdered.

We are sorry indeed to learn that a German chemist has succeeded in making a first-rate brandy out of sawdust. We are a friend of the temperance movement, and we want it to succeed, but what chance will it have when a man can take a rip-saw and go out and get drunk on a fence-rail? What is the use of a prohibitory liquor law if a man is able to make brandy smashes out of the shingles on his roof, or if he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs of his kitchen chairs? You may shut an inebriate out of a gin-shop, and keep him away from taverns, but if he can become uproarous on boiled sawdust and dessicated window-sills, any effort at reform must necessarily be a failure. It will be wise, therefore, if the temperance societies will butcher that German chemist before he goes any further. His recipe ought not to be made public. He should be stuffed with distilled board-yards until he perishes with mania a potu.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of cosiness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No. 638 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B.'s establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is, we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr. Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No: 17 Post street. 3d

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor O. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

MRS. M. C. WHITE, at 652 Market street room 11, is one of the most successful teachers of Music that we have. For beginners on Piano, Organ or Guitar, she is unrivalled, and those that are already advanced will be greatly benefitted by her new method of harmony. 3-G

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programme in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute "FIGARO" thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 513 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautyfying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co,. Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

H. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11r

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed new process, by a

SENSIBLE WOMEN.

The women of San Francisco are just as much in favor of temperance as their sisters in the East, but they have determined to proceed in a more sensible manner. The practice of bodies of women prowling round whisky shops and worrying the proprietors by praying at them, while it may have the temporary effect of closing some of the saloons, can do no lasting good. Besides, there is something revolting in the idea of turning prayer into a nuisance. Toot horns would have the same effect, if the law and public opinion would tolerate their use. It is absurd to claim that the proprietors of saloons in the East, who have closed, have been "converted by prayer," they have simply been badgered into giving up a business which has been rendered unprofitable and unpopular. It was proposed by some hot-headed ones, that the women of San Francisco follow the example of the zealots of the East; but calmer councils have prevailed. The action they have taken, claims the respect and countenance of the respectable portion of the community. On Monday evening, a delegation from the Women's Temperance Union, consisting of thirty-five ladies, came before the Board of Supervisors. They were most respectfully received, and Mayor Otis said, among other things: "Ladies, I will state that you are always welcome. As presiding officer of this Board, you will always have my sympathy." We think that this expression of opinion will be echoed by every honest and intelligent man. Every man likes to call a woman into his councils. Many a man goes to his mother, his wife, or his sister, and gets her ideas on a subject which puzzles him, and her woman's brain will often solve the difficulty. Men have all the "fun" of drinking, while women are the sufferers. Surely, no one can say that woman is stepping "out of her sphere" in interfering in this matter. The Women's Temperance Union suggest that the Board of Supervisors shall restrict the number of drinking houses in this city. They claim that two thousand dram shops are not necessary in a city with a population of 200,000 inhabitants. They also assert, that the Board of Supervisors have the power of lessening the number of dram shops, and should exercise it. We agree with them, and throw out the following suggestion. One liquor saloon in every three blocks would be ample to supply the wants of the liquor-drinking portion of the community. Restrictions on the business would render it a profitable, and comparatively a respectable, one. In London, only a certain number of public houses are allowed to be maintained within a certain district. In a newly-formed neighborhood, the inhabitants send a petition to the magistrate setting forth that John Jones, a citizen of good character, is desirous of starting a house for the sale of wine, beer and spirits, that such a house is needed by them, there being no house of the kind in their vicinity. John Jones, having received the endorsement of a large number of citizens, is granted a license to sell wine, beer and spirits, or perhaps wine and beer alone, the spirit license being denied. This license is liable to forfeiture at any time by John Jones failing to keep order in his house, and allowing it to become a resort for dissolute characters. There are too many men in the liquor business in San Francisco at present; the business is altogether overdone. If the respectable saloon keepers will look at this matter sensibly, we believe that so far from opposing, they will willingly accept, a modification of the license system, which will make it conform somewhat to that of London, England, where the Licensed Victuallers form one of the wealthiest, most respectable and influential bodies in the community, and where a public house keeper is not looked down upon as a nuisance, but as a man who, in accepting the position he occupies, has accepted with it certain responsibilities which make him, at least, as much an instrument for good as for evil.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-T

The "Open Letter."

This is the title of a weekly paper recently started in Vallejo. Its editors are T. A. McCrossen and L. P. Davis. If the people of Vallejo do not sustain such a lively, well-edited paper as the Open Letter, they ought to be ashamed of themselves. In No. 3 is commenced a series of papers entitled "Press Photographs," from which we make the following extract:

THOMAS NEWCOMB.

This remarkable journalist, or rather author, is still young, much younger than people abroad are likely to suppose. But it should be remembered that Dickens had produced his Pickwick Papers, and gained considerable reputation before reaching the age of 25, or thereabouts, and Homer had published several of his most popular ballads, in like comparatively early life. Newcomb is essentially a poet, but his talents first excited public interest and execration by the celebrated Bunglehead Papers, published in the Call, and which were unhesitatingly pronounced by the British reviewers to be the most touching exhibitions of perverted idiocy the human mind had ever wrought. This development of strikingly peculiar talent secured him a steady engagement, and his salary was ultimately increased to $8 a week. For several years this brilliant young genius struggled under the disadvantage of obscurity, his best prose writings being invariably attributed to Olive Harper, while his poems were systematically stolen, and copyrighted by Kendall, an extinct poet, formerly known as the Tupper of Jackass Gulch. The poet Newcomb is a rare example of industry and application, usually writing eighteen hours out of the twenty-four; his rule of life is abstemiousness and neatness of personal appearance; he bathes regularly, and changes his shirt at occasional intervals; rarely takes anything except by invitation, and swears only as a special necessity. His character and habits invite the study of young men about starting in life, without the advantages of wealth, education, or natural ability.

Rather Queer.

The Chronicle, in its notice of the California Theatre in yesterday's issue, said:

Last night a good performance of "Pygmalion and Galatea" to a very bad house. To-night, the first appearance of Miss Neilson, which will make these odds even.

To make these odds even Miss Neilson would have had to give a bad performance to a very good house. This is not, however, what the Chronicle critic intended to say. It is only his queer way of using the English language.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

A New Revelation.

Miss Ellie Wilton has played Cynisca, in "Pygmalion and Galatea," over a score of times, and has always played it admirably. But these performances don't count for anything. The Call critic did not see her in the part until last Monday, and accordingly he expresses his opinion. After praising Morrison's Pygmalion, he says:

His wife Cynisca was personated by Miss Ellie Wilton, and we have rarely seen this lady to so much advantage. In the scene where she appeals to her patroness, the goddess Artemis, to judge between herself and the husband whom she believes has been unfaithful to his marriage vows during her absence, she exhibits an unlooked for force and tragic power. We begin to think that all Miss Wilton lacks is a fitting opportunity, for she sometimes breaks in on the uniformity of her style in a way that justifies us in supposing she has a latent talent that only waits for the occasion.

It can not be set down to Miss Ellie Wilton's discredit that the Call critic has rarely seen her to so much advantage. He might have done so a great many times if he had gone to the California Theatre for the purpose of witnessing her performance. The concluding sentence of this "criticism" is refreshingly cool. "We begin to think, etc." The critic ought to have begun to think long ago. As to Miss Wilton's talent being "latent," it is not; it is exactly the reverse—patent to all who see her act. This is a style of criticism worthy of the Bulletin itself.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.

Miss Neilson's acting in the Balcony Scene is alone worth a visit to the theatre. * * * Miss Neilson is the greatest living representative of Juliet.—New York Herald.

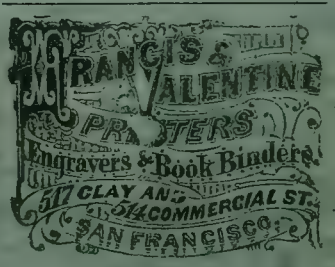
It is justice to say she far excels any interpretation of the character given here for years.—New York Times.

Her passion in the glorious Balcony Scene was whole hearted and devouring. * * * Her tragic passion in the soliloquy before taking the drug was precisely such as an imaginative woman, half crazed by sorrow, danger and apprehension, might feel under such circumstances, and it was not overdone for the sake of showing force.—New York Tribune.

Miss Neilson has made Juliet her own.—The London Times.

It is universally admitted that Miss Neilson is the only Juliet on the stage—London Standard.

Juliet is Miss Neilson's masterpiece. * * * It is a ripe and sustained performance, ascending in the latter acts of the play to a tragic elevation and fire than seems less art than inspiration. * * *



Various stages of fright and horror, too, in the Chamber Scene, were superbly presented, and at one point at least of this scene the face and figure of the actress were charged with an amount of tragic intensity exhibited in these days by no other actress on the stage.—London Athenæum.

AN OPEN LETTE

MARYSVILLE, March 1st, 18

DR. ABORN—DEAR SIR: The last time I was your city, a year ago February, you treated me Catarrh. I had been troubled with the above about THIRTEEN YEARS, and was skeptical of your being able to relieve me. The last time called on you prior to my return home, I promised to inform you whether you had effected permanent or temporary cure. I HAVE NOT SLIGHTEST TRACE OF CATARRH, and as it is over year since I was under your treatment, I think I safe in saying, that you have effected a perma cure in my case. You are at liberty to use letter as you see fit.

Yours Respectfully,
MRS. ELIZBETH SEAFORTH

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

Maguire's California Minstrels in a brilliant first part, George S. Knight in his amusing Dutch stories and songs, Con T. Murphy, Billy Sweetnam, Charles Reed and P. Loomis in the screaming burlesque of "Sig-male-lion and Gal-at-eather," Welsh and Rice in a double jig, and Miss Susan Galton, John Howson and Alfred Kelleher in the very amusing operetta of "Cox and Box," make up an entertainment which cannot fail to suit all tastes. On Friday night, a great bill will be presented for the benefit of Sam Wetherill. In addition to other attractions, Miss Maggie Moore will, by permission of the management of the California Theatre, appear on this occasion.

California Theatre.

An immense audience assembled last night when Miss Neilson made her first appearance on the California stage, and played the role of Juliet, in "Romeo and Juliet." Every portion of the house was packed to suffocation, and many stood during the entire performance. Miss Neilson on making her appearance was received with that hearty burst of welcome always accorded by a San Francisco audience to new comers, and the plaudits were redoubled when the audience realized the surpassing loveliness of the new candidate for their favor. Miss Neilson is superbly handsome, and possesses every advantage of dress to enhance her charms. Such dresses as she wore last night, have seldom been seen on the stage in this city, and a pair of diamond ear-rings representing about $10,000 sent flashes of light all over the house and vied with the brilliancy of the beautiful artiste's eyes. Miss Neilson acquitted herself admirably in the role of Juliet. Her acting was notably good in the balcony scene and in the scene where the nurse retires with a message from Romeo, and in the chamber scene surpassed any actress we have ever seen in the character. She delivered the speech in which Juliet expresses her horror of awakening to life in the tomb and her fears for her sanity in excellent style, representing Juliet as delirious with fright, the intensity of her feelings being heightened, by a preliminary taste of the opiate prepared by Father Lawrence. In the final scene, also, Miss Neilson was very effective; she was called before the curtain at the end of every act, and received a number of floral offerings, bouquets and baskets. Lewis Morrison played Romeo in an earnest and telling manner, and was frequently applauded. Mrs. Judah's Nurse!—what are we to say of it? What can we say, save that it is the best on the stage at the present day—the perfection of acting? Barton Hill presented an excellent impersonation of Mercutio and won a tremendous round of applause for his delivery of the Queen Mab speech. His acting throughout was admirable; he fully realized the character of the light-hearted devil-may-care man about town, and left nothing to be desired. The minuet in the first act was a pleasing feature of the play and was gracefully carried through. Miss Neilson will appear again this evening as Juliet. To-morrow night "As You Like It" will be played, with Miss Neilson as Rosalind.

Platt's Hall.

Madame Agatha States will give her farewell concert at the ball to-morrow night. She will be assisted by Signor Pietro Bacosi, Signor Orlandini, Signor F. Rigo, and Frank Gilder. A very attractive programme will be performed. A large and fashionable audience will doubtless attend to bid adieu to our California prima donna. The box office is now open.

Palace Amphitheatre.

There will be a matinee performance to-day, and this evening a very attractive performance will be given for the benefit of Senorita Millie Tournour, the pretty and daring performer on the trapeze, who has become such a favorite with the public, and who, in her specialty, stands without a rival. All the stars will appear on this occasion in the various acts specified on our first page. The Amphitheatre is crowded nightly, and those who wish to obtain seats must go early.

Bella Union Theatre.

"The R. O.'s Daughter," Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic songs, Moore and Bray in a double clog dance, Miss Louise Somers in ballads, Miss Susie Robinson in comic songs, Johnny Tuers, Matt Kelly and Fred Ritchie in screaming acts, and many other performances will be presented to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Here She Goes and There She Goes," by Frank Mortimore, Walter Parke, Hughey Morton, and Katie Zoe, concludes a very attractive performance given at this house. Ned Buckley, Miss Lotta Gray and Miss Ida May appear nightly. To-morrow night, the very popular comedian, George O. Thompson, will make his reappearance.

Woodward's Gardens.

Ascensions will be made by the captive balloon every day this week. The same will also be a daily exhibition of trained animals and hundreds of other attractions. There will be an extra entertainment on Saturday and Sunday, and also St. Patrick's Day. Harry Andrews has made an engagement with Captain G. Babier, of the Aeronautic Society, Paris, to go up with his immense silk balloon "Le Lecours," which is capable of carrying fourteen persons. Applications for passage can be made at the Gardens.

Sir Walter Raleigh created a consternation when he appeared before his servants smoking a pipe of Tobacco. The sight was a new one to them, and they, as well as the public in general we're slow to learn the use of the Weed. Had they had Tobacco of the quality and perfect flavor which the Perique and Golden Thread Smoking Tobacco of to-day have, smoking would much sooner become almost universal. The Gilroy Tobacco Company (office 304 Pine street), are offering the above-named Tobaccos to the public, and we advise those in want of a good article to give them a trial. 3-5

Drs. Smith and Tuffield are giving a course of Free Lectures to gentlemen on Sexual Physiology and Nervous Diseases, at his Hygeian Hall, 637 California street, every Friday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. A part of the evening is devoted to examining and prescribing for patients. Dr. Smith gives phrenological examinations in regard to health to invalids daily, from 9 to 4 P. M., free. 2-L

[FOR "FIGARO"]

VERY LIKE A WAIL.

BY B. S. HILL.

No more morning cocktails, no more whiskies straight,
No more cooling absynthe, to soothe an addled pate;
For in the far, far distance, there sounds a bugle blast—
And women armed with parchment say: "The day for drinking's past."
Is it because it's not the thing for womankind to drink?
If so, there's room at home for work, at least we're led to think
That in those social gatherings which few men ever see,
There's a beverage after drink far stronger than Bohea.
Already in the Eastern towns they've made a fearful breach,
And many a man will curse this gospel that they preach.
Saloons will be abolished; and must it here be said
That coffee slops, for tea and slops will rise up in their stead!
How many hundred written lies, and oaths will broken be
By wicked folks, who on the sly, like whisky more than tea.
For pen and ink and paper, wont put a stop to drinking,
And the chosen few, who think it will had better give up thicking.
What will become of bartenders, of publicans and sinners?
Of shocking bums, of smoking rums, free lunches, punches, dinners,
Where o'er a well-spread table, convivial friendship reigns,
Old tales are told, new toasts proposed, good feeling never wanes?
We cannot say, "God speed you," although you may be right;
For men will come, and men will go, but alas they will get "tight."

A Sight Not Often Seen.

A day or two since we visited Col. Andrews' establishment, at 221 Montgomery street, and were surprised at the immense stock of precious gems that the Colonel keeps. There were—

"Great pearls, milk-white, shining like the moon;
Emeralds, grass green;
Sapphires, like skies of June;
And one great diamond outshone them all,
Large as a pigeon's egg, and clear as wine—
When held before the sun a gem divine."

A half day could not be more profitably spent than in a visit to the Colonel's emporium. If one does not wish to purchase, the genial Colonel takes great pleasure in showing his immense stock to visitors, and explaining the intricate workmanship and the artistic designs necessary to produce even one of the ornaments that go to make up his large and valuable stock.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study. To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street, has attained a decree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Lucky Number

Fortunio, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rummel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3n

Chinamen Below Par.

The Consolidated Tobacco Company of California not only employ white labor but are putting upon the market the finest flavored and best made Cigars ever offered on this coast. Mr. Briggs, the genial Manager of the Company, at the office, 304 Pine street, will be pleased to have the public generally call and sample the Cigars, and learn the low prices which they furnish really good cigar for. 3-5

For a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once and you will be satisfied. 2-0

Something Like a Criticism.

The Sacramento Bee has a musical critic. He describes the Wadsworth Concert which took place at the Metropolitan Theatre last week: An enormous and very shiny and very cold piano glared from the bleak stage. Eight o'clock had passed some time and the mysterious recesses behind the two familiar scenery of the Metropolitan gave no signs of life. The band men grouped themselves in little knots about the main entrance, and it was solemnly bruited around that the bitch was a peremptory demand on their part for coin. Finally Signor Lucchesi came in, bowed, threw the piano wide open with a bang that intimated that the audience might certainly have been larger without crowding. Then he bowed, jumped on the stool and played a romanza. He would chase that romanza savagely up the keys till he got it in one corner, then he would thump the life out of it, then chase it down into the deep bass corner and make it roar, then he would corral it with both hands in the center of the key-board and play with it like a cat with a mouse, finally he would go for that key-board as if he wanted to bankrupt Mr. Cooper, its proprietor, but having failed to burst it he jumped up, bowed again and retired into the threadbare forests at the side. Then the great baritone Manousi sang a splendid song in the sweet Italian language, the words of which were very beautiful. Miss Wadsworth sang a thrilling and trilling song, called Aria, in the same soft dialect, and being recalled sang a Highland Scotch song. All great singers, when encored, invariably sing a Highland song, as in that mountainous music they can usually get up higher even than in Italian. Usually Annie Laurie is selected. Future statistics will prove that Annie Laurie has been the cause of more misery in this world than rum has. Then there was more music on the piano. The second part was exceedingly like the first part. There was another savage encounter with the piano, an Aria, a romanza, etc., etc., etc., and in a few minutes, to the mutual satisfaction of all, the concert ended.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of cosiness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 6.8 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No. 17 Post street. 3d

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Mission streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

MRS. M. C. WHITE, at 662 Market street room 11, is one of the most successful teachers of Music that we have. For beginners on Piano, Organ or Guitar, she is unrivalled, and those that are already advanced will be greatly benefitted by her new method of harmony. 3-6

THURSDAY..... .....MARCH 12, 1874

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programme in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute "FIGARO" thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The basis of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 413 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphar, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

M. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11x

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. A Biography.

The Vallejo Town Talk has the following biography of one of our handsomest literateurs, who was modeled after the famous statue of the Fighting Gladiator:

SANDS FORMAN.

This rising young journalist succeeded to the editorial chair of the Examiner, and the unbounded popularity and influence of that journal have long been attributable to his genius and energy, though ostensibly under the management of Phil. Roach. His literary style is known as the composite, involving an artistic manipulation of scissors and paste-pot. In this sort of mosaic composition he has no living rival. Mr. Forman was originally apprenticed to the bill-sticking business, and in that profession he developed those remarkable talents that have distinguished him. The celebrated phrenologist, Fowler, in examining the organs of this young man, was struck with astonishment, and made the remark that he had never met with but one similar cranial formation. The base of the brain was located perpendicularly from the points of the ears, and indicated great length of head. Mr. Forman has published several poems, and the touching ballad, "Dear mother, one more pancake ere I die," will be remembered as one of his most popular productions. He is also the editor of the choice family almanac published by Dr. Tozer. The success of this sterling young journalist illustrates how virtue is its own reward, and eternal indolence is the price of infamy.

A Woman's Victory.

The San Jose Mercury says: The bill making woman eligible to educational offices, has passed both Houses of the Legislature, and only wants the Governor's signature to become a law. As the Governor will, in all probability, sign the bill, we congratulate the women of California on their victory over prejudice, intolerance and nonsense. For this grand step in the march of Reform, they are mainly indebted to those energetic champions of the Woman cause, Mrs. Knox Mrs. Watkins and Miss Sallie Hart, of this country, who have worked for the passage of the bill with a will and to a purpose well deserving of success. With the Senator of this country dead-set against them, and with his "coal dust," "living tissues" and "tar-bucket" theories to overcome, they nevertheless succeeded in enlisting in their cause the brains and influence of both Houses. We rejoice in their success. Truly, the world moves.

Hardly Safe.

J. H. Cook, who recently made the murderous attack on his wife at Sacramento, has made several attempts in the city prison to commit suicide. On the last occasion a card was found by his side, on which was written the following: "Oh, take me to my wife, that I may see her once more before I die and ask her forgiveness. This is my last and only request."

This gentleman carved his wife with a pocket knife. We don't know whether he ought to be taken to see his wife before he dies. It seems not improbable that he is desirous of having another show to cook his better half's goose. Some of these husbands are so deceitful.

Disinterested Advice.

The editor of the Healdsburg Flag says there is a fine opening for a boot and shoe factory in that town. These country editors have no consciences. Just because the Flag man has half a dozen children whom he would be able to shoe, without expenditure of cash, by puffing a boot and shoe manufactory, he wants one established there. If his wife wanted a piano, he would say there was a fine opening for a piano manufactory. The next thing he will be wanting will be something for himself—a whisky distillery.

Missionary Work.

The American Bible Society has supplied the Santa Barbara hotels with Bibles. Now there is a chance of some of the Santa Barbarians becoming converted, if they don't bore holes in the Bibles and make them into cribbage boards.

Cheap Cows.

A gentleman in Walla Walla, W. T., says he can buy all the cattle he wants at $10 a head. Nevertheless, good beef brings twenty-five cents a pound in San Francisco.

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D. Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the acme of perfection has been reached. 2-x

Chinamen Below Par.

The Consolidated Tobacco Company of California not only employ white labor but are putting upon the market the finest flavored and best made Cigars ever offered on this coast. Mr. Briggs, the genial Manager of the Company, at the office, 304 Pine street, will be pleased to have the public generally call and sample the Cigars, and learn the low prices which they furnish really good cigar for. 3-x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 510 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

[From the Danbury News.]

Prof. Winchell has discovered a new planet.—Exchange. What did he slip on?

The placidity of expression worn by a man who is "Next" in a full barber shop cannot be counterfeited.

"What is the best recipe for nose bleed?"—J. X. Hit it against something.

It is said that this will be a tough Spring. We must have a tough Spring once in a while or we will run short of a certain grade of Spring chickens.

A Brookfield man with a son who is unfortunately tongue-tied, came to Danbury, Monday, to get employment for the boy as brakeman on the railroad.

There are various kinds of industries which instinctively commend themselves to the public approval. One of them is selling needle-books in smoking cars.

It is mortally aggravating to a boy with a snow ball in his hand, to chase another boy a mile for the purpose of hitting him, and then miss him by about eight feet.

The only merit possessed by some contributions we receive is, that they were never before in print. The merit is so slight that we never have the heart to rob them of it.

This is the last day of Winter, and to-morrow comes Spring—the dear, blessed Spring, with its smiling skies, blossoming flowers, carroling birds, and pains in the chest.

A Toronto man writes us that "he has heard a great deal said of 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' but at a Masonic gathering in that city the other evening, he saw sixteen Knights in one barroom, and no notice was taken of it."

There are some people whom no sense impresses. To see a man trying to warm his feet through a pair of rubbers, and persistently attributing the failure to the stove, is to feel like knocking his head off, "and leave his body standing."

A little boy in a Nelson street family caught his foot in some worsted with which his sister was working the sentence, "God is Love," in perforated card board, and got a crack on the ear that will lay him up for a fortnight—if it doesn't injure him for life.

A dispatch to Officer Crosby, Friday, directed him to arrest a man on the 9:45 A. M. train. The officer found several men with black curly hair, but none with black curly eyes, so no arrest was made.

We are daily in receipt of curiously constructed compositions. We have one on the fortunes of a lover who died on the eve of his marriage. It is pathetic in its nature but it is so awkwardly constructed that we are obliged to decline it. One passage is worth preserving, we think. It refers to the dead lover who is arrayed in his wedding dress for the burial. It says: "There was a look of great pain on his white face as if the coat pinched him under the arms." However, we hope it didn't.

A Sight Not Often Seen.

A day or two since we visited Col. Andrews' establishment, at 221 Montgomery street, and were surprised at the immense stock of precious gems that the Colonel keeps. There were—

"Great pearls, milk-white, shining like the moon;
Emeralds, grass green:
Sapphires, like skies of June;
And one great diamond outshone them all,
Large as a pigeon's egg, and clear as wine—
When held before the sun a gem divine."

A half day could not be more profitably spent than in a visit to the Colonel's emporium. If one does not wish to purchase, the genial Colonel takes great pleasure in showing his immense stock to visitors, and explaining the intricate workmanship and the artistic designs necessary to produce even one of the ornaments that go to make up his large and valuable stock.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

Stage Struck.

At Christmas the manager of a Liverpool theatre advertised for good-looking singing ladies. He received three hundred replies. A country hotel chambermaid swore she was full of histrionic talent and cut a good figure. A titled lady, with £7,000 per year, offered to bring her own maid and buy her own dresses. A laundry maid wanted a part where she could tend dairy, and a Taunton young lady sent a yard of Auburn hair as a specimen of her charms.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy steps and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The beautiful and accomplished Miss Neilson appeared for the second time in this city, in the role of Juliet, last night, before a large and fashionable audience. To-night, Shakspeare's charming pastoral entitled "As You Like It" will be produced, with Miss Neilson as Rosalind, Miss Millie Wilton as Celia, Mrs. C. E. Saunders as Audrey, Lewis Morrison as Orlando, Henry Edwards as the melancholy Jacques, and a generally strong cast which is published in full on our first page. This play will be presented in the same perfect style which has characterized its production on former occasions.

Opera House.

Billy Sweetnam, Billy Welch and Con T. Murphy supply plenty of fun, in the first part, at this house, and popular songs are sung by B. Montague, W. F. Baker and J. G. Russell. In the second part George S. Knight appears in his specialties, the burlesque of "Pygmalion and Galatea" is performed, Welch and Rice present a double clog dance, and Miss Susan Galton, John Howson and Alfred Kelleher, wind up the evening's entertainment in the amusing operetta of "Cox and Box."

Platt's Hall.

The farewell concert of Madame Agatha States, the California prima donna, of whom we are all so proud, will be given at the above-named hall this evening. We are sure that there will be a large audience present to do honor to the singer, and to enjoy the excellent programme arranged for the occasion. Mme. States will be assisted by Signor Pietro Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Signor Rigo, and Frank Gilder. The programme is published in full on our first page.

Sam Wetherill's Benefit.

Great attractions will be offered at the Opera House to-morrow night, when the popular treasurer of the establishment will take his annual benefit. The favorite comedienne, Miss Maggie Moore, who has just returned from a highly successful star engagement in Salt Lake City, will appear in a new song and dance written for her expressly for this occasion by Billy Welch, Harrington and McGlone will appear in song and dance, and the great combination company will present a programme of rare excellence. There will be a grand balloon ascension from the front of the theatre at half-past seven o'clock.

Palace Amphitheatre.

Senorita Millie Tournour had a good house for her benefit last night, in spite of the gloomy weather, and an excellent performance was given. To-night, Mons. Vincent, the French McLaughlin, will wrestle with Mons. Perrier, the "strong man," for the championship of the Pacific slope. These great athletes will wrestle according to the Roman rule, known as "catch as catch can." Independent of this great feature all the stars will appear. Fred O'Brien, Wooda Cooke, George Holland, Miss Helen Cooke, Millie Adelaide, and Leon and Laisce, as in their great specialty acts. Every one should see these artistes before they proceed East to fill their engagement with Barnum, Van Amburgh and other Eastern showmen for the Spring and Summer touring season. The Dockwill, and Keneble, the funny French clown, will probably succeed the present stars.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Alice Ross in serio-comic gems, Moore and Bray in song and dance, Ed. Murray in his "Budget of Fun," Miss Jennie Johnson, Tommy Barton, John Woodard and others in "The R. O.'s Daughter," Johnny Tuers, Fred Ritchie, Matt Kelly and others in amusing acts, and other attractions will be offered at this house to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

To-night, in addition to other attractions, the favorite comedian George C. Thompson will make his reappearance at this house, and Miss Irene Walters will make her first appearance. Ned Buckley, Harry Davey and others will appear in popular acts, Miss Ida May, Miss Lotta Gray and others in songs, and a very varied entertainment will be given.

Woodward's Gardens.

Ascensions will be made by the captive balloon every day this week. There will also be a daily exhibition of trained animals and hundreds of other attractions. There will be an extra entertainment on Saturday and Sunday, and also St. Patrick's Day. Harry Andrews has made an engagement with Captain G. Barbier, of the Aeronautic Society, Paris, to go up with his immense silk balloon "Le Lecomte," which is capable of carrying fourteen persons. Applications for passage can be made at the Gardens.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest, cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys' Clothing is H. Fesser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The Matinee Fruit Store.

Keeps the choicest varieties of domestic and imported Fruits, Jellies, Confectionery, etc., and sells at the lowest rates. Pure, healthy Apple Cider, fresh from the press every day. No 409 Bush street, one door above Kearny. 1-y

Sir Walter Raleigh created a consternation when he appeared before his servants smoking a pipe of Tobacco. The sight was a new one to them, and they, as well as the public in general were slow to learn the use of the Weed. Had they had Tobacco of the quality and perfect flavor which the Perique and Golden Thread Smoking Tobaccos of to-day have, smoking would much sooner become almost universal. The Gilroy Tobacco Company (office 304 Pine street), are offering the above-named Tobaccos to the public, and we advise those in want of a good article to give them a trial. 3-y

Half of the pain and annoyance of a dental operation is obviated by going to a thorough practitioner. We had occasion to call on H. H. Tarrell, Surgeon Dentist, 306 Kearny street, and can cheerfully recommend him. 3-y

Dr. Reese Pallet Gold Crowns for broken

Crime on the Stage.

One of the industrious triflers who supplies the Figaro with stories of the green-room and theatrical gossip generally, has been at the pains to compile some statistics which are not without their interest. They show that dramatic authors in France are not altogether exempt from that straining after the sensational which is the prevailing vice of modern literature. Fresh from a visit to the Porte St. Martin, which M. d'Ennery has supplied with a drama of the most approved fashion, he points out that in the numerous pieces written by that gentleman there are included 18 widows, 16 sons, and 2 daughters of men who have been guillotined, 196 orphans, 60 blind persons, 10 persons shamming blindness, 93 abductions, 22 fratricides, 8 parricides, 145 foundlings, 162 children lost, 116 children stolen, and 124 changelings; 212 forged wills, 216 robberies of note cases, 198 duels with swords, 163 with pistols, 8 with knives, and 10 with hatchets; 13 cases of arson, and 123 of arson accompanied by murder; 136 poisonings, 46 drownings, 26 convicts rightly and 62 wrongly sentenced, 80 convicts set at liberty; and 35 escaped from prison; 77 cases of asphyxiation, 115 escapes from violent death, 206 cases of lunacy, and 259 of adultery. This, no doubt, is a formidable list of crimes, but the critic in question should read some of our popular novels, and he would arrive at results even more startling.

By the Sea.

A Yale student, who is evidently in the "journalistic" department, writes a twelve verse poem which is entitled "We kissed each other by the sea." "Well, what of it?" asks a Western journalist; "the seaside is no better for such practices than any other locality." In fact, we have put in some very sweet work of that kind on the tow path of a canal in our time, but did not say anything about it in print.

The Light of Other Days.

Looking over the life of Colly Cibber recently, we came across the following extract:

"This theatre will be lighted to-night for the first time by an entirely new arrangement, transparent saucer-shaped glasses will be suspended from the ceiling, and these glasses will be filled with sweet smelling oils on which floating tapers will be arranged so that the light will fall upon the audience through the glass, giving a subdued, mellow light that will be vastly pleasing to all, besides which the scented oil will be delightful to the sense of smell."

Suppose the audience of that day could be present now and see the modern lighting up of theatres, residences, etc., where they use the improved Sun Burners manufactured by Messrs McNally & Hawkins, at 332 and 334 Pine street, they would think that witchcraft had been employed, else M. & H. would not have been enabled to rival the sun in its brilliancy. A stroll through their Pine street establishment would astonish the ancients and induce the modern people to give them their custom whenever they were in want of any Plumbing' Chandeliers, Pendants, Brackets, Fancy Basins, etc., 3-z

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study. To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 25 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

The Lucky Number!

Fortania, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and four-and-one as her symbol. W. E. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3 B

For a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try it once and you will be satisfied. 2-c

J. FIORI, at 211 Montgomery street, has an immense stock of Men's and Boy's ready-made suits, and a full line of Furnishing Goods which he will offer at exceedingly low terms

"Box and Cox."

"B.," writing on the subject of "farces," in the New York Arcadian, says: One of the best things about farces is that you are not called upon to criticise them, that, in fact, you can't criticise them; they are not amenable to any rules; all that is asked of the farce maker is that he shall make us laugh; he can be as absurd, as ridiculous, as improbable, as impossible, as boisterous as he pleases in the conduct of his story and the introduction of his characters. The less regularity, less method, less naturalness there is in his production the better. Recall that richest of jokes at the end of "Box and Cox," which runs thus:

"Cox. 'Box!'

Box. 'Cox!' (about to embrace—Box stops, seizes Cox's hand, and looks eagerly into his face). 'You'll excuse the apparent insanity of the remark, but the more I gaze on your features, the more I'm convinced that you're my long lost brother.'

Cox. 'The very observation I was going to make to you!'

Box. 'Ah—tell me—in mercy tell me—have you such a thing as a strawberry mark on your left arm?'

Cox. 'No!'

Box. 'Then it is he!' (They rush into each other's arms.)"

The "then it is he!" is such a terrible and ridiculous non sequitur from the "No!" of Cox that you are immediately convulsed with laughter. If Cox had replied that he had a strawberry mark on his left arm, the probabilities would have been preserved, and you would not even have smiled. I should like to have seen Morton, when that conceit entered his head; if I had been he, I am quite sure that I should have rolled off of my chair, and laughed until my sides were sore.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they rank their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of cosiness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No 618 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B's establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is, we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No. 17 Post street. 3d

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

MRS. M. C. WHITE, at 652 Market street room 11, is one of the most successful teachers of Music that we have. For beginners on Piano, Organ or Guitar, she is unrivalled, and those that are already advanced will be greatly benefitted by her new method of harmony. 3-c

WHERE WE CIRCULATE "FIGARO."

Everybody knows that "FIGARO" has been distributed free for years very generally throughout the city, and has been circulated as programmes in every theatre and place of amusement in San Francisco; and we want everybody to know that "FIGARO" is always distributed on the Oakland Ferry-boats that bring the passengers by the great overland train to this city, and is placed in their hands every day—Sundays included. That it is mailed free every day to all the leading hotels on the Pacific Coast. That "FIGARO" is circulated by Taylor & Co., the Oakland bill distributors, every day throughout the central portions of Oakland. That it is also distributed at Sacramento and on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to this city, and in all towns on the river side, as may be seen by the annexed certificate from A. H. Nahor, distributing agent on the steamers:

This is to certify that I have agreed to, and do, distribute "FIGARO" thoroughly on the Sacramento steamers on their down trips to San Francisco, and have made arrangements to have it generally distributed in the towns of Benicia, Martinez, Collinsville, Sherman Island, Rio Vista, Courtland, Antioch, Pittsburg Landing, New York Landing, and in all of the hotels, saloons, public places, etc., in Sacramento City. ALFRED H. NAHOR.

March 4th, 1874.

Arrangements are being made for further circulation on other lines of travel, so that "FIGARO" shall be "here, there and everywhere," and be placed in the hands of all strangers, families and business men en route to this city.

The Ladies of To-day and 30 Years Ago.

Thirty years ago the advantages one could have were few compared with to-day. Then, if a lady was troubled with any complaints incidental to womanhood, she was obliged to trust to the various methods then in vogue, and seldom with any relief being derived. The bases of nearly all the medicines then were mineral. The superiority and safety of vegetable over mineral medicine has been demonstrated by the medical faculty all over the world. The Marsh Truss Co. (31 years standing) have in connection with their Truss department a Medical Infirmary, where they make ladies cases a specialty. Their medicines are all purely vegetable. Ladies troubled with delicate diseases should call at once on the Marsh Truss Co., 613 Montgomery street, and have their cases attended to. Special consulting room for ladies. 2-x

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

W. Peyser 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11v

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-z

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1z

THE NEW FLAGGING opposite the door of California Theatre is now finished, and parties desirous of obtaining nice new cider and fine fruits can do so (at the Matinee Fruit Store) without endangering their corns. 1-x

The Poetical Alta.

The Atlantic Monthly says the old swindle about hearing the murmur of the sea in a shell is a humbug. For, if you will hold a beaver hat or a goblet or a pickle bottle or an oyster-can to your ear, you will hear the same delicious murmur.

The Alta may well rejoice that this "swindle" has been exposed. All these poetical ideas are "swindles." They have nothing to do with commerce, or the Pacific Railroad, or Savage mining stock, or tan yards. What is the good of them anyhow. For the satisfaction of the Alta, we would state, that the old swindle about a child's smiling in its sleep, being a sign that the angels are whispering to it, is also a humbug. It is very often wind on the darling's stomach. Then that old swindle about there being a crock of gold at the foot of every rainbow, is a humbug too. The Alta might delight the souls of the gradgrinds of San Francisco by publishing a whole column of exposures of old swindles which are humbugs. Shakespeare is full of old swindles of this kind. Probably the above important discovery was the only thing in the Atlantic Monthly which the Alta man thought worthy of notice. A paper like the Alta is a blessing to any community, and the people of San Francisco cannot be too proud of it.

A Wide-Spread Belief.

The Spiritualists claim that their numbers are constantly increasing. It is claimed that there are now 9,000,000 believers in this doctrine in the United States. Judge Edmunds and Andrew Jackson Davis agreed upon this figure, and Mrs. Emma Hardinge puts it at 11,000,000. Ten years ago, Davis and his wife took the initiative towards the organization of the Spiritualists into a distinct sect. There is no creed to which they agree and no great diversity of opinion exists among those who are ranked among Spiritualists.

Not Angelic Harmony.

The New York Dispatch says: The young lady who forwarded to us the poem entitled, "The Angels are Listening to Me," is probably laboring under a mistake. We do not believe that even the best-tempered angel would listen to a song that makes "father" rhyme with "water," "sad regret" with "heavenly gate," and "agreeable" with "feeble." Even the fallen angels would gnash their teeth in agony over such dissonance.

We Don't See It.

An exchange says:

The game laws of Missouri punish the destroyers of birds' nests, but give the birds no protection. That's about as logical as to hang a man who burns a bed, and to regard him as a hero if he kills the occupant.

The object of this is evidently to teach the birds to stay at home. If they don't want to be killed they can stay in their nests.

The Lucky Number

Fortunia, the Goddess of Luck, must have designated one hundred and forty-four as her symbol. W. B. Mayhew believes in the number. He drew the second grand prize in the last lottery on that number, and then moved his large and complete stock of Drugs, Perfumes, etc., to 144 Fourth street. Naturally happy and free-hearted, he continues in business for the pleasure it affords him. He is actually giving a splendid Sachet Package of Rimmel's or Lubin's to every customer that comes to his store. 3 B

Not Discouraged.

In place of being disheartened by the long spell of stormy weather that we have had, G. D Morse, 417 Montgomery street, made the best of the matter, and to be in readiness for pleasant weather has perfected his "Art Palace," which, as the public well know, has been "Par Excellence" heretofore. A visit to his Parlors and an examination of his new style of Photographs, Crayons, etc., will show that the same of perfection has been reached. 2-x

Chinamen Below Par.

The Consolidated Tobacco Company of California not only employ white labor but are putting upon the market the finest flavored and best made Cigars ever offered on this coast. Mr. Briggs, the general Manager of the Company, at the office, 304 Pine street, will be pleased to have the public generally call and sample the Cigars, and learn the low prices which they furnish really good cigar for. 3-z

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. z

The Poor Rope-Dancer's Exploit.

In the humbler classes of society the most beautiful sparks of virtue often shine. A fire broke out in a house in Alencon, the flames of which made rapid progress and produced dreadful ravages. An entire family was saved by an unknown man, who scaled the walls with wonderful agility, treading with dexterity the burning beams, and who, from an abyss of fire, extricated victim after victim, in the midst of acclamations from the spectators.

This man was Joseph Plege, who exercised the humble position of rope-dancer; and it was the agility and dexterity developed by his occupation that enabled him to save the family by venturing on narrow planks and moving surfaces to snatch them from the flames.

The company to which Plege belonged were preparing to leave Alencon, but their departure was delayed to give him a benefit. The theatre was crowded in every part, and thunders of applause greeted the courageous rope-dancer, who, covered with burns and bruises, endeavored to merit the enthusiasm by which he was overwhelmed.

When the receipts, which were considerable, were handed to him, Plege presented the whole amount to the family he had saved. "These poor people," said he, "are ruined; what good shall I have done to have saved them from the flames, if I leave them to the horrors of starvation?"

The authorities gave a medal of honor to the poor man who had displayed so much humanity, devotion and virtue.

Pardonable Tyranny.

The latest specimen of man's tyranny is credited to Quincy, Ill. Fourteen fathers of that city have signed a pledge not to allow their daughters to take music lessons until they know how to make good bread. This is a striking example of the truth of the statement of a woman at the Vineland Convention, that the moment a mother puts pantalettes on her daughter, she makes her the slave of the portion of her offspring who wear pantaloons. Yet, much as we deprecate the vile tyranny of the Quincy fathers, when that young female who lives next door to us commences mashing the piano, and shrieking as though she were having her back hair extracted, we can not help wishing that her father had been a vile tyrant and a base despot. We'd have been happier, even if she had been tyrannized over and crushed into the earth.

Make-Believe Blowers.

The Marysville Appeal is responsible for the following good bit: "A story has been circulated that an Albany chap got a situation in Sullivan's band and 'played' with them for two weeks, when it was discovered that he didn't know a note. He fooled them by puffing out his cheeks and making believe play. There are quite a number of make-believe 'blowers' in our legislative band at Sacramento. We have not heard a 'note' during the session."

A Sight Not Often Seen.

A day or two since we visited Col. Andrews' establishment, at 221 Montgomery street, and were surprised at the immense stock of precious gems that the Colonel keeps. There were—

"Great pearls, milk-white, shining like the moon;
Emeralds, grass green;
Sapphires, like skies of June;
And one great diamond outshone them all,
Large as a pigeon's egg, and clear as wine—
When held before the sun a gem divine."

A half day could not be more profitably spent than in a visit to the Colonel's emporium. If one does not wish to purchase, the genial Colonel takes great pleasure in showing his immense stock to visitors, and explaining the intricate workmanship and the artistic designs necessary to produce even one of the ornaments that go to make up his large and valuable stock.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to E. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

An Indian Poet.

One of Walt Whitman's poems has been translated into Danish. The critics appear to think that the author is an Indian, as they say that the world will not regret the rapid destruction of a race that could produce such stuff and believe it to be poetry." This is complimentary to Ralph Waldo Emerson and three or four other lunatics in this country.

Coast News.

The Duchess of Geneva lies in precarious health at Utica, N. Y., and is attended with great anxiety and medical care. She is the eighth of her line, and worth $40,000—a high price for a cow.

Not Much Change.

John Doe of Massachusetts has had his name changed by the Legislature of that State to John Kerr—which is a distinction without any difference, except perhaps as to the size of the animal.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

California Theatre.

This theatre was thronged last night, when Miss Adelaide Neilson made her appearance as Rosalind in Shakespeare's play of "As You Like It." As performed at the California Theatre with the adjuncts of beautiful scenery and excellent singing by the best vocalists in the city, this play affords a delightful evening's entertainment. Miss Neilson is a perfect realization of Shakespeare's heroine. She acts and reads the part extremely well, and as regards appearance, surpasses any one who has ever attempted it. She plays Rosalind in high spirits from beginning to end, nothing can damp them, there is nothing serious in life to her; she would never pine away in love, even if its course did not run as smooth as hers does. She is bewitchingly lovely and loveable, and the delight of all beholders. Miss Neilson was admirably supported by Miss Ellie Wilton as Celia, who looked charmingly, and dressed magnificently in the first act, and looked hardly pretty at all, and dressed very unbecomingly in the other acts. As to her acting, it was capital, and she bore off her full share of the honors. Lewis Morrison did some good acting as Orlando, and the wrestling match was very effectively rendered by him and H. McComb, who played Charles the Wrestler. Henry Edwards read and acted the part of Jacques with his accustomed ability, and won a round of applause for The Seven Ages. J. C. Williamson played Touchstone better than he ever has before, bringing out the philosophical side of the character with much skill. Mrs. C. R. Saunders was excellent as Audrey. John Wilson acted the role of the banished Duke well, E. J. Buckley made a good Corin and Miss Carrie Wyatt a very pleasing Phoebe. Joseph Maguire, whose delicious tenor is heard too seldom on the stage, and an excellent chorus of thirteen voices led by Stephen Leach, sang "What Shall He Have Who Killed the Deer," "Under the Greenwood Tree," and "Blow, Blow Thou Wintry Wind," in a style which rendered these glees a perfect treat to all lovers of music. Miss Neilson read the epilogue charmingly, and was called out at the close of the play, as she was indeed at the termination of every act. This charming pastoral will be played at the matinee to-morrow and again in the evening. To-night the evening's entertainment will consist of "Romeo and Juliet," with Miss Neilson as Juliet.

Opera House.

Ever since it was known that this evening was fixed for the annual benefit of Sam Wetherill, the popular treasurer of this house, there has been a steady demand for seats on that occasion, and now nearly every seat in the house is engaged. Mr. Wetherill is determined that the public shall enjoy themselves to-night, and presents a bill comprising extraordinary attractions all of which are duly set forth on our first page. We may mention that before the performance inside commences, there will be a grand balloon ascension from the front of the theatre for the benefit of the general public. Among the features of the performance inside, will be the first appearance of Miss Maggie Moore since her return from Salt Lake City. She will perform a song and dance written expressly for her for this occasion by Billy Welch. Harrington and McGlone, the song and dance men have volunteered and will appear, and the Susan Galton Opera Bouffe Troupe, and Maguire's California Minstrels will present a very attractive entertainment. If the Opera House were larger Sam Wetherill would have a bigger benefit, as the audience to-night will only be limited by the size of the theatre. An excellent programme will be presented at the matinee to-morrow.

California Theatre—Opera Night.

On Sunday night the beautiful opera of "Martha" will be presented by Madame Inez Fabbri, Signor Pietro Bacci, Miss Anna Elzer, Signor Orlandini, and E. Rothermich. The chorus and orchestra will be under the direction of Prof. Mulder-Fabbri. To enhance the attraction of the opera, the wonderful Giraids have been engaged, and will appear in the Market scene in the fourth act. This will probably be the last appearance in this city of these extraordinary artistes.

Dramatic Entertainment and Ball.

To-morrow evening a grand amateur dramatic and musical entertainment and ball will be given at Platt's Hall, to augment the funds of the Hebrew Ladies Sewing Society. The performance will be under the supervision of Lewis Morrison, of the California Theatre, and the committee of arrangements comprises some of the leading merchants of the city. These ladies give their time to making clothes for babies and shrouds for the dead. They call upon the public to provide material for their willing fingers to work on. We think the public will not be backward in this, and confidently anticipate that Platt's Hall will be crowded. The box office is open to-day at the Hall.

Platt's Hall.

Madame Agatha States gave her farewell concert at this hall last night. We regret to say that the distinguished prima donna did not have as large an audience as she deserved. The programme was an excellent one and was well carried out. Mme. States was in splendid voice and sang admirably, and Signor Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Signor Rego, and Frank Gilder, performed their portion of the programme perfectly.

Bella Union Theatre.

In addition to its corps of specialty artistes, this theatre now possesses a strong force of dramatic artistes. A new programme will be performed to-night, and a prominent feature will be the two-act drama of "Two Chimes; or, Ireland and America," in which Ed. Murray will appear as Jimmy Finnegan, John Woodard as Captain Dancer, Miss Alice Ross as Nellie Finnegan, Miss Jennie Johnson as Peggy Anderson, Matt Kelly as Cato, and Miss Fanny Hooker as Judy. A capital first part will be given, and an olio of acts, songs, and dances by Johnny Tuers, Fred Ritchie, Miss Susie Robinson, Moore and Bray, Miss Maggie St. Clair, and other favorite artistes.

Buckley's Varieties.

The favorite comedian, Geo. C. Thompson, received a hearty welcome on making his reappearance at this house last night, and Miss Irene Walters, who made her first appearance, was well received. A great bill will be presented to-night. Ned Buckley, Miss Ida May, Geo. C. Thompson and all the old favorites will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen

Palace Amphitheatre.

This spacious place of amusement was thronged last night. The programme was an excellent one throughout, comprising the great feat of La Perche, by Howard Dorr and son, leaping by Fred O'Brien and company, a slack wire act by Miss Adelaide, a pony hurdle act by Johnny Cooke, and a great variety of other performances. The great performance of the evening was the wrestling match between Mons. Vincent and Mons. Perrier. This was one of the most exciting performances ever given in the arena, and roused the spectators to enthusiastic applause. The two men are models of symmetry and giants in their strength. The match afforded a striking contrast to the tame affair which drew so many to Platt's Hall, recently. There will be another contest between these celebrated athletes to-night, and there will doubtless be an equally large attendance. The programme for to-morrow afternoon and evening is referred to below.

A Deserving Testimonial.

Manager John Wilson, the enterprising proprietor of the Palace Amphitheatre, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, tendered to him by all the Company and attachees of this establishment, to-morrow afternoon and evening, when one of the greatest bills of the season will be offered, including all the star acts by the star artistes of this excellent company. It will also be the occasion of the first and only appearances here of the Baby Elephant, the smallest animal of its species in the United States—the pet of the ladies and children at Central Park, New York, and the most sociable elephant in the world, together with a number of other attractions which will be found in the programme to-morrow. We know of no man in the profession more deserving of a bumper at the hands of the public than John Wilson, whose enterprise and energy has created for the convenience of the amusement public of San Francisco one of the most comfortable amphitheatres in America, and has brought here the finest troupe of equestrian artistes that has ever crossed the continent.

Woodward's Gardens.

Ascensions will be made by the captive balloon every day this week. There will also be a daily exhibition of trained animals and hundreds of other attractions. There will be an extra entertainment on Saturday and Sunday, and also St. Patrick's Day. Harry Andrews has made an engagement with Captain G. Barbier, of the Aeronautic Society, Paris, to go up with his immense silk balloon "Le Lecomte," which is capable of carrying fourteen persons. Applications for passage can be made at the Gardens.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Light of Other Days.

Looking over the life of Colly Cibber recently, we came across the following extract:

"This theatre will be lighted to-night for the first time by an entirely new arrangement, transparent saucer-shaped glasses will be suspended from the ceiling, and these glasses will be filled with sweet smelling oils on which floating tapers will be arranged so that the light will fall upon the audience through the glass, giving a subdued, mellow light that will be vastly pleasing to all, besides which the scented oil will be delightful to the sense of smell."

Suppose the audience of that day could be present now and see the modern lighting up of theatres, residences, etc., where they use the improved Sun Burners manufactured by Messrs McNally & Hawkins, at 332 and 334 Pine street, they would think that witchcraft had been employed, else M. & H. would not have been enabled to rival the sun in its brilliancy. A stroll through their Pine street establishment would astonish the ancients and induce the modern people to give them their custom whenever they were in want of any Plumbing, Chandeliers, Pendants, Brackets, Fancy Basins, etc., 3-L

Sir Walter Raleigh created a consternation when he appeared before his servants smoking a pipe of Tobacco. The sight was a new one to them, and they, as well as the public in general were slow to learn the use of the Weed Had they had Tobacco of the quality and perfect flavor which the Perique and Golden Thread Smoking Tobacco of to-day have, smoking would much sooner become almost universal. The Gilroy Tobacco Company (office 304 Pine street), are offering the above-named Tobaccos to the public, and we advise those in want of a good article to give them a trial. 3-L

THE SCIENCE—for it is a science—of taking the impression of any animate or inanimate thing on Glass, Porcelain or Cardboard, by using the sun as an auxiliary, is an important one. Improvements have been made from time to time by those who have made Photography a study To our mind (and a visit will make our readers agree with us) the Artist who presides at the Florence Gallery, 28 Third street, has attained a degree of excellence seldom achieved, if ever equalled. His Life-Size Portraits are excellent and prices low. 2bh

FOR a good, quiet, nice saloon, commend us to the "Orient," 720 Market street. Messrs. Goldworthy & Weston are saloon-keepers who know their business thoroughly, and consequently keep only the best of Wines, Whiskys and Cigars. We can commend the "Orient" as one of the best places in the city. Try once and you will be satisfied. 2-c

TRUTH LIVES ON.

Through the rugged march of time
Mark'd with mis'ry, sin and crime,
Error stalks with upreared head,
O'er her fields of slaughtered dead,
But beneath her bloody tread
The truth lives on.

Warriors strong and brave of yore,
Drenched Judea's plains in gore,
And the land with war was rife,
For His tomb who hated strife,
In the teaching of whose life
The truth lives on.

Progress rolls her car along,
Slowly righting human wrong;
Might the right may crucify,
Nothing can her power defy;
Though Herod lives and Jesus die,
The truth lives on.

Burning faggots blazing high,
Gibbets tow'ring to the sky,
Inquisition's rack and pain,
Slavery clanging loud its chain,
Falsehood triumphs still in vain;
The truth lives on.

Underneath this load of wrong,
Truth eternal moves along:
Every true heart's mighty throe
Rolls away some human woe
Error reels beneath the blow,
And truth lives on.

Fountains of the deep are stirred;
Mighty thoughts unbreathed in word,
Till the living Future's soul,
Bursting forth, will spurn control;
Shouts of freedom heavenward roll,
And truth lives on.

Every blow at slavery's yoke,
Every true word boldly spoke,
Every holy thought within,
Breaks and curbs the power of sin;
Freedom's dawn is ushered in,
And truth lives on.

An Art Exhibition.

Few persons are aware of the amount of study which is lavished upon the appointments of the drama in the standard theatres. As a rule the persons who have this department in charge not only have a pride, but take as much interest in having their particular line look as attractive as the telling parts taken by the leading actors themselves; and they task their whole energies so that after the audience are more pleased with what they have seen, than with what they have heard, how often does one hear when coming from the theatre such remarks as "M—— took his part well, but what a splendid thing that Drawing Room scene was," and other remarks that tend to show that although they may have been well pleased with the play, the arrangements of the scene pleased them better. The study of unique style of Furniture might seem very dry, but the fact is that with the exception of studying to make modern styles of Furniture pleasing to the eye there is hardly a calling in which the followers of take more interest. There is a splendor about the palatial Furniture of ancient days, yet it must be confessed that modern days have made improvements here as in other departments. It has substituted the beauty of convenience and usefulness for the stiff splendor of the old patterns. The suggestions of coziness and familiar beauty are more pleasant than those of mere show and embellishment. Mr. J. W. Burnham, of Burnham & Co., No. 618 Market street, in this city, has made the art of selecting as well as that of and arranging with taste beautiful patterns of Carpets and Tapestry, hangings and curtains for windows, a study. We took a stroll through Mr B.'s establishment a day or two since, and must confess that we were surprised as well as pleased to see what modern skill and science have done toward modern furnishing. Under the guidance of Mr. Burnham, the gentlemanly manager of the house, we were shown Velvets from Turkey, Tapestries from Belgium, Brussels and Ingrains from the principal manufactories of the old world. Mr. Burnham explained at length of the skill, artistic study, and intricate machinery necessary to produce Carpet Tapestry, etc. We were also shown Oil Cloths that had such a warmth of color and look of softness and finish that we could hardly realize without the sense of touch that we were not looking at a piece of Brussels. Large and complete as J. W. Burnham & Co.'s stock is, we were assured by the genial Mr. B. that they would offer the entire stock in lots to suit, at a sacrifice, for the next ninety days, in order to make room while rebuilding. A half a day could not be more profitably spent than in viewing their beautiful stock, and if one does not wish to purchase, Mr. Burnham will show (so much pride does he take in his stock) and explain his patterns to all who may wish to view. There is also an entrance to their store at No. 17 Post street. 3d

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.
